Sec. 6509. When by lien of fieri facias there is a claim on any person other than judgment debtor, summons may be sued out against him; how issued, served, and returned.—On a suggestion by the judgment creditor that, by reason of the lien of his writ of fieri facias, there is a liability on any person other than the judgment debtor, a summons may be sued out of the clerk's office of the court in which the judgment is, or, if rendered by a justice, may be issued by a justice, or sued out of the clerk's office to which an execution issued thereon has been returned as provided in section six thousand and thirty, against said person; and a copy thereof shall be served on the judgment debtor as well as on said person, or, if he be a non-resident, he shall be proceeded against by publication, according to the provisions of section six thousand and sixty-nine, unless the summons was sued out from a justice, in which case, there shall be no order of publication. The return day of such summons, when sued out from the clerk's office, may be to the next term of the court, although more than ninety days after the date thereof, but if there be publication against a non-resident judgment debtor who does not appear in the proceedings, there shall be no judgment against a garnishee prior to the term of the court after the completion of the order of publication, and when issued by a justice, such summons may be made returnable before any justice of the county or corporation in which the same issued, and shall be made returnable within sixty days at some certain place within such county or corporation to be named in such summons, and within the magisterial district wherein such judgment debtor resides at the time of the service of such summons. (Code 1887, § 3609.)

Where a judgment debtor has transferred to another person personal property in fraud of his creditors, the proper method to attack conveyance is not by garnishment proceedings, but either by suit in equity or action at law under section 6514, or by levying execution on the property and letting the issue be tried on proceedings on a forthcoming bond. Sec. 6510. How he is examined; court's order on such examination; execution thereon.—The person summoned shall be examined on oath. If it appear on such examination that there is any such liability on him, the court or justice may give judgment against him for any amount found due the execution debtor, and order him to deliver any estate for which there is such liability, or pay the value of such estate, to any officer whom it may designate; and the levy of an execution on such order shall be valid, although levied by such officer. (Code 1887, § 3610.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision, the second sentence provided that, "If it appear on such examination that there is any such liability on him, the court or justice may ORDER HIM TO PAY ANY DEBTS, or deliver any estate," etc. The present section contains, in lieu of the capitalized words, the provision authorizing the court or justice to give judgment against the garnishee for any amount found due the execution debtor, etc. This change simply conforms to existing practice.

A corporation, being unable to answer under oath, answers under its corporate seal. But, "where a discovery is wanted, a practice has prevailed of making some of the officers defendants." B. & O. Ry. Co. v. Gallahue's Adm'rs, 12 Grat. 655, 664, 65 Am. Dec. 254.

The court has no power, in a summons on suggestion by an execution creditor of a husband, against his wife, to set aside an alleged fraudulent transfer of personal property from the debtor to his wife. The statute does not contemplate or operate upon estate in the possession of the garnishee to which he has title, but only estate of the execution debtor for the recovery of which he might maintain an action in his own name. Freitas v. Griffith, 112 Va. 343, 71 S. E. 531. For method of reaching fraudulently transferred personal property, see this case and see editorial on the case in 17 Va. Law Reg. 321 and 645.

Sec. 6511. The proceedings, if he fail to appear, or to disclose his liability.—If such person, after being served with the summons, fail to appear, or if it be suggested that he has not fully disclosed his liability, the proceedings shall be according to sections sixty-three hundred and ninety-nine and sixty-four hundred, mutatis mutandis, except that when the summons is before a justice, he shall proceed without a jury. Sec. 6512. Payment, etc., by garnishee before return of summons.—Any person, summoned under section sixty-five hundred and nine, may, before the return day of the summons, deliver and pay to the officer serving it, what he is liable for; and the officer shall give a receipt for, and make return of, what is so paid and delivered. See Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 839.

Sec. 6513. Judgment as to costs.—Unless such person appear to be liable for more than is so delivered and paid, there shall be no judgment against him for costs. In other cases, judgment under sections sixty-five hundred and ten and sixty-five hundred and eleven may be for such costs, and against such party, as the court may deem just. (Code 1887, § 3613.)

Sec. 6514. By whom and how suit brought to recover estate on which fieri facias, or judgment on which it issues, is a lien, or to enforce any liability in respect thereto.—For the recovery of any estate on which a writ of fieri facias is a lien under this chapter, or on which the judgment on which such writ issues is a lien under chapter two hundred and seventy-one, or for the enforcement of any liability in respect to any such estate a suit may be maintained, at law or in equity, as the case may require, in the name of the officer to whom such writ was delivered, or in the name of any other officer who may be designated for the purpose by an order of the court in which the judgment is, or if the judgment be of a justice, by an order of the circuit court of the county or of the corporation court of the city in which such justice resides. No officer shall be bound to bring such suit unless bond, with sufficient surety, be given him to indemnify him against all expenses and costs which he may incur or become liable for by reason thereof. But any person interested may bring such suit at his own costs in the officer's name. (Code 1887, § 3614; 1902-3-4, p. 836.)

Sec. 6515. How and when officer receiving money under this chapter to make return thereof and pay net proceeds; how liable for failure.—An officer receiving money under this chapter shall, within thirty days thereafter, make return thereof to the court or the clerk's office of the court in which the judgment is, or, if it was rendered by a justice, to the circuit court of the county or to the corporation court of the city, or to the clerk's office of either in which such justice resides; and for failing so to do shall be liable as if he had acted under an order of said court. After deducting from said money a commission of five per centum and his necessary expenses and costs, including reasonable fees to counsel, he shall pay the net proceeds, and he and his sureties and their representatives shall be liable therefor, in like manner as if the same had been made under a writ of fieri facias on the judgment, returnable at the end of said thirty days. Cited but not construed in Tisdale's Case, 114 Va. 866, 77 S. E. 482.

Sec. 6516. Creditor may issue other executions without impairing lien.—Although a judgment creditor avail himself of the benefit of this chapter, he may nevertheless (without impairing his lien under it) from time to time, issue other executions upon his judgment until the same is satisfied. (Code 1887, § 3616.)

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 141, section 17.

Sec. 6517. Territorial extent of the lien of an execution.—The lien given by this chapter on personal property by placing an execution in the hands of an officer to be executed shall, as to property capable of being levied on, be restricted to the bailiwick of the officer into whose hands the execution is placed to be executed, but as to property not capable of being levied on the lien shall extend throughout the limits of the Commonwealth.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new, but is believed to be simply declaratory of existing law.

CHAPTER 273.

Forthcoming Bonds.

Sec.
6518. When and how forthcoming bond may be taken; property then remains in debtor's possession.
6519. How tenant unable to give forthcoming bond may have distress warrant returned to court and make defense thereto; when officer, in such case, to take possession of property levied on; its sale, when perishable or expensive to keep.
6520. If bond forfeited, where returned; its effect; clerk to endorse time of return.
6521. Liability of obligors; how recovery on the bond is had.
6522. When taken under distress warrant, what defense may be made.
6523. Remedy of creditor, if bond quashed.
6524. In what cases forthcoming bond not to be taken.
6525. Endorsement on execution in such cases.
6526. When justice may give judgment on forthcoming bond; how case moved to court when amount, exclusive of interest, exceeds twenty dollars.

Sec.
6527. When bond returned, how endorsed and recorded by clerk; lien thereof, clerk's fee.
6528. How bond withdrawn from clerk's office.
6529. Costs to be included by justice.
6530. Justice to keep record of judgment; how endorse execution.

Sec. 6518. When and how forthcoming bond may be taken; property then remains in debtor's possession.—The sheriff or other officer levying a writ of fieri facias, or distress warrant, may take from the debtor a bond, with sufficient surety, payable to the creditor, reciting the service of such writ or warrant, and the amount due thereon (including his fee for taking the bond, commissions, and other lawful charges, if any), with condition that the property shall be forthcoming at the day and place of sale; whereupon, such property may be permitted to remain in the possession and at the risk of the debtor. (Code 1887, § 3617.)

A forthcoming bond taken under this section and made payable to the sheriff, instead of to the execution creditor, as required, does not have the force of a judgment against obligors therein, under section 6520. The lien given by that section being statutory, the steps which lead up to it must be substantially in accordance with the provisions of the statute. The bond is inoperative as a statutory bond and creates no lien, though it may be a good common law bond and the sheriff may sue upon it. Lynchburg Trust, &c., Bank v. Elliott, 94 Va. 700, 27 S. E. 467.

Form of delivery or forthcoming bond, 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1582.

See Gregory's Forms Nos. 399, 505.

Sec. 6519. How tenant unable to give forthcoming bond may have distress warrant returned to court and make defense thereto; when officer, in such case, to take possession of property levied on; its sale, when perishable or expensive to keep.—On affidavit by a tenant, whose property has been levied on under a warrant of distress, that he is unable to give the bond required in the preceding section, and that he has a valid defense under section sixty-five hundred and twenty-two, the officer levying the warrant shall permit the property to remain in the possession and at the risk of the tenant, and shall return the warrant, together with the affidavit, to the first day of the next term of the circuit court of his county or corporation court of his corporation, and thereupon the landlord after ten days' notice in writing to the tenant, may make a motion before such court for a judgment for the amount of the rent and for a sale of the property levied on, as aforesaid, to which motion the tenant may make such defense as he is authorized to make, under section sixty-five hundred and twenty-two, to an action or motion on the bond where one is given. If, however, after such affidavit is made, the claimant of the rent, or some one for him, shall give bond with sufficient surety, in a penalty double the value of the property levied on, with condition to pay all costs and damages which may accrue to any one by reason of his suing out said warrant, the officer shall take possession of the property and hold the same subject to the order of the court. If the property be perishable, or expensive to keep, the court, or the judge thereof in vacation, may order it to be sold, and on the final trial of the cause, the court shall dispose of the property, or proceeds of sale, according to the rights of the parties. (Code 1887, § 3618; 1902-3-4, p. 839.)

Revisors' Note.—As this section stood before the revision, no method of procedure was marked out by which the landlord was to secure his rent, or have the property sold. Provision was made for the tenant to retain the property and for defenses which might be made by him, but when or how those defenses were to arise was not made to appear. The revised section, in the latter part of the first sentence, supplies these omissions.

See Givens v. Clem, cited under section 6305.

Sec. 6520. If bond forfeited, where returned; its effect; clerk to endorse time of return.—If the condition of such forthcoming bond be not performed, the officer, unless payment be made of the amount due on the execution or warrant (including his fee, commission, and charges as aforesaid), shall, within thirty days after the bond is forfeited, return it, with the execution or warrant, to such court, or the clerk's office of such court as is prescribed by section twenty-eight hundred and twenty-five. The clerk shall endorse on the bond the date of its return; and against such of the obligors therein as may be alive when it is forfeited and so returned, it shall have the force of a judgment. But no execution shall issue thereon under this section. (Code 1887, § 3619.)

If bond is forfeited and the execution issued thereon is returned "no effects" equity will treat the bond as a nullity and will restore the lien of the original judgment in favor of the creditor. Cooper, &c., v. Daugherty, Adm'r, 85 Va. 343, 7 S. E. 387.

Sec. 6521. Liability of obligors; how recovery on the bond is had.—The obligors in such forfeited bond shall be liable for the money therein mentioned, with interest thereon from the date of the bond till paid, and the costs. The obligee or his personal representative shall be entitled to recover the same by action or motion. (Code 1887, § 3620.)

If notice of plaintiff's motion hereunder is sufficiently explicit to render mistake impossible, it will be sustained, although the whole of the defendants in the original execution may not be named in the notice. Nice and technical objections to the notice, where every purpose of substantial justice is effected, ought not to be favored. Alexander v. Brown, 1 Pet. 685, 7 L. Ed. 314.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 142, section 5.

Sec. 6522. When taken under distress warrant, what defense may be made.—In an action or motion on such bond, when it is taken under a distress warrant, the defendants may make defense on the ground that the distress was for rent not due in whole or in part, or was otherwise illegal. (Code 1887, § 3621.)

Sec. 6523. Remedy of creditor, if bond quashed.—If any such bond be at any time quashed, the obligee, besides his remedy against the officer, may have such execution on his judgment, or issue such distress warrant, as would have been lawful if such bond had not been taken. (Code 1887, § 3622.)

Sec. 6524. In what cases forthcoming bond not to be taken.—No bond for the forthcoming of property shall be taken on an execution on a forthcoming bond, nor on an execution on a judgment against a treasurer, sheriff, sergeant, coroner, or constable, or a deputy of any of them, or a surety or personal representative of any such officer or deputy, for money received by any such officer or deputy, by virtue of his office, or against any such officer or his personal representative, in favor of a surety of such officer, or against a deputy of any such officer, or his surety or personal representative, in favor of his principal or the personal representative of such principal, for money paid or a judgment rendered for a default in office; nor on an execution against an overseer of the poor, or his personal representative, for money received by him as such; nor on any other execution on which the clerk is required by law to endorse that "no security is to be taken." (Code 1887, § 3623.)

Sec. 6525. Endorsement on execution in such cases.—On every execution, on which a forthcoming bond is prohibited from being given, the endorsement that "no security is to be taken" shall be made by the clerk. (Code 1887, § 3624.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 505.

Sec. 6526. When justice may give judgment on forthcoming bond; how case moved to court when amount, exclusive of interest, exceeds twenty dollars.—A justice may, on motion, after ten days' notice of the time and place thereof, give judgment on any forthcoming bond taken by a constable or other officer upon a fieri facias issued by a justice. But in every case, when the amount actually due upon such bond, exclusive of interest, exceeds twenty dollars, the justice shall, upon the application of the defendant, and affidavit filed that he has a substantial defense to the bond, at any time before trial, remove the cause to the circuit court of the county or corporation court of the city wherein the writ of fieri facias was issued, and the clerk of the said court shall docket the same; and it shall be proceeded in as if it was a motion originally made in said court; and it shall not be discontinued by reason of no order being entered of its continuance from one day to another, or from one term to another. (Code 1887, § 3625; 1902-3-4, p. 839.)

Sec. 6527. When bond returned, how endorsed and recorded by clerk; lien thereof; clerk's fee.—Upon the return of such bond to the clerk's office in the manner prescribed by section sixty-five hundred and twenty, it shall be the duty of the clerk to endorse thereon the date of such return, and to record in a book to be by him kept for the purpose, the date of such bond and of the return endorsed thereon, the amount of the penalty thereof, the amount, the payment whereof will discharge such penalty, and the names of the obligee and obligor to such bond. For which service the clerk shall be entitled to a fee of thirty cents; and such bond, when so returned to the clerk's office aforesaid, shall constitute a lien on the real estate of the obligor. (Code 1887, § 3626.)

Sec. 6528. How bond withdrawn from clerk's office.—Such clerk shall endorse upon such bond the amount of the fee aforesaid; and the obligee in such bond, or his agent, may, at any time after the record of such bond is made by the clerk, required by the preceding section, withdraw the same from the clerk's office, leaving a copy thereof attested by the clerk. (Code 1887, § 3627.)

Sec. 6529. Costs to be included by justice.—The justice, on giving judgment on such bond, shall include in the costs of the judgment the clerk's fee aforesaid; and the clerk shall not receive any fee or reward for any service he is required to perform by the provisions of section sixty-five hundred and twenty-seven, except that herein specified. (Code 1887, § 3628.)

Sec. 6530. Justice to keep record of judgment; how endorse execution.—The justice, rendering a judgment under the provisions of this chapter, shall keep a record thereof in the same manner as he is required by law in other cases. He shall not stay execution upon such judgment, and shall endorse on any fieri facias issued thereon "no security is to be taken." (Code 1887, § 3629.)

But this section shall not invalidate any homestead exemption heretofore claimed under the provisions of the former Constitution, or impair in any manner the right of any householder or head of a family existing at the time that the present Constitution went into effect, to select the exemption, or any part thereof, to which he was entitled under the former Constitution: provided, that such right, if hereafter exercised, be not in conflict with the exemption set forth in sections one hundred and ninety and one hundred and ninety-one of the present Constitution.

But no person who has selected and received the full exemption allowed by the former Constitution shall be entitled to select an additional exemption under the present Constitution; and no person who has selected and received part of the exemption allowed by the former Constitution shall be entitled to select an additional exemption beyond the difference between the value of such part and a total valuation of two thousand dollars. (Code 1887, § 3630; 1902-3-4, p. 868.)

Revisors' Note.—This section is amended by Acts 1918, p. 487.

Constitutional provisions.—The seventh sub-division of the above section is taken from section 191 of the Constitution. The first clause in the seventh sub-division settles the question raised in Rose v. Sharpless, 33 Grat. 153; and the latter clause reverses the decisions of Shipe v. Repass, 28 Grat. 716; Boynton v. McNeal, 31 Grat. 456; Marshall v. Sears' Ex'r, 79 Va. 49; Hatcher v. Crews' Adm'r, 83 Va. 371, 5 S. E. 221; Mahoney v. James, 94 Va. 176, 26 S. E. 384; Oppenheim v. Myers, 99 Va. 582, 39 S. E. 218.

The homestead provisions of the Constitution must be liberally construed. Section 193, Const. 1902. They are not self-executing. Oppenheim v. Myers, supra.

For constitutional provisions concerning homestead exemptions, see sections 190-194, inclusive, Const. 1902. The difference between these provisions and those of the Constitution of 1869 seem unimportant, except as herein noted.

Rep. 507, it was decided that the provisions of the former Constitution (1869) and act of assembly in pursuance thereof, so far as they provided for exemption against contracts made before the adoption of the Constitution and the passage of such act, were repugnant to the contract clause of the United States Constitution.

Bankruptcy.—The national bankruptcy act (chapter 3, section 6 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3424]) provides that that statute "shall not affect the allowance to bankrupts of the exemptions which are prescribed by State laws in force at the time of the filing of the petition in the State wherein they have had their domicile for the six months or the greater portion thereof immediately preceding the filing of the petition."

Bankrupt should be permitted to amend schedule at any time to make bona fide claim of homestead, but he will not be allowed to do so after property has vested in trustee, where only purpose and effect is to prefer homestead waiver notes. In re Moran (D. C.), 105 Fed. 901.

Title to exempted property does not pass to trustee. Bankrupt court can merely set it aside, and thus exclude it from bankrupt estate. Waiver creditors must seek relief in State court. Lockwood v. Bank, 190 U. S. 294, 47 L. Ed. 1061, 23 Sup. Ct. 751.

During time between petition in bankruptcy and an adjudication, bankrupt disposed of goods for which he had paid, and also for goods for which he had not paid. Proceeds of sales of goods paid for may be claimed as exempt. In re Wilson (D. C.), 108 Fed. 197.

In setting apart the property claimed by a bankrupt as exempt, after its appraisal, the trustee acts ministerially; and no issue as to the bankrupt's right to the exemption arises until the trustee's report is filed, when issue may be taken by exceptions thereto which cast the burden of proving all facts essential to the right upon the bankrupt, including, where the exemption is claimed under the Virginia statute, the fact that such property was paid for. In re Campbell (D. C.), 124 Fed. 417.

Under the bankruptcy law, by which the proceeds of non-exempt property are divided pro rata among all creditors, objection to the allowance of a bankrupt's exemption under such statute on the ground that the property claimed has not been paid for may be made by any creditor, without showing that his claim is for the purchase price of any of such property. Id.

While an exception to the report of a trustee setting apart the bankrupt's exemptions is in some sense a pleading, in that it makes an issue, it is doubtful if it was intended to be embraced within Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, chapter 541, section 18c, 30 Stat. 551 [U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3429], which requires all pleadings setting up matters of fact to be verified; and in any event the lack of verification is not jurisdictional, and, where not objected to on the hearing before the referee, objection cannot be made on a review of his decision by the court. Id.

In applying in bankruptcy proceedings the Virginia exemption statute, which provides for the exemption of certain property of a debtor "from levy, seizure, garnishment or sale under any execution, order or process," a creditor is not precluded from objecting to the allowance of exemption to a bankrupt because he is not armed with any process; the bankruptcy proceedings themselves being in effect a seizure of all the debtor's property, for the purposes of the State statute. Id.

Where, on the hearing before the referee of exceptions to the report of a trustee setting apart the bankrupt's exemptions under the Virginia statute in merchandise, neither the bankrupt nor any creditors holding notes in which the right to the exemption was waived made any proof that the property claimed and set apart was paid for, and the referee decided against the right to the exemption, the cause will not be remanded for the taking of proof on such issue after the merchandise has been sold by agreement of the parties in interest, and delivered to the purchasers. Id.

The words "fiduciary capacity" as used in the Bankruptcy Act includes only technical trusts. Chapman v. Forsyth, 2 How. 202 (1844). It is probable that the word fiduciary as used in third sub-division of this section has same meaning. See, also, 6 Va. Law Reg. 196.

When a bankrupt dedicates property as a homestead, all the bankruptcy court can do is to set it aside for him. The homestead can only be subjected in the State courts. Newberry v. Collier, 111 Va. 288, 68 S. E. 974, citing the Lockwood Case, 190 U. S. 294, 47 L. Ed. 1061, 23 Sup. Ct. 751.

For discussion of the effect of bankruptcy on exemptions, see Brandenburg on Bankruptcy (3d Ed.) and McAllister v. Bodkin, 76 Va. 809; Hatcher v. Crews' Adm'r, 83 Va. 371, 5 S. E. 221.

Who is a householder?—The terms "householder" and "head of a family" are convertible (section 6566). They involve the idea of dependence and support, coupled with a legal or moral obligation to support the dependent. Oppenheim v. Myers, 99 Va. 586, 39 S. E. 218; Calhoun v. Williams, 32 Grat. 18, 34 Am. Rep. 759; 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 909, 910; 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 813, 814; 2 Va. Law Reg. 169; 6 Va. Law Reg. 533.

But an unmarried man who has no children or other persons dependent upon him living with him, though he keeps house and has hired servants living with him, is not a householder. Calhoun v. Williams, 32 Grat. 18, 34 Am. Rep. 759; 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 814; 6 Va. Law Reg. 533.

May a married woman be a "householder"?—In Oppenheim v. Myers, 99 Va. 582, 39 S. E. 218, the court "without pretending to decide that a married woman can under no circumstances claim a homestead exemption," decided that a married woman whose husband lived out of the State, but visited her at intervals of two or three years and occasionally made her small remittances, and who has no children dependent upon her for support, is not a "householder or head of a family." On the other hand, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals held that in Virginia a married woman may claim the exemption, though living with her husband, and though he contributes to the support of the family, provided she is the owner of the property, manages the business of the family, and is regarded by the family as the head (Richardson v. Woodward, 104 Fed. 873, 44 C. C. A. 235, 6 Va. Law Reg. 526); and the circumstance that the husband has already claimed his exemption as head of the family under the "Poor Debtors' Law" (section 6552) does not affect the question. Id.

See 16 Va. L. Reg. 113.

Becoming householder after judgment lien.—A lien acquired by judgment, execution, or in any other manner than by voluntary act of the debtor himself gives away to debtor's claim to homestead exemption, even where a lien attaches prior to the debtor's becoming a householder. Oppenheim v. Myers, 99 Va. 588, 39 S. E. 218, overruling Kennerly v. Swartz, 83 Va. 704, 3 S. E. 348, and approving suggestion in White v. Owen, 30 Grat. 43. For comments on Oppenheim v. Myers, see 7 Va. Law Reg. 275. The decision in the last-mentioned case seems to rest on section 3, article 11, of the Constitution of 1869, which section does not appear in the Constitution of 1902.

"Residing in this State"—A citizen.—This limitation of the statute does not appear in either Constitution of 1869 or 1902. A change of domicile from the State puts an end to the homestead privilege. See section 6550. Lindsay v. Murphy, 76 Va. 428; Blose v. Bear, 87 Va. 177, 12 S. E. 294, 11 L. R. A. 705; 2 Va. Law Reg. 170. In Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 410, 21 S. E. 818, where infants entitled to homestead claimed by their father in his lifetime removed after his death to West Virginia, the court, without deciding that such removal of the children forfeited their claim to exemption, held that the corpus of the homestead itself was not removable from the State, thus apparently recognizing the rights of the children after their removal. In Lindsay v. Murphy, supra, it was decided that only a "citizen" of Virginia could claim the exemption. The word "citizen," however, was perhaps not used in its restricted legal significance. If so, women and men disfranchised under Constitution 1902 could not claim exemption. Examine fourteenth amendment United States Constitution.

"Debt or liability on contract"—Torts and Fines.—The exemption cannot be claimed against torts, nor against a fine due the Commonwealth for a violation of the criminal laws (Whiteacre v. Rector, 29 Grat. 714, 26 Am. Rep. 420); nor against a demand for damages for breach of promise to marry (Burton v. Mill, 78 Va. 468). See, also, Frazier v. Baker, 5 Va. Law J. 565; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1004; 2 Va. Law Reg. 172.

The homestead laws of the State of Virginia apply to a fine imposed for a violation of the criminal laws of the United States, and the exemption allowed thereunder can be claimed as against a judgment for a fine in favor of the government. Allen, Marshall v. Clark (U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals), 9 Va. Law Reg. 694, and note.

Homestead can be claimed against judgment in an action where the right of recovery rested solely upon the ground that the plaintiff had been damaged by breach of contract and not by reason of a tort, and the mere use of violent terms in characterizing the alleged fraud in the procurement of the contract, and its breach, will not suffice to convert the breach of contract into a tort. Jewett v. Ware, 107 Va. 802, 60 S. E. 131.

The amount householder may hold exempt.—He may supplement original homestead by a new one, so as to make the aggregate equal (not exceed) the maximum of $2,000. Oppenheimer v. Howell, 76 Va. 218. See section 6547.

Under what circumstances homestead cannot be claimed— "First"—"Purchase price of said estate."—Where a merchant has intermingled with his stock of merchandise, goods which he has not paid for, as against creditors holding claims for the merchandise the burden is on the debtor to identify the particular articles which have been paid for and are subject to be claimed as exempt, and goods not so identified cannot be included in the exemption as against merchandise creditors. In re Tobias (D. C.), 103 Fed. 68, 6 Va. Law Reg. 297, and note 301; In re Wilson, supra; Rose v. Sharpless, 33 Grat. 158. See supra for the addition made to this sub-division by Constitution. The burden is likewise on claimant to show that goods claimed are paid for. In re Campbell (D. C.), 124 Fed. 417.

A vendor of goods who is allowed the value of those of the goods sold which were undisopsed of at vendor's death, cannot invoke the doctrine of "confusion of goods" to secure payment of his entire claim as against a homestead claimed in a stock of goods claimed by vendee's children. Edgewood Dis. Co. v. Rosser, 116 Va. 624, 82 S. E. 716.

"Second." "Services rendered by a laboring person."—A mail carrier is a laboring person. Farinholt v. Luckhard, 90 Va. 936, 21 S. E. 817, 44 Am. St. Rep. 953. Since this decision what is now section 6566 has been amended so as to provide that the term "laboring man" shall include all householders who receive wages for their services.

"Third." "Liabilities incurred by a public officer," etc.—See 2 Va. Law Reg. 173. The third exception embraces the liabilities of a collector of taxes and also of his sureties in his official bond. Com. v. Ford, 29 Grat. 683. See, also, 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1004.

"Seventh." Shifting stocks of merchandise and fraudulent conveyances.—See notes above under "Constitutional Provisions."

"Where the debtor has surrendered to the trustee in bankruptcy his stock of goods in bulk, the shifting character of such property will not prevent the bankrupt from claiming his exemption therein, since by the surrender to the trustee the property loses its shifting character, and the exemption claimed may be ascertained and defined with certainty." In re Tobias (D. C.), 103 Fed. 68, 6 Va. Law Reg. 297, 301; In re Wilson (D. C.), 108 Fed. 197; Rose v. Sharpless, 33 Grat. 158.

the debtor separated from his stock numerous articles of merchandise and placed them in boxes, with a view of setting up the claim that they had ceased to be a part of a shifting stock of merchandise and could be claimed as exempt. Held, that such property was a part of a shifting stock of merchandise and that a homestead could not be claimed therein. Laderburg v. Miller, 210 Fed. 614.

The term "shifting stock of merchandise" means a stock of merchandise subject to change from time to time in the course of trade, by purchases, sales or other transactions. Laderburg v. Miller, 210 Fed. 614.

The debtor cannot by his act of closing his store or separating a part of his shifting stock of merchandise with the view of defeating the rights of the creditor, have a homestead in such property. Laderburg v. Miller, 210 Fed. 614.

A shifting stock of merchandise ceases to be shifting upon the death of the owner thereof and becomes fixed and stable. Edgewood Dis. Co. v. Rosser, 116 Va. 624, 82 S. E. 716.

Where property has been conveyed, directly or indirectly, by a husband to his wife and the conveyance has been set aside at the instance of his creditors on the ground of fraud or want of consideration, he cannot claim a homestead in the property conveyed; but if the wife has been guilty of no actual fraud, and has, out of her own means, discharged a purchase money lien on the property, the lien will be treated as in force for her protection, and she will be subrogated to the rights of the lienor. Dickenson v. Patton, 110 Va. 5, 65 S. E. 529.

Partnership property.—In those States where the policy of the homestead law is to protect homes, partners have been denied the right to claim exemption in partnership assets (Waples on Homestead, 143); but under statutes like ours it would seem otherwise, especially since the Constitution of 1902 (section 193) enjoins liberality of construction. See Id. 907. In Wisconsin a partner, with consent of co-partners, may claim exemption. O'Gorman v. Fink, 57 Wis. 649, 15 N. W. 771, 46 Am. Rep. 58.

Generally.—Crops raised on land previously set apart as a homestead are exempt. Neblett v. Shackleton, 111 Va. 707, 69 S. E. 946; see comment, 16 Va. Law Reg. 853 and 933.

The homestead exemption in Virginia, unlike that in most of the States, is not so much an estate in land as a right of occupancy which cannot be disturbed while the homestead character exists. Blose v. Bear, 87 Va. 177, 12 S. E. 294; 11 L. R. A. 704; cited in Murphy v. Richmond, 111 Va. 459, 69 S. E. 442.

Sec. 6532. How exemption of real estate secured.—In order to secure the benefit of the exemption of real estate under the preceding section, the householder shall, by a writing signed by him and duly admitted to record, to be recorded as deeds are recorded, in the county or corporation wherein such real estate, or any part thereof, is, declare his intention to claim such benefit, and select and set apart the real estate to be held by him as exempt, and describe the same with reasonable certainty, affixing to the description his cash valuation of the estate so selected and set apart. Equitable as well as legal estates may be so selected and set apart. (Code 1887, § 3631.)

To avail himself of the homestead exemption, householder must actually claim the exemption and set it apart as prescribed. It is a personal privilege, and the householder must exercise it. He cannot be compelled to claim it or to have it set apart. Wray v. Davenport, 79 Va. 19; Reed v. Union Bank, 29 Grat.-719, 724; White v. Owen, 30 Grat. 47; Scott v. Cheatham, 78 Va. 82; 2 Va. Law Reg. 171. But widow may claim it after his death.

The mere act of a bankrupt, in claiming a homestead exemption in the schedule filed by him, is not a compliance with this section. In re Garner (D. C.), 115 Fed. 200; section 6537 and notes.

Deed may be valid as to property sufficiently described, though invalid as to other property. Williams v. Watkins, 92 Va. 680, 24 S. E. 223.

See Gregory's Forms No. 527; Burks' Pl. & Pr., pp. 793, 794.

Sec. 6533. Real estate, subject to encumbrances, may be set apart as exempt; if sold to satisfy same, how surplus of proceeds invested or disposed of.—Such real estate may be selected and set apart as aforesaid, subject to any paramount encumbrances thereon. If a sale be had to satisfy the encumbrances, the surplus of the proceeds, if any, not exceeding the amount which the householder is entitled under section sixty-five hundred and thirty-one, shall be paid to said householder, and invested by him in such other property as he may select. (Code 1887, § 3632.)

Revisors' Note.—Formerly, this section provided that if a sale be had by order of court to satisfy the encumbrance, the surplus of the proceeds, not exceeding the amount to which the householder was entitled to hold as exempt, should be invested by the court wherein the order of sale was made in such other property as the householder might direct, but if the sale was not made under order of court, then the surplus should be paid to the householder and invested by him. Under the present section in either case the surplus is to be paid to the householder who may make his own investments.

It is also legal and valid in a deed of trust to secure debts, for the grantor to reserve for himself and family all exemptions allowed by law. Brockenbrough's Ex'x v. Brockenbrough's Adm'r, 31 Grat. 580-596.

Sec. 6534. Partition or sale of real estate held as exempt by joint tenant, tenant in common, or coparcener.—If the estate so set apart be held by the householder as joint tenant, coparcener, or tenant in common, partition or sale may be had as provided by chapter two hundred and fourteen, and in case of sale, the share of the proceeds to which the householder is entitled, shall be paid to said householder and invested by him in such other property as he may select. (Code 1887, § 3633.)

Revisors' Note.—The latter part of this section has been made to conform to the preceding section.

Sec. 6535. How real estate set apart as exempt may be encumbered or aliened.—Real estate set apart as aforesaid may be sold and conveyed as other real estate held by the householder, and the proceeds invested in other property, or it may in like manner be exchanged for other property, but in no case shall the purchaser be bound to see to the application of the purchase money. (Code 1887, § 3634.)

Revisors' Note.—Under section 3634 of the Code of 1887, the real estate set apart could not be mortgaged, encumbered or aliened by the householder, if a married man, except by the joint deed of himself and wife, but the householder was allowed, without the consent of his wife, to mortgage or encumber it for the purchase money, or for the erection or repair of buildings. The section further provided that the real estate might be sold and conveyed by the joint act of the householder and his wife, or by the householder alone, if unmarried, and the proceeds invested in or exchanged for other property. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, under section 3647 of the Code of 1887 (section 6548 of this Code), a householder could waive the exemption by his sole note, bond or other instrument, even by a simple due bill, and it was immaterial whether the property had been previously set apart or not. This being true, it appeared unreasonable to say that the waiver could not be by deed, and that the very fact of giving a deed did not constitute a waiver, hence the provisions of the revised section above; but, of course, the householder cannot by his sole deed deprive his wife of dower.

Under this section in its former state it was held that a homestead in real estate which had been set apart by a married man could not be aliened by his sole deed, and that such deed was void. Va.-Tenn. Co. v. McClelland, 98 Va. 424, 36 S. E. 479, 6 Va. Law Reg. 171. See, also, 6 Va. Law Reg. 534.

The primary object of this section is to authorize sale of homestead and investment of proceeds in a new one, to be held on like terms as the original. In it there is nothing to authorize debtor who has squandered one homestead to appropriate another against subsequent creditors. Oppenheimer v. Howell, 76 Va. 218.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 41, section 32.

Sec. 6536. How real estate, so set apart, held after death of householder.—The real estate set apart by any householder in his lifetime shall, after his death, be held by his widow and minor children, or such of them as there may be, exempt as before and also from the debts and obligations of such widow and children or any of them, until her death or marriage, and, after her death or marriage, by such minor children until they respectively attain the age of twenty-one years, or marry, if they marry before attaining that age. (Code 1887, § 3635.)

This section is not unconstitutional, as being an unwarranted exercise of legislative power under the homestead provision of the Constitution of 1869. Hanby's Adm'r v. Henritze's Adm'r, 85 Va. 177, 7 S. E. 204.

If the householder dies intestate, and there are no other debts as against which the homestead can be held exempt, the exemption ceases altogether. The widow can only assert a claim of homestead against the creditors of the husband, and not against his heirs. Barker v. Jenkins, 84 Va. 895, 897, 6 S. E. 459; Helm v. Helm's Adm'r, 30 Grat. 404. But as against the creditors of her husband the widow remaining unmarried is entitled to claim the homestead exemption, although it was not set aside in his lifetime. Hatorff v. Wellford, 27 Grat. 356; Helm v. Helm's Adm'r, 30 Grat. 404; Scott v. Cheatham, 78 Va. 85; section 3636.

Where a husband has set aside a homestead, and died owing debts, his surviving widow, there being no infants, is entitled to hold the homestead during her life or widowhood, and cannot be deprived thereof by the payment of her husband's debts by heirs. State's purchase of land for taxes does not deprive the widow of her right. Davis v. Davis, 101 Va. 230, 43 S. E. 358.

See, also, note 8 Va. Law Reg. 909.

Upon the death of a householder who has set apart a homestead in land, his widow does not take a life estate in the land, but she and the minor children simply hold it, exempt as before from certain debts. Taxes should be assessed against it in the name of the householder or his estate, and the land is liable for such taxes. Tabb v. Com., 98 Va. 47, 34 S. E. 946, distinguished. Murphy v. Richmond, 111 Va. 459, 69 S. E. 442.

See notes to section 6537; Burks' Pl. & Pr., p. 802.

Sec. 6537. If not set apart by householder in his lifetime, how widow and minor children may have it done.—If no real estate or not so much as the householder may have been entitled to set apart has been so set apart by him in his lifetime, upon his death his widow and minor children, or such of them as there may be, on petition to the circuit court of the county or to any city court of the city wherein his real estate or the greater part thereof is, may have so much thereof set apart by commissioners appointed by the court as the said householder might have set apart in his lifetime, to be held by them as it would have been under the preceding section if it had been so set apart. (Code 1887, § 3636; 1902-3-4, p. 869.)

See notes to section 6536.

Where property has been conveyed, directly or indirectly, by a husband to his wife, and the conveyance has been set aside at the instance of his creditors on the ground of fraud or want of consideration, he cannot claim a homestead in the property nor can his widow and children after his death; but if the wife has been guilty of no actual fraud and has out of her own means, discharged a purchase money lien on the property, the lien will be treated as in force for her protection, and she will be subrogated to the right of the lienor. Dickenson v. Patton, 110 Va. 5, 65 S. E. 529.

Infants residing with their father in this State become entitled to claim a homestead in his estate immediately upon the death of their father. This estate cannot be divested by any act on the part of the infants, and is not lost by the fact that they are thereafter removed from the State by their mother and guardian who has absolute control over their movements. Edgewood Dis. Co. v. Rosser, 116 Va. 624, 82 S. E. 716.

Where a homestead is claimed by infants in money in the hands of an administrator, their mother having married again, the estate should be administered by a receiver appointed for the purpose. Edgewood Dis. Co. v. Rosser, 116 Va. 624, 82 S. E. 716.

The assignment to a widow, at her instance, by a court of general jurisdiction, of land of her husband as a homestead is conclusive upon her and those claiming under her that the land so assigned was the property of her husband and not of herself. Arendall v. Arendall, 119 Va. 1, 89 S. E. 87.

The assignment of a homestead is the exercise of the probate jurisdiction of the court. Its judgment imports verity, and is not amenable to collateral attack. Arendall v. Arendall, 119 Va. 1, 89 S. E. 87.

See Burks' Pl. & Pr., 795, 801.

Sec. 6538. If widow receives dower or jointure, she cannot have the exemption.—The two preceding sections are subject to this qualification: If the widow be entitled to dower or jointure, under chapter two hundred and six, and claims and receives either, she shall not have the benefit of the provisions of either of the said sections; but, in such case, the rights of the minor children thereunder shall not be impaired. (Code 1887, § 3637.)

Until the revision of 1887, the widow of a householder could claim, not only her dower or jointure, but also the exemption. This section puts her to her election. Burks' Address, 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1400.

See Burks' Pleading and Practice, p. 802.

Sec. 6539. Householder may, in lieu of real estate, set apart the exemption in personal estate.—If the householder does not set apart any real estate as before provided, or if what he does or has so set apart is not of the value of two thousand dollars, he may (in addition to the property or estate which he is entitled to hold exempt under sections sixty-five hundred and fifty-two, sixty-five hundred and fifty-three and sixty-five hundred and fifty-five), in the first case, select and set apart to be held by him as exempt under section sixty-five hundred and thirty-one, so much of his personal estate as shall not exceed in value the sum of two thousand dollars, and, in the latter case, personal estate, the value of which, when added to the value of the real estate set apart, does not exceed the said sum. (Code 1887, § 3638.)

See Gregory's Forms No. 527.

Sec. 6540. How set apart in personal estate.—Such personal estate shall be selected by the householder and set apart in a writing signed by him. He shall, in the writing, designate and describe with reasonable certainty, the personal estate so selected and set apart and each parcel or article, affixing to each his cash valuation thereof; and the said writing shall be admitted to record, to be recorded as deeds are recorded, in the county or corporation wherein such householder resides. (Code 1887, § 3639.)

This section is a reasonable exercise of legislative authority to fix in "what manner and on what conditions" householder may hold exempt, etc. Const. 1869, article 11, section 5 (Const. 1902, section 192). Wray v. Davenport, 79 Va. 19.

A writing filed by bankrupt with referee in bankruptcy, claiming the "exemptions allowed a householder under the State law," in the property surrendered, and referring therein to inventory made by trustee, wherein each article or parcel has value affixed, which writing is followed by a homestead deed, is a sufficient designation of the property under this section. ing such stock in bulk, is an insufficient compliance with this section. In re Wilson (D. C.), 108 Fed. 197.

See Burks' Pl. & Pr., 794; Gregory's Forms No. 527.

Sec. 6541. If householder has not set it apart in his lifetime, how his widow and minor children may do so; how they shall hold it.—If a householder die, leaving a wife or minor children, and he has not selected and set apart personal estate as provided in the two preceding sections, she, or if she die or marry, such minor children, each by his guardian or next friend, may select and set apart such personal estate in the manner prescribed by the preceding section, and the same so set apart, and what, if any, may have been set apart by the householder in his lifetime, shall be held by the widow and minor children in the same manner and exempt as real estate set apart under this chapter would be held by them after the death of such householder. If a widow receives dower or jointure under chapter two hundred and six, the value thereof shall be deducted from any exemption she may claim under this section, but in such case the rights of minor children hereunder shall not be impaired. (Code 1887, § 3640.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence of this section is new. If the widow has received dower or jointure in the real property, it seems she ought not to be allowed to claim the full amount of the exemption in the personal estate; but it is expressly provided that the rights of minor children shall not be impaired. As to real estate, see section 6538.

See Burks' Pleading and Practice, pp. 795, 801, 802.

Sec. 6542. When and how exemption in real or personal estate, held by widow and minor children, may be sold and proceeds of sale invested.—Any real or personal estate, set apart and held as a homestead by a householder in his lifetime, or by his widow and minor children, or any of them, after his death, may, upon his death, on a petition for the purpose filed by such widow and minor children, or any of them, in the circuit court of the county, or circuit or corporation court of the corporation, wherein they or any of them reside, or the estate or any part thereof is, be sold by order of the court and the proceeds of sale invested in other property, if it appears to the court that such sale and investment would be proper. To such petition all others interested (who are not plaintiffs) shall be made defendants. (Code 1887, § 3641.)

Sec. 6543. When the exemption may be set apart.—The real or personal estate, which a householder, his widow, or minor children are entitled to hold as exempt, may be set apart at any time before the same is subjected by sale or otherwise under judgment, decree, order, execution ,or other legal process. (Code 1887, § 3642.)

A person becoming householder after lien of judgment may yet claim exemption against such lien. Oppenheim v. Myers, 99 Va. 588, 39 S. E. 218, cited in note to section 6531.

Where the record did not show that claimant had filed deed in conformity with law, the appellate court refused to entertain his claim to the benefit of the exemption. Wray v. Davenport, 79 Va. 19, 25.

tion of time is concerned if recorded before the property is subjected by sale or otherwise under judgment decree order execution or other legal process, and a claim to exemption may be allowed bankrupt although not made in original schedules and although the homestead deed was made and recorded after the filing of such schedules, but before any action was taken by the trustee for a sale of the property. In re Fisher, 142 Fed. 205.

Sec. 6544. When it is not affected by increase of value of estate set apart.—The rents and profits of the property set apart as the homestead shall be exempt in the same manner as the corpus of the homestead, and if the whole real and personal estate set apart be not of greater value than two thousand dollars at the time it is so set apart, the exemption thereof shall not be affected by any increase in its value afterwards, unless such increase consists of permanent improvements placed upon real estate set apart by means derived from some source other than the homestead. (Code 1887, § 3643.)

Revisors' Note.—The first part of this section pertaining to the rents and profits of the property set apart as a homestead is new, and the latter part of the section differs somewhat from the former language. Formerly, the exception was in these words: "Unless such increase is caused by permanent improvements on the real estate set apart." The new language makes it clear that if such increase consists of permanent improvements placed upon the real estate by means derived from the homestead itself, that the homestead shall not be deemed to be excessive, but that if the permanent improvements are made by means derived from some other source, then the excess may be subjected under the following section.

See Burks' Pleading and Practice, p. 803.

Sec. 6545. When estate set apart exceeds in value the amount of exemption allowed, or is made so by improvements, equity may subject excess to debts.—Any creditor, against whom the exemption is claimed, may file a bill in equity, alleging that the value of the estate at the time it was set apart was more than two thousand dollars, or that by reason of permanent improvements made on the real estate after it was set apart, the whole estate set apart is of greater value than two thousand dollars; and if the court be satisfied, from the proofs in the cause, that the allegations of the bill are true, it shall make such decree or order as may be necessary to subject the estate set apart, so far as it exceeds in value the sum of two thousand dollars, to the payment of the debt or demand of such creditor. (Code 1887, § 3644.)

Sec. 6546. How estate held, in which proceeds of sale of exempted property are invested, or which was acquired in exchange; how such new estate, when acquired otherwise than under order of court, to be set apart; when acquired through court, what to be recorded, and where.—The estate or property in which proceeds of sale are invested, or which may be acquired in exchange, under any of the preceding sections of this chapter, shall be held exempt in like manner and to the like extent as the estate sold or exchanged was held.

Digitized by Google

But such estate or property when acquired in exchange or otherwise than by investment under an order of court, or unless when set apart by a court, shall be set apart, if real estate, by such a writing as is prescribed by section sixty-five hundred and thirty-two; if personal estate, by such a writing as is prescribed by section sixty-five hundred and forty; and such writing shall be recorded as provided by the same sections respectively. In addition to the requirements of said sections, the said writing shall state from what source the estate was derived and with what means acquired. When such estate is invested or set apart under an order of court, a copy of the order and of any report of a commissioner or other officer making the investment thereunder, if confirmed, and a copy of the order of confirmation, duly certified by the clerk of the said court, shall be recorded in the deed book of the county or city wherein the writing, if the estate had been set apart by a writing, is required to be recorded. (Code 1887, § 3645.)

Sec. 6547. When householder's right to exemption is exhausted.—When estate, real or personal, or both, of the value of two thousand dollars, has been once set apart to be held by a householder as exempt under section sixty-five hundred and thirty-one, he shall not afterwards be entitled to the exemption of any estate other than that so set apart, or that mentioned in the preceding section, and sections sixty-five hundred and forty-four, sixty-five hundred and fifty-two, sixty-five hundred and fifty-three and sixty-five hundred and fifty-five. (Code 1887, § 3646.)

Debtor may supplement original homestead by a new one, so as to make the aggregate equal (not exceed) $2,000. This privilege once fully exercised is regarded as exhausted. A new homestead created determines the original one, if the property exempted under the latter remains in existence. At all events, debtor will be required to account for its value in ascertaining the amount he is entitled to under a new assignment. Oppenheimer v. Howell, 76 Va. 218.

This section originated with the revision of 1887, and was intended to conform to the decision in Oppenheimer v. Howell, 76 Va. 218. Burks' Address, 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1401.

Sec. 6548. Waiver of exemption; its effect; form of waiver.—If any person shall declare in a bond, bill, note, or other instrument, by which he is or may become liable for the payment of money to another, or by a writing thereon or annexed thereto, that he waives, as to such obligation, the exemption from liability of the property or estate which he may be entitled to claim and hold exempt under the provisions of this chapter, the said property or estate, whether previously set apart or not, shall be liable to be subjected for said obligation, under legal process, in like manner and to the same extent as other property or estate of such person: except that such waiver shall not extend to or affect the exemption of the property or estate exempt under sections sixty-five hundred and fifty-two, sixty-five hundred and fifty-three and sixty-five hundred and fifty-five. The following or equivalent words shall be sufficient to operate as the waiver hereinbefore provided for: "I (or we) waive the benefit of my (or our) exemption as to this obligation." If a debt which is superior to the homestead, or as to which the homestead is waived, be paid off by a surety therein, the principal shall not be allowed to claim the homestead as against such surety. (Code 1887, § 3647.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence of this section is new. As the law stood before the revision, the principal could probably claim the homestead against the surety in the case covered by this sentence, but the revisors were of opinion that the law should be otherwise.

This section was intended by the revisors of 1887 to better define the right to waive the benefit of the exemption, the mode of exercising the right, and the effect of its exercise, than under the former law. Burks' Address, 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1401.

This section was held to be not in conflict with article 11 of the Constitution of 1869. If a party, executing his bond or note, waives his homestead as to his bond or note, neither he nor his wife can set up said homestead exemption as against the said bond or note. Reed v. Union Bank, 29 Grat. 719; White v. Owen, 30 Grat. 43; Linkenhoker's Heirs v. Detrick, 81 Va. 44, 59 Am. Rep. 648; Williams v. Watkins, 92 Va. 685, 24 S. E. 223; Va.-Tenn. Co. v. McClelland, 98 Va. 427, 36 S. E. 479.

The conveyance of homestead property by mortgage or deed of trust for payment of a debt would effectually subject it to the payment of debt, for it is in effect a waiver of the right of exemption. White v. Owen, 30 Grat. 52. See sections 6535 and revisors' note.

The waiver of the homestead exemption in the body of a non-negotiable note is only a waiver as to the particular obligation expressed in the body of the note, and not as to the implied obligation growing out of an assignment of the note; and as against the liability of the assignor to the assignee the former may claim the benefit of the exemption, although the note declares that "the drawer and indorsers each hereby waive the benefit of our homestead exemptions as to this debt." Long v. Pence's Committee, 93 Va. 584, 25 S. E. 593.

Waiver creditors cannot subject exempted property in bankruptcy court, but must resort to State court. Lockwood v. Bank, 190 U. S. 294, 47 L. Ed. 1061, 23 Sup. Ct. 751.

The decision of the rights of creditors having claims against a bankrupt's exempt property properly belongs to the tribunals of the State under the laws of which they are claimed. Barker-Bond L. Co. v. Whaley, 117 Va. 642, 86 S. E. 160.

A note in which debtor waives homestead creates no lien which is preserved by bankruptcy act. In re Moran (D. C.), 105 Fed. 901.

Sec. 6549. How claim enforced, as to which exemption is waived, or which is otherwise paramount to the exemption.—In any proceeding for the enforcement of a claim, which by reason of the waiver aforesaid or otherwise, is paramount to the exemption, if there be, in the county or corporation wherein the proceeding is, estate of the debtor other than that which has been set apart as aforesaid, such other estate shall be subjected and exhausted before the estate so set apart is resorted to. If, however, the claim is secured by mortgage, deed of trust, or other specific lien, on the estate set apart, nothing in this section contained shall prevent the enforcement of the security in the first instance and before resorting to other estate of the debtor. If a debtor die leaving unsecured debts which stand on the same footing, but as to some of which the homestead is waived and as to others not, his property not embraced in the homestead shall be first applied ratably to all debts of the same class, and if it be not sufficient to pay them all in full, then the creditors holding a waiver of the homestead exemption may resort to the property set apart as a homestead for the payment of the balance of their debts. (Code 1887, § 3648.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence of this section is new, and makes statutory the decision in Strange v. Strange, 76 Va. 240, and the cases following it.

If homestead be not claimed by debtor during his life, nor by his widow, etc., after his death, the whole estate must be distributed ratably among all the creditors (regardless of whether they hold homestead waiver obligations), unless there be some entitled to priority under section 5390 (Scott v. Cheatham, 78 Va. 82); but if claimed by either, and the homestead is waived as to some debts and not as to others, all the debts share ratably in the surplus above the exempted property, and when such surplus has been exhausted the exempted property may be subjected to pay such portion of the waived debts as remain unpaid. Strange's Adm'r v. Strange, 76 Va. 240; Scott v. Cheatham, 78 Va. 82; Hatorff v. Wellford, 27 Grat. 358; Linkenhoker's Heirs v. Detrick, 81 Va. 44, 59 Am. Rep. 648; Breeden v. McMinn's Adm'r, 5 Va. Law J. 771.

Sec. 6550. When the exemption ceases; how estate then passes; when and on what exempted estate the lien of a judgment or decree against householder attaches.—When any person, entitled as a householder to the exemption provided for in section sixty-five hundred and thirty-one, ceases to be a householder, or when any person removes from this State, his right to claim or hold any estate as exempt under the provisions of this chapter, shall cease; and, upon the death of a householder leaving neither wife nor minor children surviving him, or, if she or any of them survive him, and he leaves any estate which they or any of them are entitled to hold, or to have set apart to be held by them, as exempt under the preceding sections of this chapter, then upon her death or marriage, and if there be minor children, as soon as the youngest of those who attain the age of twenty-one years attains that age, or all marry, if they all marry before attaining that age, the exemption of any estate, real or personal, of such householder, then remaining and held as exempt under the provisions of this chapter, shall cease, and it shall pass as other real and personal estate, according to the law of descents and distributions, or as the same may be devised or bequeathed by said householder, subject to his debts; but the lien of a judgment, or decree for money, rendered against a householder, and which is not paramount to the exemption provided for in this chapter, shall, as to the real estate held as exempt by him, his widow, or minor children, attach to such only of that estate as he may be possessed of or entitled to at the time the exemption thereof ceases, as aforesaid, and until that time the said lien shall not be enforced. Such judgments shall attach in the order of their priority, respectively. (Code 1887, § 3649.)

Revisors' Note.—The last sentence of this section is new, and makes statutory in plain terms the order in which the judgments shall attach. It may be argued with a good deal of force that the judgments are all in existence and stand ready to attach to the property, and hence that they should stand pari passu and all attach at the same time, but this argument would apply equally to any property acquired by a judgment debtor after several judgments had been rendered against him.

It was formerly held that where homestead exemption had been regularly set apart it was for the benefit of the householder and his family, and it was not ended by the latter's decease. Wilkinson v. Merrill, 87 Va. 513, 12 S. E. 1015, 11 L. R. A. 632, thus far overruling Calhoun v. Williams, 32 Grat. 18, 34 Am. Rep. 759. See, also, 2 Min. (4th Ed.) 910; 4 Min. (3d Ed.) 1007. But see 2 Va. Law Reg. 170, where the correctness of this construction is questioned. The question seems now settled by the language of the above section, which was not in existence when the party claiming homestead in Wilkinson v. Merrill ceased to be a householder. See, also, 6 Va. Law Reg. 143, where the opinion is expressed that the first clause of above section is unconstitutional.

"Main object of the section, in declaring when the exemption shall cease, was to fix the time when a judgment lien shall attach to the exempted real estate; and it is declared that it shall not attach except to such real estate as the householder shall have at the time the exemption right ceases, and it shall attach then. This leaves the householder at liberty, while the exemption continues, to alien the exempted real estate, free from any incumbrance by the lien of judgment (in the absence of waiver) recovered during the time the right of exemption exists, and thus enables him to make a good title to the purchaser, at least so far as any such judgment is concerned." Burks' Address. 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1402. See, also, Richardson v. Butler, 1 Va. Law J. 120.

Since the homestead is not so much an estate in the land itself as a right of occupancy which cannot be disturbed while the homestead character exists (Richardson v. Butler, 1 Va. Law J. 120; Scott v. Cheatham, 78 Va. 83; Lindsay v. Murphy, 76 Va. 428), it follows that whilst the lien of the judgment which attached before the homestead was claimed could not be enforced during the existence of the homestead yet it revived in all its original form so soon as the homestead exemption ceased (Blose v. Bear, 87 Va. 178, 179, 12 S. E. 294, 11 L. R. A. 705). Quaere, as to effect of above section upon this subject, Id.; Williams v. Watkins, 92 Va. 685, 24 S. E. 223; 2 Va. Law Reg. 179.

This statute clearly contemplates that, even in the case of real estate, the householder may alien his homestead free from liens that are not paramount thereto. Much more would this be true in the case of personal estate. Williams v. Watkins, supra.

The householder himself ought not to be required to give bond and security to have the corpus of the homestead forthcoming at the expiration of the homestead period. Williams v. Watkins, 92 Va. 680, 24 S. E. 223; Mahoney v. James, 94 Va. 176, 26 S. E. 384. Nor should the widow or the guardian of the infant children of the householder be required to do so. Mahoney v. James, 94 Va. 176, 26 S. E. 384. But see 2 Va. Law Reg. 897; Clendenning v. Conrad, 91 Va. 410, 21 S. E. 818.

It is plain that the property held as a homestead exemption which remains after said exemption expires can be subjected to the debts of the said householder. Hanby's Adm'r v. Henritze's Adm'r, 85 Va. 177, 185, 7 S. E. 204.

a suit to enforce the lien after the householder's death, leaving neither widow nor minor child, instituted more than twenty years after the issue of execution, was barred. Akiss' Ex'rs v. Satchell, 104 Va. 700, 52 S. E. 378, 11 Va. Law Reg. 886.

Discussed, 1 Va. Law J. 261.

Sec. 6551. Judgments or decrees on instruments waiving the homestead or on demands against which the homestead cannot be claimed to embody the fact; the same on the executions issued thereon.—Whenever a judgment or decree is rendered on an instrument waiving the homestead or upon a demand against which the homestead cannot be claimed the court shall include in its judgment or decree words to the following effect, as the case may be: "Upon an instrument waiving the homestead," or "upon a claim against which the homestead cannot be demanded." This statement shall be endorsed upon the executions issued upon said judgments or decrees. In any action or suit when it is not apparent from the face of the pleadings that the demand is not subject to the homestead exemption the plaintiff shall not have the benefit of the foregoing section unless in his declaration he alleges that his demand is not subject to such homestead exemption. But no presumption of non-waiver or that the judgment or decree was rendered upon a demand against which homestead could be claimed is to be drawn from the silence of any judgment, execution, or decree on the matters provided for by this section. (1889-90, p. 117.)

The fact that a judgment erroneously states that it was rendered on an instrument waiving the homestead does not vitiate the judgment, but it may be amended in that respect. Long v. Pence's Committee, 93 Va. 584, 25 S. E. 593.

Sec. 6552. The articles which a householder, in addition to the foregoing exemption, may hold exempt from levy or distress.—In addition to the estate, not exceeding in value two thousand dollars, which every householder residing in this State shall be entitled to hold exempt, as provided in the preceding sections of this chapter, he shall also be entitled to hold exempt from levy or distress the following articles, or so much or so many thereof as he may have, to be selected by him or his agents, except that the live stock so exempted under this and the following sections of this chapter shall not be exempt from any levy or distress made under the provisions of chapter one hundred and thirty-seven of this Code:

First. The family Bible.

Second. Family pictures, school books, and library for the use of the family, not exceeding in all one hundred dollars in value.

Third. A seat or pew in any house or place of public worship.

Fourth. A lot in a burial ground.

Fifth. All necessary wearing apparel of the debtor and his family; all beds, bedsteads, and bedding necessary for the use of such family; and all stoves and appendages put up and kept for the necessary use of the family, not exceeding three.

Sixth. One cow and her calf till one year old, one horse, six chairs, six plates, one table, six knives, six forks, one dozen spoons, two dishes, two basins, one pot, one oven, six pieces of wooden or earthenware, one loom and its appurtenances, one safe or press, one spinning wheel, one pair of cards, one axe, two hoes; fifty bushels of shelled corn, or, in lieu thereof, twenty-five bushels of rye or buckwheat; five bushels of wheat, or one barrel of flour; twenty bushels of potatoes, two hundred pounds of bacon or pork, three hogs, fowls not exceeding in value ten dollars, ten dollars in value of forage or hay, one cooking stove and utensils for cooking therewith, one sewing machine, and in the case of a mechanic, the tools and utensils of his trade, not exceeding one hundred dollars in value, and in case of an oysterman or fisherman, his boat and tackle, not exceeding two hundred dollars in value; if the boat and tackle exceed two hundred dollars in value the same shall be sold, and out of the proceeds the oysterman or fisherman shall first receive two hundred dollars in lieu of such boat and tackle. (Code 1887, § 3650; 1889-90, p. 102; 1901-2, p. 48.)

Revisors' Note.—The words, "fifty bushels of shelled corn," appearing in the sixth sub-division of this section, are used in lieu of "ten barrels of corn." This change settles a much disputed question.

Sec. 6553. Additional articles which are exempted to householder, while engaged in agriculture.—If the householder be at the time actually engaged in the business of agriculture, there shall also be exempt from such levy or distress, while he is so engaged, to be selected by him or his agent, the following articles, or so many thereof as he may have, to-wit: one yoke of oxen, or a pair of horses or mules in lieu thereof (unless he selects or has selected a horse or mule under the preceding section, in which case he shall be entitled to select under this section only one), with the necessary gearing, one wagon or cart, two plows, one drag, one harvest cradle, one pitchfork, one rake, and two iron wedges. Sec. 6555. What wages of a laboring man, who is a householder, are exempt.—Wages owing to a laboring man being a householder, not exceeding fifty dollars per month, shall also be exempt from distress, levy, or garnishment. (Code 1887, § 3652.)

For note upon constitutionality of this section, see 9 Va. Law Reg. 458.

Sec. 6556. Proceedings by execution debtor to have wages declared exempt.—If summons in garnishment to enforce an execution issued on a judgment obtained against a laboring man who is a householder, be served on any employer of such householder, the execution debtor may, after five days' written notice to the execution creditor and to the employer, apply to the justice issuing such execution, or to the court, or judge thereof in vacation, from whose clerk's office such execution issued, as the case may be, to have so much of the wages of said execution debtor as does not exceed fifty dollars per month declared to be exempt from the execution. Such application shall be informally heard forthwith, and if it shall appear that the wages, or any part thereof, are exempt, such court, judge, or justice shall declare that the amount of wages so found to be exempt is not subject to the execution. The remedy given in this section shall be available to the execution debtor if no summons in garnishment be served, but notice of the outstanding execution is otherwise received by the employer.

Revisors' Note.—This section is new, and it purpose is to give the laboring man who is a househoder a summary remedy to have his wages not exceeding fifty dollars per month declared exempt, so that the employer may feel safe in paying the wages to that extent when due, regardless of the return day of the summons in garnishment. Ofttimes heretofore employers summoned in garnishment proceedings, fearing a liability upon themselves even when the wages were less than fifty dollars per month, or when more than fifty dollars per month, fearing a liability for the whole amount, refused to pay the wages, or any part thereof, until the garnishment proceedings were disposed of. The result was to tie up the wages until the return day of the summons in garnishment, which in many cases caused much distress to the laboring man and his family. Under the remedy given the laboring man by this section, employers will have no ground whatever for refusing to pay the wages, when due, to the extent of the lawful exemption.

Sec. 6557. Protection of laboring men who are householders against being deprived of the exemption under section sixty-five hundred and fifty-five.—It shall be unlawful for any person to institute or permit to be instituted proceedings in his own name or in the name of any other person, or to assign or transfer, either for or without value, any claim for debt or liability of any kind held by him against a resident of this State who is a laboring man and a householder for the purpose of having payment of the same or any part thereof enforced out of the wages exempted by section sixty-five hundred and fifty-five by proceedings in attachment or garnishment in courts or before justices of the peace in any other State than in the State of Virginia, or to send out of this State by assignment, transfer, or in any other manner whatsoever, either for or without value, any claim or debt against any resident thereof for the purpose or with the intent of depriving such person of the right to have his wages exempt from distress, levy, or garnishment according to the provisions of section sixty-five hundred and fifty-five. And the person instituting such suit or permitting such suit to be instituted, or sending, assigning, or transferring any such claim or debt for the purpose or with the intent aforesaid shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars, and shall, in addition thereto, be liable in an action of debt to the person from whom payment of the same, or any part thereof, shall have been enforced by attachment or garnishment or otherwise, elsewhere than in the State of Virginia, for the full amount, payment whereof shall have been so enforced, together with interest thereon and the costs of the attachment or garnishee proceedings, as well as the costs of said action.

The amount recovered in such action shall stand on the same footing with the wages of the plaintiff under section sixty-five hundred and fifty-five and shall also be exempt and free from any and all liability of the plaintiff to the defendant in the way of set-off or otherwise.

The fact that the payment of a claim or debt against any person entitled to the exemption provided for in section sixty-five hundred and fifty-five has been enforced by legal proceedings in some State other than the State of Virginia in such manner as to deprive such person to any extent of the benefit of such exemption shall be prima facie evidence that any resident of this State who may at any time have been owner or holder of said claim or debt has violated this section. (1895-6, p. 324; 1897-8, p. 667.)

See Burks' Pleading and Practice, pp. 89, 664, 809.

Sec. 6558. Exemption of the wages of minors from garnishment process.—The wages of a minor shall not be liable to garnishment, or otherwise liable to the payment of the debts of parents. (1897-8, p. 599.)

Sec. 6559. Garnishment of and levy of execution on wages and salaries of State employees.—Unless otherwise exempted, the wages and salaries of all employees of this State, other than State officers, shall be subject to garnishment or execution upon any judgment rendered against them. Whenever the salary or wages of such employees as above mentioned shall be garnisheed under this section, the process shall be such as is usual in other cases of garnishment, and shall be served on the judgment debtor and on the Auditor of Public Accounts, or other officer through whom the judgment debtor's salary or wages is paid, and upon such service the Auditor or such other officer shall, on or before the return day of process, transmit to the clerk of the court or justice issuing the process a certificate showing the amount due from the State to such judgment debtor, up to the return day of the process, which amount said Auditor shall hold subject to order of the court or justice issuing the process. Said certificate shall be evidence of all facts therein stated, unless the court or justice direct that the deposition of the Auditor, or such other officer through whom the judgment debtor's salary or wages is paid, be taken, in which event the deposition of said Auditor or such other officer shall be taken in his office and returned to the clerk of the court in which the garnishment is or to the justice issuing the process, just as other depositions are returned, and in no such case shall the Auditor or other such officer be required to leave his office to testify. In all proceedings under this section, if the judgment be for the plaintiff, the amount found to be due the judgment debtor by the State shall be paid as directed by the court or justice. (1899-00, p. 546; 1902-3-4, p. 136.)

Revisors' Note.—The act from which this section is taken permitted garnishment of the salaries of all State officials and employees. The revisors were of opinion that the State should not be garnished in any case, but knowing that the law had operated beneficially and effectively as to mere day laborers and employees of the State, enabling them to get credit when otherwise they could not have secured it, they struck out the provision concerning State officers and limited the revised section to employees. The places of mere employees could, in most instances, be more readily supplied than those of State officers, and if, for instance, the salaries of the Governor, Attorney-General and judges could be entirely taken away by garnishment, the State might at some time be left impotent to discharge its functions.

TITLE 63.

Repeal of Statutes.

CHAPTER 275.

Repeal of Acts of a General Nature.

Sec.
6567. When this Code to go into effect, and all acts of a general nature be repealed.
6568. Acts passed by General Assembly between January 9, 1918, and January 13, 1920, not affected.
6569. Effect of such repeal.
6570. Nothing in Code to operate discontinuance of any pending case; of a notice, recognizance, or process given, taken, or issued before Code in force; where books, records, and papers in custody of clerks, to remain.
6571. How persons in office affected by said repeal.

Sec. 6567. When this Code to go into effect, and all acts of a general nature be repealed.—All the provisions of the preceding chapters shall be in force upon and after the thirteenth day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty; and all acts and parts of acts of a general nature, in force at the time of the adoption of this Code, shall be repealed from and after the said thirteenth day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty, with such limitations and exceptions as are hereinbefore or hereinafter expressed. (Code 1887, § 4202.)

Revisors' Note.—As reported by the revisors this chapter fixed January 1, 1919, as the date for the Code to go into effect, but the General Assembly amended the chapter and made the date January 13, 1920.

The act of 1852 authorizing the voluntary incorporation of building fund associations was an act of a general nature, and was repealed by section 4202 of the Code of 1887. Crabtree v. O. D. B. & L. A., 95 Va. 670, 29 S. E. 741, 64 Am. St. Rep. 818.

Section 4202 of the Code of 1887 repealed act of March 9, 1880, as to the action of ejectment in certain counties, as that act was a general law. Carter's Heirs v. Ewards, 88 Va. 205, 13 S. E. 352.

An election held July 1, 1886, under act of February 26, 1886, was not invalidated by repeal of that act after May 1, 1888, by section 4202 of the Code of 1887. Thomas v. Com., 90 Va. 92, 17 S. E. 788.

Cited but not construed, Bertram v. Commonwealth, 108 Va. 902, 62 S. E. 969.

See remarks of Judge E. C. Burks on chapter 206 of the Code of 1887 (corresponding to this chapter), 2 Barton, L. Pr. (2d Ed.) 1374.

Sec. 6568. Acts passed by General Assembly between January ninth, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and January thirteenth, nineteen hundred and twenty, not affected.—The enactment of this Code shall not affect any act passed by the General Assembly, which shall have become a law after the ninth day of January, nineteen hundred and eighteen, and before the thirteenth day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty; but every such act shall have full effect, and so far as the same varies from or conflicts with any provision contained in this Code, it shall have effect as a subsequent act, and as repealing any part of this Code inconsistent therewith. (Code 1887, § 4203.)

Act (Ex. Sess. 1887, p. 118) passed April 28, 1887, and Act (1887-8, p. 486) passed March 5, 1888, amendatory thereof, were not affected by the adoption of the Code of 1887, and the repeal of all acts and parts of acts of a general nature in force at the time of its adoption. Somers' Case, 97 Va. 760, 33 S. E. 381.

An act passed January 18, 1888, amending section 674 of the Code of 1887 was given full effect under this section, and section 674 of that Code never became a law. Powell's Ex'r v. City of Richmond, 94 Va. 79, 81, 26 S. E. 389.

Section 4203 of the Code of 1887 (same as this section, with the exception of the dates,) was held to apply to acts of a general nature, and not to acts of incorporation, which are private acts. Va. Dev. Co. v. Crozer Iron Co., 90 Va. 126, 133, 17 S. E. 806, 44 Am. St. Rep. 893.

Sec. 6569. Effect of such repeal.—Such repeal shall not affect any offense or act committed or done, or any penalty or forfeiture incurred, or any right established, accrued, or accruing before the said thirteenth day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty, or any prosecution, suit, or proceeding pending on that day, except that the proceedings thereafter had shall conform, so far as practicable, to the provisions of this Code; and where any penalty, forfeiture, or punishment is mitigated by those provisions, such provisions may, with the consent of the party affected, be applied to any judgment to be pronounced after that day: and such repeal, as to any statute of limitations, under which the bar of a right of action or remedy is complete at the time the repeal takes effect, shall not be deemed a removal of such bar, but the bar shall continue, notwithstanding such repeal. (Code 1887, § 4204.)

This section reverses the rule laid down in Scutt's Case, 2 Va. Cas. 54; Attoo's Case, Id. 382; Leftwich's Case, 5 Rand. 657; Pitman's Case, 2 Rob. 800, 813. See, also, Pegram's Case, 1 Leigh 569; Allen's Case, 2 Leigh 727, 731; Wyatt's Case, 6 Rand. 694.

Repeal of statute by implication—Not favored.—A repeal of a statute by implication is not favored by the courts. A statute will not be repealed by implication unless the latter statute is so inconsistent with the first that they cannot stand together, or the latter embraces the whole subject-matter of the first. Hogan v. Gulgon, 29 Grat. 705; Fox's Adm'rs v. Com., 16 Grat. 1; McCready v. Com., 27 Grat. 982; Davies v. Creighton, 33 Grat. 696; Haynes v. Com., 31 Grat. 96; Ryan v. Com., 80 Va. 385; Fulkerson v. Treasurer of City of Bristol, 95 Va. 5, 27 S. E. 815; Somers' Case, 97 Va. 759, 33 S. E. 381.

General revision—Presumption as to change of old law.—When there has been a general revision of the laws, the presumption is that the old law was not intended to be changed, unless a contrary intention plainly appears in the new. Harrison v. Wissler, 98 Va. 597, 36 S. E. 982.

Proceedings conformed to new Code.—A case in which the proceedings were made to conform to the Code of 1887, though the case arose before the same went into effect. Edmunds' Ex'r v. Bruce, 88 Va. 1007, 14 S. E. 840.

Defense once valid subsists.—If a party shows a defense valid at the time it is passed on by the court, a subsequent change in the law cannot deprive him thereof. Currin v. Spraull, 10 Grat. 145, 148.

Inchoate rights.—Inchoate rights derived under a statute are lost by the repeal of the statute before they are perfected, unless expressly saved by express words in the repealing statute. Crawford v. Halsted, &c., 20 Grat. 211.

Generally.—See section 6 and notes.

For W. Va. decisions on similar statute, see Justis' Annotations, chapter 166, section 2.

Sec. 6570. Nothing in Code to operate discontinuance of any pending case; of a notice, recognizance, or process given, taken, or issued before Code in force; where books, records, and papers in custody of clerks, to remain.—Although a notice, recognizance, or process shall have been given, taken, or issued before the day prescribed for the commencement of this Code, it may, nevertheless, be given, taken, or returnable to a day after such commencement, or to a court established by this Code or the clerk's office of such court, in like manner as if this Code had commenced before the same was given, taken, or issued. And nothing in this Code shall operate to discontinue any cause or matter, civil or criminal, which shall be depending and undetermined in any court on the day before this Code takes effect; but every such cause and matter shall be proceeded in, tried and determined in such court, or in the court which succeeds to or has its jurisdiction. The papers and records of such causes and matters, and all books, records and papers whatever which on the said day may be in the custody of any clerk of a court shall remain in custody of the clerk of the same, or of such court as succeeds to or has its jurisdiction. Code 1887, § 3125.)

Sec. 6571. How persons in office affected by said repeal.—All persons who, at the time when the said repeal takes effect, shall hold any office under any of the acts hereby repealed, shall continue to hold the same according to the tenure thereof, except those offices which may have been abolished, and those as to which a different provision is made by this Code. (Code 1887, § 4205.)

Schedule C.

Sec. 8. Personal property in choses in action, etc.—The classification under "Schedule C" shall be as follows:

First. The list and statement shall be signed and sworn to by the taxpayer before the commissioner of the revenue or some notary public, or some person authorized to administer oaths, who shall certify that said list was signed and sworn to before him. The commissioner shall sign the lists and determine the value of the bonds, notes and other evidences of debt therein enumerated, subject to an appeal from his valuation to the circuit, county or corporation court. The said list and statement shall include bonds of railroad and canal companies, bonds of counties, cities, towns, located outside of the State of Virginia, and bonds of other States and corporations, bonds of individuals, and all demands and claims, however evidenced, whether due or not, from debtors residing out of or within the State, city or county, whether secured by a deed of trust or by judgment or not, deducting from the aggregate amount thereof all such bonds, demands or claims not otherwise deducted owing to others as such principal debtor, and not as a guarantor, endorser or surety; but not deducting any voluntary obligation nor any money that may be due to others on account of the purchase of securities which are non-taxable; but no bond, demand or claim constituting a part of the capital, as defined in this act of the business done out of this State, or any capital used by any merchant or manufacturer, and taxed under this act, shall be included in this section. No credit shall be given for debts due, nor deductions made, unless such taxpayer shall append to said list an inventory showing the persons and address to whom said demands or debts are owing and the amount of each.

The list and statement herein provided for shall be delivered by said commissioner to the clerk of the circuit, county or corporation court of his county or city, who shall file the same in his office, properly labeled, keeping the list for each year separate. If any person, firm or corporation shall, with a view to evade the payment of taxes, fail or refuse to make out and deliver under oath such list and statement as herein provided for of any such bonds, notes or other evidences of debt, then the omitted evidences of debt shall not be recoverable, by action at law or suit in equity in any of the courts of this Commonwealth or by any legal process, or by sale under deed of trust, or otherwise, until they shall have been reported for assessment and the taxes paid thereon for the years that they should have been paid, with an addition of fifty per centum of the amount of said unpaid taxes; and the failure to make out such list and statement to the said commissioner shall be taken as prima facie evidence of the intention to so evade payment of taxes.

But where in any action at law or suit in equity it is ascertained that there are unpaid taxes and penalties on the evidence of debt sought to be enforced, and the suitor makes affidavit that he is unable to pay these taxes and penalty, but is willing for the same to be paid out of the first recovery on the evidence of debt, the court shall have authority to enter as a part of any judgment or decretal order in said proceedings that the amount of taxes and penalties due and owing shall be paid to the proper officer out of the first collection on said judgment or decree.

Second. All capital of persons, firms and corporations employed in a trade or business not otherwise taxed; and, in case of a corporation when all of such capital is taxed by this State, the shares of its stock in the hands of individual shareholders shall not be further taxed for State purposes. But real estate belonging to such persons, firms and corporations shall not be held to be capital, but shall be listed and taxed as real estate.

Capital as used in the tax laws shall be defined as follows:

1. Inventory of stock on hand, which shall include all raw materials for use of the business, whether at the place of business, in storage, or elsewhere in the State.

2. The excess of bills and accounts receivable over bills and accounts payable.

3. All machinery and tools not taxed as real estate.

4. Money on hand and on deposit.

5. All other property of any kind whatsoever, including all choses in action, equities, demands and claims.

Capital used or employed in business as above defined shall, wherever the laws of this State require a tax on capita, be taxed at the rate prescribed by law.

Every person, firm and corporation engaged in a business whose capital is subject by the laws of this State to taxation, is hereby required to keep accounts showing the above items, which shall at all times be open to the inspection of the commissioners of the revenue, the examiners of records, local boards of review, and the State advisory board of taxation; and every such person, firm or corporation shall be required to make a return under oath to the commissioner of the revenue, on forms prescribed by the Auditor of Public Accounts, showing the items of capital as above defined, and also the bills and accounts payable which were used as deductions in order to ascertain the amount under section 2 in the above definition of capital, and the names, addresses, of the parties to whom said bills and accounts are due, and the various amounts constituting said indebtedness, and shall further certify that such indebtedness was made in the usual course of business of said company, firm or corporation.

Nothing herein shall prevent cities and towns of this Commonwealth from imposing a license tax on merchants, mercantile firms or corporations based on their purchases, in pursuance of their respective charters, or of the general laws of the State for the government of cities and towns.

Where any person, firm or corporation domiciled and doing business in this State maintains a branch of such business outside of this State, no part of the capital of such person, firm or corporation permanently invested in any such branch of its business, nor any intangible assets, arising from business originating at any such branch and transacted outside of this State, shall be considered as situated in this State for the purpose of taxation or be assessed with taxes in this State—any statutory provisions or rule of construction to the contrary notwithstanding—it being the intent and purpose of this provision to exact of citizens of this State no higher or greater tax than that exacted of non-residents doing business in this State.

in this schedule, shall be the county or incorporated community in which they are physically located. Which items of capital shall be taxed by such localities as other capital is taxed by localities, at the rate prescribed by law, and not as tangible personal property, and it shall be the duty of the said person, firm or corporation to make returns of such capital, stating the county or city where located, to the commissioner of revenue at the point in the State wherein the person resides, wherein the principal offices of the partnership or corporation is located in this State; and if any of the said items contained in classes one, three and four in the above definition of capital be located in any county or city, other than in that in which the said return is required to be made, then the commissioner of the revenue to whom such return is made shall make two copies thereof and shall forward one copy to the commissioners of the revenue at the points where said property is located, and one copy to the Auditor of Public Accounts, and the commissioners of the revenue receiving same shall enter upon their books such of said property as may be located in their county or city for taxation, as other capital is listed, and shall assess the same as required by section four hundred and ninety-two of chapter twenty-four of the Code of Virginia, as amended.

Provided, however, that whenever any of the items in said clauses one, three and four shall be located at a point or points other than that in which the return is made, and whenever any deduction of bills and accounts payable shall be allowed any taxpayer, the entire amount of such bills and accounts payable shall not be deducted from the amount of capital assessed where such return is made, but the same shall be distributed in such ratable proportion as the value of the capital located in such other point or points shall bear to the entire amount of capital assessed against the taxpayer. The commissioner of the revenue to whom the return is made shall certify the proper ratable amount of such deduction to the commissioner of the revenue at such other point or points, who shall accordingly deduct said amount from the value of the property assessed in his jurisdiction.

In making return of capital in business according to the method defined above the return shall be made as of February the first, provided the taxpayer at his option may make return as shown by average of February the first of the current year and August first preceding.

Third. The value of the principal of personal estate and credits other than tangible personal property and money under the control of a court receiver or commissioner, in pursuance of an order, judgment or decree of any court, or in the hands or under the control of an executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, agent, or other fiduciary; and the principal estate and credits other than tangible personal property and money deposited to the credit of any suit and not in the hands of a receiver or other fiduciary.

Fourth. All money other than money used or employed in any trade or business not otherwise taxed on deposit with any bank or other corporation or firm or persons, or in the possession or under control of the owner, whether such money be actually in or out of this State and belonging to a citizen of this State, which shall include certificates of deposit of any bank, banking association, trust or security company; provided, that money as herein defined, shall not be liable to taxation by any of the counties, cities, towns, school districts or other local sub-divisions of this State. All money under the control of a court receiver or commissioner in pursuance of an order, judgment or decree of any court or in the hands or under the control of an executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, agent, or other fiduciary; and all moneys deposited to the credit of any suit, and not in the hands of a receiver or other fiduciary.

Fifth. All shares of stock of corporations or joint stock companies, except such corporations and joint stock companies all of whose capital is taxed by this State, or which pay a franchise tax in this State, and banks, banking associations, trust and security companies, and insurance companies, which are otherwise taxed in this State.

Sixth. All bonds of counties, cities and towns, or other political sub-divisions of this State.

2. This act shall be in force on and after February first, nineteen hundred and nineteen. (1908, p. 322; 1915, pp. 98, 160; 1916, p. 65[5]; 1918, p. 171.)

The word "capital" as defined in sub-section 4 applies as well to corporations as to individuals conducting the same business. Bridgewater Man. Co. v. Funkhouser, 115 Va. 476, 79 S. E. 1074, 19 Va. L. Reg. 830 and note. (Decided before the amendments of 1915 and subsequent amendments.)

The meaning of the word "capital" as defined in sub-section 4 of this section was intended to apply also to capital as used in sub-sections 2 and 3. Bridgewater Man. Co. v. Funkhouser, 115 Va. 476, 79 S. E. 1074, 19 Va. L. Reg. 830 and note. (Decided before the amendments of 1915 and subsequent amendments.)

The capital employed in the business of a miller is taxable under this section. Bridgewater Man. Co. v. Funkhouser, 115 Va. 476, 79 S. E. 1074, 19 Va. L. Reg. 830 and note. (Decided in 1913.)

The capital which is taxable is the amount invested in the business, and not the nominal capitalization of the company which is divided into shares and sold to the stockholders. Bridgewater Man. Co. v. Funkhouser, 115 Va. 476, 79 S. E. 1074, 19 Va. L. Reg. 830 and note. (Decided before the amendments of 1915 and subsequent amendments.)

Under the definition of the word "capital" appearing in this section as it stood in Acts 1908, p. 322, it was held that tangible property of a manufacturer on hand for the purpose of manufacture or sale should be listed as "capital" under Schedule C and not as tangible personal property under Schedule B. Furthermore, that moneys and credits of all kinds actively used and employed in the business should likewise be listed as "capital." Com. v. United Cig. Machine Co., 119 Va. 447, 89 S. E. 935.

Under this section as it stood in Acts 1908, p. 322, it was held that the "capital" of a foreign manufacturing corporation was taxable in this State where every function of the company's corporate existence was performed here exclusively, except the single formal act of auditing the company's accounts, and where the evidences of the "credits" were all lodged and kept in the company's office located in this State. The third sub-division of the section as it appears in the act above referred to was held to apply to corporations, foreign or domestic, which were engaged in the manufacturing business in this State. Com. v. United Cig. Machine Co., 119 Va. 447, 89 S. E. 935.

Under the provisions of this section and sections 2307, 2308 and 2309 of the Code, money arising from the sale of a debtor's personal property at the suit of creditors and on deposit in bank, is amenable to taxes before a report of debts has been made, but not after. Myers v. Com., 110 Va. 600, 66 S. E. 824. (Decided in 1910.)

The "moneys and credits actively used and employed in carrying on the trade or business" are all taxable though a part of the money may have been borrowed. No deduction can be made on that account. Bridgewater Man. Co. v. Funkhouser, 115 Va. 476, 79 S. E. 1074, 19 Va. L. Reg. 830 and note (Decided before the amendments of 1915 and subsequent amendments.)

Under this section as it stood in Acts 1908, p. 322, it was held that while it required the commissioner of the revenue to list the property of persons, natural or artificial, residing in his district, yet section 494 of the Code of 1887 (section 2310 of this Code) contemplates not only that the property of persons residing in the commissioner's district, but also that of persons, firms and corporations that reside or do business in his district, or have an office therein shall be listed by the commissioner. Com. v. United Cig. Machine Co., 119 Va. 447, 89 S. E. 935.

Sec. 9. Taxes on intangible personal property.—The taxes on intangible personal property shall be as follows: On all property embraced in classes one, three and five in this schedule, there shall be a tax of sixty-five cents on every hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, and on all property embraced in class two of this schedule, there shall be a tax of seventy cents on every hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, which shall be paid into the State treasury and applied to the payment of the expenses of the government. And any city in this State may levy a tax on such property assessed to residents therein at a rate not to exceed thirty cents on the one hundred dollars on the assessed valuation thereof; and the board of supervisors of any county may levy a district road tax on such property assessed to residents in any magisterial district proposed to be taxed for district purposes to be used exclusively for the construction and repair of public roads and bridges located within the magisterial district in which said levy is laid at a rate not to exceed thirty cents on the one hundred dollars of assessed valuation thereof, but this clause shall not be considered to authorize the board of supervisors of any county to levy such tax against the residents of any incorporated town within such magisterial district which maintains its own roads; and any incorporated town in this State which is exempt by statute or by the express provision of its charter from the payment of district road taxes, or which maintains its own roads, free of expense to the magisterial district, may levy a tax on such property assessed to residents therein at a rate not to exceed thirty cents on the one hundred dollars of assessed valuation thereof.

On all property embraced in class four in this schedule the tax shall be as provided by law. On all property embraced in class six in this schedule there shall be a tax of thirty-five cents on every one hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, which shall be paid into the treasury of the State. Provided, however, that from and out of the tax on all such property paid to and retained by the State for the expenses of the State government there shall be set aside ten cents on every hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, which shall be applied to the support of the public free schools of this State. Provided, further, however, that in the event any taxpayer shall fail, without just cause shown, to return for taxation any intangible personal property under the provisions of this schedule within the time prescribed by law, and it is ascertained thereafter that any such property has not been returned for taxation, it shall be assessed when discovered, and taxed at the full rate of taxation provided for real estate in this State, which shall include the State rate and the local rates and levies of the county, district, town or city wherein the owner or taxpayer has his legal residence.

The provisions of section eight and of this section of this schedule shall apply with equal force to any person or corporation representing in this State business interests that may claim a domicile elsewhere, the intent and purpose being that no non-resident person or corporation, either personally or through any agent, shall transact business here without paying to the State a corresponding tax with that exacted of its own citizens, and all bills receivable, obligations or credits and other intangible assets arising from the business done in this State are hereby declared assessable within this State and at the business domicile of said non-resident person or corporation, his or its agents or representative. (1915, pp. 98, 160; 1916, p. 655.)

The amending act contains the following: "The provisions of this act shall apply to the assessment and collection of State taxes and local levies in the year nineteen hundred and sixteen, and thereafter until otherwise provided by law."

Under the amendment of 1915 (Acts 1915, p. 163) it was held under this section that notes evidencing loans made by a non-resident on property situated in this State, and secured by deeds of trust thereon, were not taxable where the lender had not established a business in the State, had no agent here, and the evidences of debt were not kept in the State. Jamison v. Com., 120 Va. 137, 90 S. E. 640.

inheritances, devises and bequests shall be assessed under the provisions of this schedule.

Persons and corporations in reporting income for purposes of taxation shall be allowed the following deductions:

(a) Payments made within the year for salaries of officers, wages of employees and a reasonable allowance for services of co-partners or members of a firm actually rendered in producing such income, but no deduction shall be made for any amount paid for personal services unless there be reported the name and address and amount paid each such officer, employee or co-partner residing within the State to whom the sum of one thousand dollars or more shall have been paid during the assessment year.

(b) The necessary expenses actually paid within the year in carrying on the profession, occupation or business from which the income is derived, not including personal living or family expenses.

(f) Sums paid by the taxpayer within the year for taxes imposed by any State of this Union or possession thereof, upon the property, profession, occupation or business from which the income hereby taxed is derived; but not including assessments for local improvements or inheritance taxes wherever imposed.

(g) Dividends or profits received from stock or an interest in any corporation or co-partnership the income of which shall have been assessed under the provisions of this act, provided, that when only part of the income of any corporation or co-partnership shall have been assessed under this act only a corresponding part of the dividends or profits received therefrom shall be deducted.

(h) All interest paid within the year on existing indebtedness; provided, that the amount so deducted by any corporation or co-partnership shall not exceed one-half of the sum of its interest-bearing indebtedness and its paid up capital stock outstanding at the close of the year, or if no capital stock, the amount shall not exceed the sum of its net worth and one-half of its interest-bearing indebtedness as both stood at the close of the year; the actual amount paid during the year for repairs to and maintenance of buildings, the rent of which is reported as income, and all fire, tornado and casualty insurance premiums on property in this State due and paid during the year.

(i) No deduction shall be made for expenses chargeable to residence property occupied by its owner, nor for the depreciation thereof, and the annual value of estimated rental thereof shall not be included in the income subject to taxation.

Persons and corporations doing a part of their business within the State and a part without the State, and having offices or other regular places of business both within and without the State, shall be taxed only upon such income as is derived from business transacted and property located within the State, which may be determined by an allocation and separate accounting for such income when the books of such person or corporation show income realized from such transactions and property located within the State; otherwise such income shall be apportioned and determined as follows:

The gross business in dollars, of the person or corporation in the State, including the business of production measured by cost of production and the business of distribution or sales measured by the value of gross sales less the cost of production for the year ending December thirty-first, shall be added to the book value of the gross assets on the first day of January of the year for which return is being made, employed in the business within this State (with no deduction on account of any encumbrance thereon). The sum so obtained shall be the numerator of a fraction of which the denominator shall consist of the total gross business, as above defined, of the person or corporation both within and without the State, added to the total book value of the gross assets on the day last aforesaid, wherever employed in business (with no deduction on account of any encumbrance thereon). The proportion of the entire gross income of such person or corporation which is represented by the fraction so obtained shall be the gross income of such person or corporation returnable for taxation in this State, subject only to the exemptions and deductions hereinbefore provided for.

Guardians, trustees, executors, administrators, committees, agents, receivers, curators, conservators, and all persons or corporations acting in any fiduciary capacity, hereinafter called fiduciaries, shall make and render a verified list or return of the amount of income of every person for whom they act, subject to this tax, coming into their custody or control and management, and be subject to all of the provisions of this section which apply to individuals; provided that no deduction or exemption shall be allowed which has been otherwise claimed by or for any person for whom they act.

When the return of income has been made by a fiduciary according to the provisions of this section and the tax on same has been paid or withheld such income shall not be again taxed under this shedule when it is distributed or paid to the beneficiaries.

The Auditor of Public Accounts shall prepare and furnish to the commissioner of the revenue necessary forms of interrogatories for the assessment of the income tax, separate and distinct from other forms of interrogatories.

In entering the income tax returns for each year, the commissioners of the revenue shall not use for such entry the property book, or any other public record book, but shall use a special book, which shall be furnished by the Auditor of Public Accounts, and such book and the return blanks containing the statement of incomes shall be kept safely by the commissioners under lock and key except when in their personal possession, and shall not be inspected by any person not officially entitled to inspect them, and the commissioner shall not give to any person, except some other officer authorized by law, or by special order of a court of competent jurisdiction to receive the same, any information regarding such returns.

The treasurers of the several counties and cities of the State, and the Auditor of Public Accounts shall keep under lock and key all lists of individuals paying the tax upon incomes and shall not permit the same to be inspected, except by tax officers of this State; provided, that in the event the United States government, or any other State, allows this State's officials to examine its income tax returns, then this State shall allow an inspection of its income tax returns by proper officials of the United States government, or such other State, whose official duties require them to make such inspection; nor shall they give any information to any person other than those hereinbefore enumerated except in obedience to a decree or order of court of competent jurisdiction. (1908, p. 20; 1912, p. 572; 1914, p. 264; 1915, pp. 91, 113; 1916, p. 793; 1918, p. 392.)

Fees of lawyers are income within the meaning of the fifth clause of this section. Com. v. Werth, 116 Va. 604, 82 S. E. 695. (Decided under amendment of 1912.) As the section now reads, fees are expressly mentioned in the second paragraph designated (a).

The subject matter of this schedule is "income" and not the sources from which it is derived. Com. v. Werth, 116 Va. 604, 82 S. E. 695. (Decided in 1914.)

License and occupation taxes, which are payable in respect to the privilege of engaging in or carrying on a particular business or vocation, are not income taxes. Com. v. Werth, 116 Va. 604, 82 S. E. 695. (Decided in 1914.) See 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 375, 443.

Sec. 11. Tax on income.—On income, as defined in this schedule, the tax shall be one per centum and no city, town or county shall levy or assess any tax on income for municipal or county purposes, and any provision of any city or town charter in conflict with this act is hereby repealed; provided nothing herein contained shall be construed as imposing an income tax on any part of the receipts of any public service corporation which are now subject to a State franchise tax upon such receipts, or on insurance companies which may pay a State license tax on gross premiums, or on State and national banks, banking associations, trust and security companies, or on religious, educational, benevolent, and other corporations or associations of individuals not organized or conducted for pecuniary profit. On Business and Other Subjects.

Sec. 12. Tax on wills and administrations.—On the probate of every will or grant of administration, not exempt by law, there shall be a tax of one dollar, where the estate, real or personal or mixed, passing by such will or by intestacy of the decedent, shall not exceed one thousand dollars, and for every additional one hundred dollars, or fraction of one hundred, an additional tax of ten cents; and no one shall be permitted to qualify and act as executor or administrator until said tax shall have been paid; and should it thereafter appear that on the probate of said will or grant of administration the estate has been undervalued, the commissioner of accounts before whom the appraisement is directed to be filed, shall report such fact to the court, whereupon the said tax shall forthwith be paid to the clerk of the court in which said will was admitted to probate or letters of administration granted, and said estate shall not be distributed until such inventory has been filed and the tax paid.

When an estate is committed to a sheriff to be administered, he shall be required to pay said tax as soon as sufficient assets of said estate shall have come into his hands; provided, that said tax shall be charged only upon the value of such estate—real, personal or mixed—the legal situs of which for taxation was in Virginia during the lifetime of decedent. (1914, p. 487.)

Sec. 13. Tax on deeds and contracts.—On every deed, except a deed exempt from taxation by law, which is admitted to record, the tax shall be fifty cents where the consideration of the deed or the actual value of the property conveyed is three hundred dollars or less; where the consideration of the deed or the actual value of the property conveyed is over three hundred dollars and does not exceed one thousand dollars the tax shall be one dollar; where the consideration of the deed or the actual value of the property conveyed exceeds one thousand dollars there shall be paid ten cents additional on every hundred dollars or fraction thereof of such consideration or actual value; on deeds of trust or mortgages the tax shall be upon the amount of bonds or other obligations secured thereby. On deeds of trust or mortgages upon the works and property of a railroad or other internal improvement company, lying partly in this State and partly in another State, the tax shall be upon such proportion of the amount of bonds or other obligations secured thereby as the number of miles of the line of such company in this State bears to the whole number of miles of the line of such company conveyed by such deed; the tax on a deed of release shall be fifty cents; the tax on any deed of partition among joint tenants, tenants in common, or co-partners, shall be fifty cents. The tax on every deed, contract or agreement shall be determined and be collected by the clerk in whose office it is first offered for recordation and may thereafter be recorded in the office of any other clerk without the payment of any tax.

On every contract relating to real or personal property, except as hereinafter provided, which is admitted to record, the tax shall be fifty cents where the consideration or value contracted for is three hundred dollars or less; where the consideration or value contracted for is over three hundred dollars, and does not exceed one thousand dollars the tax shall be one dollar; where the consideration or value contracted for exceeds one thousand dollars there shall be paid ten cents additional on every hundred dollars or fraction thereof of such consideration or value contracted for.

On every contract or agreement relating to the sale of rolling stock or equipment (whether the title is reserved in the vendor or not), with a railroad corporation, or other corporation, or with a person, firm, or company, admitted to record, the tax shall be ten cents on every hundred dollars or fraction thereof, of the amount contracted for in such contract or agreement, except in the case of a railroad corporation lying partly in this State and partly in another State, in which case the tax shall be upon such proportion of the amount contracted for as the number of miles of the line of such railroad corporation in this State bears to the whole number of miles of line of such railroad corporation.

Any deed, contract, or will may be recorded in the same clerk's office when the record containing such deed, contract, or will, has been destroyed by fire or otherwise, free of tax. (1910, p. 488.)

An option contract is a right to purchase and the tax on recordation should be on the sum paid for the option, not the figure at which the land may be bought. Stearnes v. Goad, 111 Va. 834, 69 S. E. 1101.

The change in the language of this section made by the amendment of 1910 was not intended to increase the amount due for the recordation of deeds relating to real estate. The amendment and the original section have an identical legal effect. Saville v. Rountree, 111 Va. 832, 70 S. E. 850.

A tax on the recordation of a deed is not a tax on property, but a tax on the civil privilege of being allowed to avail oneself of the benefits and advantage of the registration laws of the State. Such a privilege is a proper subject of taxation. Pocahontas Collieries Co. v. Com., 113 Va. 108, 73 S. E. 446.

A deed of trust was given by the Pocahontas Colleries Co., conveying property lying partly in the State of Virginia and partly in the State of West Virginia, securing the payment of bonds, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $20,000,000. Held, a tax of $20,000, assessed by the clerk upon the recordation of the deed, was proper. Pocahontas Collieries Co. v. Com., 113 Va. 108, 73 S. E. 446.

The tax upon the recordation of a deed is not a tax upon property, but upon a civil privilege; and the power of the legislature to impose a tax upon such a privilege, to fix the amount thereof, and to classify the subjects upon which the tax is imposed is well-nigh unlimited, so long as the classification is reasonable. Saville v. Va. Ry. & P. Co., 114 Va. 444, 76 S. E. 954.

Pursuant to the terms of an after acquired property clause in a certain mortgage, the grantor in such mortgage executed a supplemental mortgage, conveying certain after acquired property to secure the same bonds which were secured by the first mortgage. Held, the tax required for recording the supplemental mortgage is the same as that required for recording the first mortgage. Saville v. Va. Ry. & P. Co., 114 Va. 444, 76 S. E. 954.

The tax on deeds of trust and mortgages should be, under the proper and long recognized construction of the statute providing therefor, computed upon the principal amount of the bonds or other obligations secured by such deeds of trust or mortgages. Va. Blue Ridge Ry. v. Kidd, 120 Va. 426, 91 S. E. 1075.

See 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 491, 536.

Deeds, wills, etc., not to be admitted to record until tax is paid, see section 2403 of the Code.

Sec. 14. Tax on suits.—When any original suit, whether commenced by writ or notice, ejectment or attachment, other than a summons to answer a suggestion, or other action, except a suit in chancery, is commenced in a county, circuit or corporation court, and in every case of removal or appeal of a cause from a justice's court to the county, circuit or corporation court, or upon any appeal from the decision of the board of supervisors of a county, or of an attachment issued by a justice and returnable to the county or circuit court, there shall be a tax thereon if the amount of the debt or demand for damages shall not exceed five hundred dollars, of one dollar; and when the debt or demand for damages exceeds five hundred dollars, there shall be an additional tax of ten cents for every hundred dollars, or fraction of one hundred dollars, of such debt or demand in excess of five hundred dollars; provided, that in all suits the plaintiff or his attorney may endorse upon his writ or notice the real amount claimed in his action, and the tax upon the said suit shall be fixed with reference to the amount so claimed.

Second. Upon every appeal, writ of error, or supersedeas in a circuit court, except as otherwise provided, there shall be a tax of three dollars; and on every appeal, writ of error, or supersedeas in the Supreme Court of Appeals, there shall be a tax of six dollars; which, if not paid within thirty days from the granting of such appeal, the said appeal shall be dismissed.

Third. Upon every chancery suit, originating either in a corporation or circuit court, there shall be a tax of one dollar and fifty cents.

Fourth. Upon every writ of mandamus sued out of any court there shall be a tax of three dollars.

The dismissal of an appeal for failure to comply with a mandatory statute as payment of the register's fee for his return is held in Lohrstorfer v. Lohrstorfer (Mich.), 70 L. R. A. 621, to confer a vested right which cannot be impaired by a subsequent statute permitting the reinstatement of appeals within a specified time upon proof that the fee has been paid in the interim. 12 Va. Law Reg. 75.

Sec. 15. When tax to be paid.—No clerk shall issue any writ, or docket any removed or appealed warrant, or any notice mentioned in the fourteenth section, or record any deed or will or grant any letter or certificate of administration, until the tax thereon shall be paid.

The tax on suit is to be paid to the clerk, see section 2401 of the Code.

Sec. 16. Tax on seals.—When the seal of the State, of a court, or notary public is affixed to any paper, except in the cases exempted by law, the tax shall be as follows: For the seal of the State, two dollars, and for the seal of a court or notary, one dollar, and herein shall be included a tax on a scroll or any impression on paper in the place of a seal, or having the force and effect of a seal, and the said tax, except in the case of the seal of the State, shall be collected and paid in the following manner:

All seals taxable under this act, except the seal of the State, are hereby declared illegal and of no effect, and shall not be received or accepted as a legal notarial or court seal in any court of the State, unless the same shall be superimposed upon an adhesive stamp in such manner as to cancel said stamp which adhesive stamp shall be supplied in the manner and form hereinafter provided for.

It shall be the duty of the Auditor of Public Accounts, by and with the advice of the Attorney General and the Treasurer of the State, to cause to be prepared suitable adhesive stamps, of such size and design as may be best adapted to the purpose, and to furnish the same to the treasurer and county clerk of each county and the treasurer of each city in the State in such quantities as may be necessary, charging the said treasurers and clerks on the books of his office with the said stamps at the rate of one dollar each.

The several county and city treasurers and county clerks shall be held accountable under their official bonds for all such stamps so furnished them in the same manner as they are now held accountable for State moneys or other property coming into their hands.

It shall be the duty of the said county and city treasurers and county clerks at all times to keep on hand a supply of said stamps and to sell the same to any person wishing to purchase them, charging therefor the sum of one dollar each, and for such service the several county and city treasurers and county clerks shall receive a commission of five per centum on all stamps sold.

The treasurer of each county and city and county clerks shall report annually, on the first day of July, to the Auditor of Public Accounts, the number of adhesive stamps sold by him during the preceding twelve months, and shall at once pay into the treasury the money received for the same, less his commission.

All mutilated or unused stamps may be returned to the Auditor of Public Accounts under such regulations as he may provide, and when so returned, proper credit shall be given on the books of his office.

In all cases, in which no tax is required by law, the officer affixing the seal shall certify that it is a case in which, by the laws of Virginia, no tax is required upon the seal so affixed by him.

In any case in which a tax is required upon a seal, and the officer affixing the same shall fail to use the adhesive stamp herein provided for, or shall make a false certificate that no tax is required, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of twenty dollars for each offense, which shall be recovered and paid as are other fines due the Commonwealth; and any person who makes, or knowing the same to be false or counterfeit, sells, uses, or has in his possession any false or counterfeit stamps or die for printing or making the same, which is in imitation of or purports to be a lawful stamp or die, or who knowingly procures the same to be done, shall for each offense be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the State penitentiary for a period of not less than one, nor more than five years.

For seals upon which no tax is charged, see Code, section 2402. The tax on the seal of the State is to be paid to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, see Code, section 2401.

For discussion as to when adhesive stamps need not be used with notaries' seals, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 776.

Sec. 17. Tax on banks, banking associations, trust and security companies.—No tax shall be assessed upon the capital of any bank or banking association organized under the authority of this State or of the United States, nor upon capital of any trust or security company chartered by this State, but the stockholders in such banks, banking associations, trust and security companies shall be assessed and taxed on their shares of stock therein. Each bank, banking association, trust and security company aforesaid, on the first day of February in each year, shall make up and return to the commissioner of the revenue of the county, city or town, or district in which said bank, banking association, trust or security company is located, a report in which shall be given the names and residences of all its stockholders, the number and actual value of the shares of stock held by each stockholder. From the total value of the shares of stock of any such bank, banking association, trust or security company, which shall be ascertained by adding together its capital, surplus and undivided profits, there shall be deducted the assessed value of its real estate otherwise taxed in this State, or if the title to the building in which any such bank, banking association, trust or security company does its business, and the land on which it stands, is held in the name of a separate corporation, in which such bank, banking association, trust or security company owns all or a majority of the stock, and such real estate be otherwise taxed in this State, then there shall be deducted from the value of the shares of stock of such bank such proportion of the assessed value of said real estate as the stock it owns in such holding corporations bears to the whole issue of stocks in such corporation; and the actual value of each share of stock shall be its proportion of the remainder. The owners of the shares of stock of such bank, banking associations, trust or security companies, shall be entitled to no deduction from the taxable value of their shares because of the personal indebtedness of such owners or for any other reason whatsoever; provided, that it is declared to be the purpose and intent of this section that when the affairs of any such bank or banking association, or trust or security company are being wound up under the provisions of an act approved March fifteenth, nineteen hundred and twelve, being chapter three hundred and forty-four of the Acts of Assembly of nineteen hundred and twelve, entitled an act to amend and re-enact section one thousand one hundred and sixty-nine of the Code of Virginia, as heretofore amended, the assets of such bank or banking association or trust or security company so being wound up, shall continue to be and constitute the capital of such bank or banking association, or trust or security company, and that no tax shall be assessed thereon, as such capital.

Returns of such assets of February first of each year shall be made up by those having actual custody or control thereof as the same is held and the commissioner of the revenue shall assess the tax thereon against those holding said funds at the rate provided for the taxation of money, and said assessment shall as to such funds be in lieu of all taxes against those beneficially interested therein, but if any surplus shall remain after payment of depositors and creditors in full, such surplus, together with the names and residences of the stockholders and the number of shares owned by them respectively, shall then be reported by the liquidating officer to the commissioner of the revenue who shall ascertain the fair market value of such surplus assets and assess against each stockholder in such bank or banking association, or trust or security company, for each year for which no tax on stock has been paid, a proportionate tax on said surplus at the rate, and for the purposes prescribed in section eighteen of this act; and such tax shall be paid by the liquidating officer into the treasury before any distribution of such surplus to stockholders. (1908, p. 322; 1912, p. 18; 1915, pp. 116, 209.)

A city ordinance imposing a tax on the capital stock of banks located within the city is not a violation of the provision of this section that no tax shall be assessed on the "capital" of any bank. West v. City of Newport News, 104 Va. 21, 51 S. E. 206.

In ascertaining the value of shares of bank stock under this section, the assessed, not the actual, value of real estate otherwise taxed should be deducted from the aggregate of the bank's capital, surplus and profits. Com. v. Va. Bank Co., 110 Va. 552, 66 S. E. 852.

In Tresnon v. Supervisors, 120 Va. 203, 90 S. E. 615, it was held that the act of March 18, 1915 (Acts 1915, p. 209), amending sections 17 to 22 of the tax bill, did not repeal by implication section 1040a of Pollard's Code (Acts 1889-90, p. 111, amended 1902-3-4, p. 412); that the two acts were harmonious, and when read together constituted the law of the State touching the assessment and taxation of shares of bank stock. Under these acts it was held that shares of stock in city banks owned by residents of a county were properly taxable in the county. Section 1040a of Pollard's Code above referred to does not appear in the present Code, but the General Assembly at its session of 1918 restored in part that section (Acts 1918, p. 535).

It was also held in the case referred to in the preceding paragraph that Acts 1889-90, p. 111 (amended Acts 1902-3-4, p. 431, section 1040a of Pollard's Code) was not unconstitutional on the ground that it violated section 15, article 5 of the former Constitution (section 52, article 4 of the present Constitution). Nor on the ground that it violated section 168 of the present Constitution.

For a review of "Recent Virginia Tax Cases," see 2 Va. L. Reg. N. S. 733.

Sec. 18. Further provisions as to same.—It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the revenue of each city of the State, as soon as he receives such report, to assess upon each stockholder upon such actual value of the shares of stock owned by him a tax to be levied by the city council or other governing bodies thereof of not exceeding one dollar and twenty-five cents on every one hundred dollars of actual value thereof; provided, that such city council or other governing body may, in its discretion, direct said commissioners of the revenue to deduct from the value of such shares of stock of such bank, for the purposes of local taxation only, the value of any municipal bonds of that particular municipality held by such bank. The word "banks" for the purposes of this act shall be so construed to include banks, banking associations, trust and security companies.

It shall likewise be the duty of the commissioners of the revenue in the several counties of the State to assess upon each stockholder a tax to be levied by the board of supervisors or other governing body of not exceeding one dollar and twenty-five cents on every one hundred dollars of actual value thereof, for county and district and district school purposes, except upon the stock of banks located in incorporated towns, in which case the rate shall not exceed twenty-five cents for such purposes; provided the sum to be derived from any such district levy shall be expended by said board only in those districts wherein such bank or banks are located.

And it shall be the duty of the commissioners of the revenue or other assessing officers of the several incorporated towns in which such bank or banks are located to assess upon each stockholder, a tax, to be levied by the council or other governing body thereof, of not exceeding one dollar on every one hundred dollars of actual value thereof for town purposes. Provided, that such boards of supervisors and councils of towns or other governing bodies may, in their discretion, direct such commissioners of the revenue to deduct from the value of such shares of stock of such bank for purposes of local taxation only, the value of any county or town bonds of said county or town, held by such bank; provided, that any incorporated town which does not constitute a separate school district shall appropriate not less than fifty per cent. of the fund derived from said taxes, and may appropriate the whole thereof to be used for school purposes in the school district in which said town is located.

The said tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes whatsoever for State, county or local purposes upon the said shares of stock. In pursuance of the provisions of section one hundred and sixty-nine of the Constitution of Virginia, all shares of stock in such banks are hereby segregated, set apart, and made subject to taxation only by the counties, cities and towns of this State; except to the extent of any State tax which may be imposed upon such shares of stock along with other property; and except that there shall be and there is hereby imposed a tax of ten cents on each one hundred dollars of the actual value of such stock, which shall be applied to the support of the public free schools of the State and to be apportioned on a basis of school population.

The commissioners of the revenue shall make out three assessment lists, give one to the bank, banking association, trust or security company, send one to the Auditor of Public Accounts, and retain one. The security company shall be notice to the bank, banking association, trust or security company of the tax assessed against its stockholders and assessment list so delivered to said bank, banking association, trust or each of them, and shall have the legal effect and force of a summons upon suggestion formally issued and regularly served. The tax assessed upon each stockholder in said bank, banking association, trust or security company shall be the first lien upon the stock standing in his name and upon the dividends thereof due and to become due, no matter in whose possession found, and shall have priority over any and all liens by deeds of trust, mortgages, bills of sale, or other assignment made by the owner or holder, and take priority over all liens by execution, garnishment or attachment process sued out by creditors of the stockholder. The bank, banking association, trust or security company shall hold the dividend or other fund belonging to the stockholder and in its custody at the time the assessment list is received or that thereafter shall come under its control, and apply the same to the payment of the tax assessed, and when thus applied shall be acquitted and discharged from all liability to the stockholder for the money so disbursed. (1908, p. 322; 1915, p. 209; 1918, p. 624.)

Sec. 19. Time of payment of taxes against stockholders.—Each bank, banking association, trust or security company, on or before the first day of June in each year, shall pay to the treasurers of the several counties, cities and towns, respectively, the tax assessed against its stockholders. (1915, p. 209; 1918, p. 624.)

Sec. 20. Proceedings for collection of same.—Should any bank, banking association, trust or security company fail to pay the tax assessed against its stockholders, as provided by this act, on or before the first day of June in each year, then, as soon thereafter as practicable (3092)

the Auditor of Public Accounts shall transmit to the treasurer of the county or city in which said bank, banking association, trust or security [company] is located the copy of the assessment list furnished him by the commissioner of the revenue, and it shall be said treasurer's duty to collect the taxes therein assessed, and to this end to levy upon the stock of the taxpayer or so much thereof as is necessary to pay said tax, and sell the same at public auction for cash as chattels and other personal property are sold under execution. He shall give to the purchaser a bill of sale made under his hand and seal. (1915, p. 209; 1918, p. 624.)

Sec. 21. Transfer of stock; legal effect of lists aforesaid.—The bank, banking association, trust or security company, on presentation by a purchaser of his bill of sale, shall cause the stock therein described to be transferred to said purchaser, and he shall take a clear and unencumbered title to the stock purchased. Should the taxes assessed against said stockholders be not paid or collected as hereinbefore provided, the lists aforesaid shall stand and be treated and have the legal effect of tax tickets regularly made out against each of said stockholders named in said lists as to which tax the right of levy and distress has accrued to the Commonwealth, and the treasurer shall proceed to collect the same by levy, or distress, and possess, all and singular, the authority and power conferred upon him by law to collect other State taxes, and be governed by sections six hundred and twenty-two and six hundred and twenty-three of the Code of Virginia. (1915, p. 209.)

Sec. 22. Penalty upon bank for failure to comply with act.—The bank, banking association, trust or security company, which shall fail or neglect to comply with each and every provision of this act, for each separate offense, shall be fined not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, which fine shall be recovered upon motion, after five days' notice in the circuit, corporation or hustings court, of the county or city in which the said bank, banking association, trust or security company is located. Said motion shall be in the name of the Commonwealth and presented by the attorney for the Commonwealth, of the court in which the motion is brought or made. The real estate of all banks, banking associations, trust and security companies shall be assessed on the land books of the commissioners of the revenue, with the same taxes with which other real estate is assessed. (1915, p. 209.)

Sec. 23. Tax on insurance companies.—Every person, partnership, company or corporation, which contracts on his, their or its account to issue policies or contracts for or agreements for life, fire, marine, surety, guaranty, fidelity, employers liability, liability, credit, health, accident, live stock, plate glass, tornado, automatic sprinkler, burglary, steam boiler, and all like insurance, shall pay an annual license tax based on the gross premium income, derived from business in this State during each year ending the thirty-first day of December prior to the year for which such license tax is to be paid for the privilege of doing business in this State.

The license year shall expire on the thirtieth day of April of each year. No license shall be issued for less than a year, except to a person, partnership, company or corporation, when he, they, or it first commenced business in this State, in which case the license shall be issued for that part of the year from the date of the issuance of the license to the thirtieth of April following, and the tax thereon shall be two hundred dollars if the said license period be one year, otherwise the first year's license tax shall be such proportion of the two hundred dollars license tax as the space of time between the issuance of the license and the thirtieth of April following bears to the whole year. The license tax herein provided shall be paid into the State treasury on or before the first day of April of each year, but the Auditor of Public Accounts shall not receive the same until the Commissioner of Insurance has notified him in writing, showing the amount due, which information the Commissioner of Insurance shall furnish to the Auditor of Public Accounts on or before the fifteenth day of March of each year, but said commissioner shall for the purposes of the immediate collection of the license tax for the current year furnish the information herein required to the Auditor of Public Accounts within five days after the passage of this act.

Every such person, partnership, company or corporation which contracts on his, their or its account to issue policies or contracts for or agreements for fire, marine, surety, guaranty, fidelity, employer's liability, liability, credit, health, accident, live stock, plate glass, tornado, automatic sprinkler, burglary and steam boiler, and all like insurance, shall pay into the State treasury, as hereinabove provided, a license tax of two and three-fourths per centum upon the gross amount of all premiums, assessments, dues and fees collected, received or derived, or obligations taken therefor, from business in this State during each year ending the thirty-first day of December, without any deduction for dividends paid, or deduction on any other account, except for premiums returned upon cancelled policies, and premiums paid for re-insurance upon business in this State in companies duly authorized to do business in this State; and every such person, partnership, company or corporation which contracts on his, their, or its account to issue policies or contracts for or agreements for life insurance, and all like insurance, shall pay into the State treasury, as hereinabove provided, a license tax of two and one-fourth per centum upon the gross amount of all premiums, assessments, dues and fees collected, received or derived, or obligations taken therefor, from business in this State during each year ending the thirty-first day of December, without any deduction for dividends paid or deduction on any other account, except for premiums returned upon cancelled policies, and premiums paid for re-insurance upon business in this State in companies duly authorized to do business in this State. Provided, that any such insurance companies chartered by and doing business solely in this State which are purely mutual and have no capital stock, and are not designed to accumulate profits for the benefit of, or pay dividends to, the members thereof, or any insurance company chartered by and doing business solely in this State, with a capital stock not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars and which pays losses from assessments against its policyholders or members, shall pay a license tax of one per centum upon the gross amount of all premiums, assessments, dues and fees collected, received or derived, or obligations taken therefor, from business in this State during the year ending the thirty-first day of December, without any deduction for dividends paid, or deduction on any other account, except for premiums returned upon cancelled policies, and premiums paid for re-insurance upon business in this State in companies duly authorized to do business in this State. Provided, further, that nothing herein shall be construed to apply to mutual fire insurance companies chartered in this State and doing a local business in this State, as defined by an act approved March seventh, nineteen hundred and four, nor to industrial sick benefit companies, as defined by an act approved March sixteenth, nineteen hundred and ten, or to fraternal beneficiary associations, as defined by chapter five of the act concerning the Bureau of Insurance, approved March ninth, nineteen hundred and six, as amended by an act approved March twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and fourteen. And provided, further, that nothing herein shall be construed to apply to section twenty-eight of chapter one, and section fourteen of chapter two, of an act concerning the Bureau of Insurance approved March ninth, nineteen hundred and six, providing that the expenses of maintaining the Bureau of Insurance shall be paid by the insurance companies doing business in this State, and providing that the expense of keeping the bonds deposited with the Treasurer of the State shall be paid by the insurance company depositing same; provided, however, that the license tax to be paid by each of the above described persons, partnerships, companies or corporations for the license year commencing May first, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and ending April thirtieth, nineteen hundred and sixteen, shall be based upon the gross amount of all premiums, assessments, dues and fees collected, received or derived, or obligations taken therefor, from business in this State during the year beginning January first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and ending December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, both dates inclusive, without any deduction for dividends paid o deduction on any other account except for premiums returned upon cancelled policies, and premiums paid for re-insurance upon business in this State in companies duly authorized to do business in this State, which State license tax shall be paid into the State treasury on or before the first day of April, nineteen hundred and fifteen.

The proceeds of the said license tax to be paid into the State treasury by every person, partnership, company or corporation doing an insurance business in this State as herein provided, shall be retained for the expenses of the State government. (1910, p. 224; 1914, p. 675; 1915, p. 106.)

The percentage clause in this section is not a property but a privilege tax and is not in conflict with article 13, section 170 of the Constitution of 1902. Scottish Un. Ins. Co. v. Winchester. 110 Va. 451. 66 S. E. 84.

Sec. 24. Reports to Commissioner of Insurance; penalties; duty of Auditor of Public Accounts.—Every such person, partnership, company or corporation shall, on or before the first of March of each year, report, under oath, to the Commissioner of Insurance, upon forms to be furnished by him, the gross amount of all premiums, assessments, dues and fees collected, received or derived, or obligations taken therefor, from business in this State during the preceding year ending the thirty-first day of December, without any deduction for dividends paid, or deduction on any other account, except for premiums returned upon cancelled policies, and premiums paid for re-insurance upon business in this State in companies duly authorized to do business in this State. The said annual report shall be examined into by the Commissioner of Insurance in order to ascertain as to its correctness, and it shall be his duty to file said report, or a copy thereof, when approved by him, with the Auditor of Public Accounts.

Every such person, partnership, company or corporation which shall fail to make the report of premium, assessments, dues and fees as herein required shall be fined fifty dollars for each day's failure to make such report, said fine to be imposed in the discretion of the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond, upon the motion of the Attorney General, after ten days' notice, made at the suggestion of the Commissioner of Insurance.

The Commissioner of Insurance shall, upon notification from the Auditor of Public Accounts, that the license tax on premiums, assessments, dues and fees, has not been paid, revoke the license issued the person, partnership, company or corporation.

The Auditor of Public Accounts shall, upon the failure of any such person, partnership, company or corporation to make the payment of the license tax on premiums, assessments, dues and fees, within the time required by law, add a penalty of ten per centum of the amount of said license tax to the same, and proceed to recover the penalty and the license tax by suit in the Circuit Court of the city of Richmond on the bond given by any such person, partnership, company or corporation to secure the payment of said tax. (1910, p. 224; 1915, p. 106.)

Sec. 25. Certain local mutual fire insurance companies exempt.—No charge shall be made against any fire insurance company chartered in this State for the privilege of transacting its business when such company is purely a local mutual association, doing business in not more than four contiguous counties in this State, or in more than four contiguous counties, provided the territory embraced in the counties in which business is done has not a population, exceeding one hundred thousand, and is not designed to accumulate profits for the benefit of, or pay dividends to, the stockholders or members thereof; and, provided, further, that nothing in this act shall be construed to require any tax, other than the tax imposed upon property and the fees imposed by the general law, defining and regulating fraternal beneficial associations, orders or societies, upon secret or fraternal orders where the benefit or relief is payable by the grand or supreme body of the same, and is derived from assessment upon lodges, councils or other bodies.

Sec. 26. Property of insurance companies to be taxed as other property; no tax except license tax on gross premiums.—The real estate and tangible personal property, situated or located in this State, of every person, partnership, company or corporation, whether organized by the laws of another State or country, or organized under the laws of this State, and doing an insurance business in this State, shall be listed and assessed on the land and property books of the commissioners of the revenue in the same manner as other real estate and tangible personal property is assessed, and shall be taxed at the same rate as other like property is taxed in this State.

The license tax on gross premiums as provided in section twenty-three and the tax on real estate and tangible personal property herein provided to be paid by every person, partnership, company or corporation doing such an insurance business in this State, shall be in lieu of all other license fees, taxes or levies whatsoever for State, county, municipal or local purposes, which shall be construed to include their agents, except that the certificate fee of one dollar required to be paid by all such agents to the Bureau of Insurance shall be paid by them as heretofore. (1910, p. 224; 1915, p. 106.)

Sec. 27. Railway and canal corporations.—Every railway and canal corporation of this State not exempt from taxation by virtue of its charter, and every railway and canal corporation incorporated under the laws of any other State doing business in this State, shall report annually on or before the fifteenth day of August, to the State Corporation Commission all of its real and personal property of every description, as of the thirtieth day of June preceding, showing particularly in what county or corporation the principal office or agency of such corporation is located in this State, and in what county or corporation the principal office or agency of such corporation is located, and also showing what parts of such property is located in each school district of such county, and classifying the same under the following heads:

First. Roadway and track or canal bed.

control of the corporation, whether such money be actually in or out of this State, and if such railway or canal is only in part within this Commonwealth, the money to be reported shall be such proportion of the total money on deposit, derived as aforesaid, as the gross earnings in Virginia bear to the gross earnings of the system.

Every such corporation shall also report, on or before the fifteenth day of August of each year, the gross transportation receipts of the railway or canal for the twelve months preceding the thirtieth day of June of each year, and in all cases the report shall be so made as to give the data on which the same is made. If such railway or canal is only in part within the Commonwealth, the report shall show what part is within the Commonwealth, and what proportion the same bears to the entire length of the road or canal, and shall apportion the said receipts accordingly. The report herein required shall be verified by the oath of the president or proper officer. A certified copy of this assessment, when made, shall be immediately forwarded by the clerk of the State Corporation Commission, not later than the fifteenth day of October, to the Auditor of Public Accounts and to the president or other proper officer of each railway and canal corporation so assessed, whose duty it shall be to pay into the treasury of the State, on or before the first day of November following, the taxes upon its property and the franchise tax upon the gross transportation receipts as shown by said copy of the assessments.

A certified copy of the assessment when made shall be immediately forwarded by the clerk of the State Corporation Commission to the Auditor of Public Accounts and to the president or other proper officer of such railway or canal corporation so assessed, whose duty it shall be to pay into the treasury of the State within thirty days after receiving said certified copy of the assessment, the taxes upon its property, and the franchise tax upon its gross transportation receipts as shown by said copy of the assessment.

Such taxes so assessed, and a penalty in addition thereto of five per centum thereon, if the said taxes be not paid at the time provided herein, shall be collected by the treasurer of any county or city in which such corporation owns property, to whom the auditor may deliver a copy of the assessment. The treasurer may distrain and sell any personal property of such corporation, and shall pay the amount of said tax and penalty into the treasury within one month from the time of delivery to him of the copy as aforesaid. The roadbed, depot grounds, rolling stock, tools, oil and other articles used in operating railroads, owned by mining, lumber and like companies which transport passengers or freight for other than such owners, shall be assessed by the State Corporation Commission in the mode prescribed by this act. It shall be the duty of the State Corporation Commission to prepare and furnish to the several corporations required to make reports under this section forms for such reports, which said corporations shall use in making the reports required of them, and any such corporation which shall fail to make the report hereinbefore required, within the time herein prescribed, shall be liable to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars for each day such corporation may be in default in making such report. The said fine to be imposed and judgment entered therefor by the State Corporation Commission after thirty days' notice to any such defaulting corporation to appear before the said commission and show cause, if any, against the imposition of such fine, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeals. It shall be the duty of the clerk of the State Corporation Commission to furnish to the council of every city and town and to the board of supervisors of every county, and to the treasurer of every county and city, wherein any property belonging to such corporation is situated, a certified copy of the assessment made by the State Corporation Commission of such corporation's property, which shall definitely show the character of the property, its value and location for the purpose of taxation in each county, city, town and school district, so that county, city, town and school district levies may be laid upon the same; provided, however, that it shall be the duty of the division superintendent of schools in each county in which a railway or canal is located and operated to furnish, on or before the first day of July in each year, to such railway or canal corporation or corporations, the boundaries of each school district of said county in which any part of such railway or canal and its property is situated, and a copy of such boundaries to the clerk of the State Corporation Commission. Wherever any division superintendent of schools shall fail to furnish to such railway or canal corporation or corporations and the clerk of the State Corporation Commission, the boundaries of each school district of said county in which any part of such railway or canal and its property is situated, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the State Corporation Commission to notify the judge of the circuit court of the county wherein such superintendent of school resides, who shall instruct the grand jury at the next term of the circuit court to ascertain whether such boundaries have been furnished as required in this act, and should said grand jury ascertain that such boundaries have not been furnished, they shall find an indictment against each such division superintendent of schools, who shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each school district so omitted. The State tax on the intangible personal property as assessed in the section next preceding (other than bonds issued by counties, cities and towns or other political subdivisions of this State) owned by every railway and canal corporation, shall be at the rate of sixty-five cents on every hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, the proceeds of which shall be applied to the payment of expenses of the government, and upon all such intangible personal property there may be local levies at the rate authorized by law; however, such rate not to exceed thirty cents on every one hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, the proceeds of said local levies to be applied as is provided by law.

The State tax on the money of every railway and canal corporation shall be twenty cents on every one hundred dollars assessed value thereof, one-half of which shall be applied to the support of the government and one-half of which shall be applied to the support of the public free schools of this State, and there shall be no local levies assessed on such money.

The State tax on bonds issued by counties, cities and towns or other political subdivisions of this State, owned by every railway and canal corporation shall be at the rate of thirty-five cents on every one hundred dollars assessed value thereof, the proceeds of which tax shall be applied to the payment of the expenses of the government.

The State tax on the real estate, rolling stock (other than the rolling stock of corporations operating railroads by steam) and tangible personal property of every railway and canal corporation, shall be at the rate of ten cents on every one hundred dollars assessed value thereof, the proceeds of which shall be applied to the support of the public free schools of this State, and on such real estate, rolling stock (other than the rolling stock of corporations operating railroads by steam) and tangible personal property there shall be local levies at the same rate or rates as are assessed upon other real estate and tangible personal property, located in such localities, the proceeds of which local levies shall be applied as is provided by law.

Every such railway or canal corporation shall pay to the State an annual State franchise tax equal to one and one-fourth per centum upon the gross transportation receipts, hereinafter specified, for the privilege of exercising its franchise in this State, which, with the taxes hereinbefore provided for, shall be in lieu of all taxes or license charges whatsoever, upon the franchises of such corporation and the shares of stock issued by it, and upon all its property, as hereinbefore provided; provided, that nothing herein contained shall exempt such corporation from the annual fee required by section one hundred and fifty-seven of the Constitution or from assessment for street and other local improvements, which shall be authorized by law, or from the county, city, town, district or road levies hereinafter provided for other than a franchise tax; and provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall annul or interfere with, or prevent, any contract or agreement by ordinance between street railway corporations and municipalities as to compensation for the use of the streets or alleys of such municipalities by such railway corporation; and provided, further, that the case of any railway or canal corporation operated wholly within this State whose actual operating expenses exceed its gross transportation receipts, the annual State franchise tax shall be equal to one and one-eighth per centum upon the gross transportation receipts.

The amount of such franchise tax shall be equal to one and one-fourth per centum of the gross transportation receipts of such corporation for the year ending June thirtieth of each year, to be ascertained by the State Corporation Commission in the following manner:

(a) When the road or canal of the corporation lies wholly within this State, the tax shall be equal to one and one-fourth per centum of the entire gross transportation receipts of such corporation.

(b) When the road or canal of the corporation lies partly within and partly without this State, or is operated as a part of a line or system extending beyond this State, the tax shall be equal to one and one-fourth per centum of the gross transportation receipts earned within this State, to be determined as follows:

By ascertaining the average gross transportation receipts per mile over its whole extent within and without this State, and multiplying the result by the number of miles operated within this State; provided, that from the sum so ascertained there may be deducted a reasonable sum because of any excess of value of the terminal facilities or other similar advantages situated in other States over similar facilities or advantages situated in this State.

The real and personal property (other than the rolling stock of corporations operating railroads by steam) of such corporation, and other than its franchise, shall be assessed on the valuation fixed by the State Corporation Commission with county, city, town, district and road levies at the same rate as real and personal property of natural persons are assessed with such levies.

No State tax, county, city, town, district or road levy shall be laid on the net income of any railway or canal corporation, nor shall any county, city, town, district or road levy be laid on the gross transportation receipts of any such company.

All the taxes and levies shall, until paid, be a lien upon the property within this State of the corporation owning the same, and take precedence of all other liens or encumbrances.

Any such railway or canal corporation, or the State or any county or city at the instance of the Attorney General for the State or the Commonwealth's attorney for any county or city, aggrieved by the assessment and ascertainment of such taxes, may within thirty days after receiving a certified copy thereof, apply for relief to the circuit court of the city of Richmond. Notice of the application setting forth the grounds of complaint, verified by affidavit if the appeal be taken by any such railway or canal corporation shall be served on the State Corporation Commission, and on the Attorney General, whose duty it shall be to represent the Commonwealth, or if the appeal be taken by the State or any county or city, notice of the application, setting forth the grounds of complaint, shall be served on such railway or canal corporation. If the court be of opinion that the assessment or tax is excessive, it shall reduce the same, but if of the opinion that it is insufficient it shall increase the same. Unless the applicant paid the taxes under protest when due, the court, if the decision is adverse to the applicant shall, in disallowing the application, give judgment against it for the taxes assessed by the State Corporation Commission, and for a sum, by way of damages, equal to interest at the rate of one per centum per month, upon the amount of taxes from the time the same were payable If the decision is in favor of such railway or canal corporation, in whole or in part, appropriate relief shall be granted, including the right to recover any excess of taxes that may have been paid, with legal interest thereon, and the legally taxable costs of said application from the State or local authorities, or both, as the case may be, the judgment to be enforced by mandamus or other proper process issuing from the court finally adjudicating the application. If the decision be in favor of the State, or any county or city, appropriate relief shall be granted and the court shall enforce its judgments by mandamus or other proper process.

The Supreme Court of Appeals may, subject to the provisions of article six of the Constitution, allow a writ of error to either party. Provided, however, that any steam railway company in which nine-tenths of the stock of such company is owned by a city or county of this State and which is operated at a loss, shall pay to the State an annual State franchise tax of only five dollars. (1915, p. 197; 1916, p. 814.)

A railroad company, which by its charter is exempt from any public charge or tax whatsoever, but which avails itself of the provisions of section 1089 of the Code of 1887 (now section 4379), and so falls under the provisions of section 158 of the Constitution, is liable for the franchise tax under this section. (1916, p. 793.)

Sec. 36½. Tax on water or heat, light and power companies.—The State tax on the intangible personal property (other than bonds issued by counties, cities and towns or other political sub-divisions of this State) owned by every corporation doing in this State the business of furnishing water or heat, light and power, whether by means of electricity or gas, shall be at the rate of sixty-five cents on every hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, the proceeds of which shall be applied to the expenses of the government, and upon all such intangible personal property there may be local levies at the rate authorized by law, however, such rates not to exceed thirty cents on every one hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, the proceeds of said local levies to be applied, as is provided by law.

If the decision is in favor of such corporation, in whole or in part, appropriate relief shall be granted, including the right to recover any excess of taxes that may have been paid with legal interest thereon, and the legally taxable cost of said application from the State or local authorities, or both, as the case may be, the judgment to be enforceable by mandamus or other proper process issuing from the court finally adjudicating the application. If the decision be in favor of the State or county or city, appropriate relief shall be granted, and the court shall enforce its judgment by mandamus or other proper process.

The Supreme Court of Appeals may, subject to the provisions of article six of the Constitution, allow a writ of error either party. (1916, p. 793.)

Sec. 37. Fees on charters.—Every domestic corporation authorized by its charter to exercise the powers of a transportation or transmission company, or to own, lease, construct, maintain and operate a public service line or road of any kind, upon the granting or extension of its charter, shall pay a fee into the treasury of the State of Virginia to be ascertained and fixed as follows:

For a company whose maximum capital stock is five thousand dollars or under, twenty-five dollars; for a company whose capital stock is over five thousand dollars, and not to exceed ten thousand dollars, fifty dollars; over ten thousand and not to exceed twenty-five thousand dollars, seventy-five dollars; over twenty-five thousand dollars, and not to exceed fifty thousand dollars, one hundred and twenty-five dollars; over fifty thousand dollars, and not to exceed one hundred thousand dollars, two hundred dollars; over one hundred thousand dollars, and not to exceed three hundred thousand dollars, three hundred and twenty-five dollars; over three hundred thousand dollars, and not to exceed five hundred thousand dollars, four hundred and fifty dollars; over five hundred thousand dollars, and not to exceed eight hundred thousand dollars, five hundred and seventy-five dollars; over eight hundred thousand dollars, and not to exceed one million dollars, seven hundred and fifty dollars; over one million dollars, and not to exceed ten million dollars, one thousand dollars; over ten million dollars, and not to exceed twenty million dollars, one thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; over twenty million dollars, and not to exceed thirty million dollars, one thousand five hundred dollars; over thirty million dollars, and not to exceed forty million dollars, one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars; over forty million dollars, and not to exceed fifty million dollars, two thousand dollars; over fifty million dollars, and not to exceed sixty million dollars, two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; over sixty million dollars, and not to exceed seventy million dollars, two thousand five hundred dollars; over seventy million dollars, and not to exceed eighty million dollars, two thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars; over eighty million dollars, and not to exceed ninety million dollars, three thousand dollars; over ninety million dollars, five thousand dollars.

For the purpose of this act the amount to which the company is authorized by the terms of its charter to increase its capital stock shall be considered its maximum capital stock. (1910, p. 77.)
institutions. (1910, p. 77; 1912, p. 596.)

Under the Constitution (section 156a), section 3847 of the Code and the Tax Bill (sections 37-40), all corporations are placed upon terms of equality and are required to pay a charter fee (as distinguished from an annual license fee), as a condition precedent to doing business in this State, with a proviso that this charter fee shall not be exacted of those corporations by which this fee has been at any time paid. The fact no charter fee has been heretofore required of surety companies, or that they have paid an annual license fee, does not exempt them from the payment of the charter fee required by Tax Bill (sections 37-40), and there is nothing to interfere with the unquestioned power of the State to impose the tax. American Surety Co. v. Com., 102 Va. 841, 47 S. E. 994. See present section 38a of tax bill.

This section requires a foreign corporation authorized to exercise the powers of a public-service corporation to pay the fee prescribed therefor in order to carry on any business in the State; the test for such foreign corporation's liability being whether its charter authorizes it to carry on that business. Standard Oil Co. v. Com., 104 Va. 683, 52 S. E. 390. (Decided before the amendment of 1910. See section 38a of tax bill.)

It is not the object of this section to confer on foreign corporations authority to exercise the powers of public-service corporations. Com. v. American Can Co. (Corporation Commission), 11 Va. Law Reg. 565; affirmed, 104 Va. 689, 52 S. E. 393. (Decided before the amendment of 1910. See section 38a of tax bill.)

For note upon how to avoid delay in obtaining a charter, see 11 Va. Law Reg. 747.

Sec. 38. Charter tax.—Every domestic corporation other than such as are described in the last preceding section, upon the granting or extension of its charter, shall pay a fee into the treasury of the State of Virginia to be ascertained and fixed as follows:

For a company whose maximum authorized capital stock is fifty thousand dollars or less, ten dollars; for a company whose maximum authorized capital stock is over fifty thousand dollars and less than three million, twenty cents for each one thousand dollars or fraction thereof; for a company whose maximum authorized capital stock is three million dollars or more, six hundred dollars; provided, however, that building fund associations, mutual insurance companies without capital stock, and other mutual companies not organized for strictly benevolent or charitable purposes, shall pay twenty-five dollars only for such certificate of incorporation or charter granted; and provided, further, that no fee shall be imposed on corporations organized for religious, benevolent or literary purposes, or to conduct a purely charitable institution or

A foreign corporation mentioned in section 37 does not belong to the class named in this section; for it, by express terms, excludes corporations included in section 37. Standard Oil Co. v. Com., 104 Va. 683, 52 S. E. 390. (Decided before the amendment of 1910. See section 38a of tax bill.)

The object of this and the preceding section was to impose on public-service corporations a larger charter fee than on ordinary trading companies, and a foreign corporation authorized by its charter to act as an ordinary trading company and in addition to act as a public-service corporation must, when it obtains a right to do business in Virginia, pay the charter fee required of public-service corporations. Commonwealth v. American Can Co., 11 Va. Law Reg. 565; affirmed, 104 Va. 689, 52 S. E. 393. (Decided before amendments of 1910.)

Sec. 38a. Entrance fees for foreign corporations.—Every foreign corporation, when it obtains from the State Corporation Commission a certificate of authority to do business in this State, shall pay an entrance fee into the treasury of Virginia to be ascertained and fixed as follows:

For a company whose maximum capital stock is fifty thousand dollars, or less, thirty dollars; for a company whose capital stock is over fifty thousand dollars, and not to exceed one million dollars, sixty cents for each one thousand dollars or fraction thereof; over one million dollars, and not to exceed ten million dollars, one thousand dollars; over ten million dollars, and not to exceed twenty million dollars, one thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; over twenty million dollars, and not to exceed thirty million dollars, one thousand five hundred dollars; over thirty million dollars, and not to exceed forty million dollars, one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars; over forty million dollars, and not to exceed fifty million dollars, two thousand dollars; over fifty million dollars, and not to exceed sixty million dollars, two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; over sixty million dollars, and not to exceed seventy million dollars, two thousand five hundred dollars; over seventy million dollars, and not to exceed eighty million dollars, two thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars; over eighty million dollars, and not to exceed ninety million dollars, three thousand dollars;

over ninety million dollars, five thousand dollars; provided, however, that foreign corporations without capital stock shall pay fifty dollars, only for such certificate of authority to do business in this State.

For the purpose of this act the amount to which the company is authorized by the terms of its charter to increase its capital stock shall be considered its maximum capital stock. (1910, p. 77.)

Where a foreign corporation carries on a purely local business separate from its interstate business the State may impose an excise tax upon it for the privilege of carrying on such business and measure the same by the authorizd capital of the corporation. General Ry. Co. v. Commonwealth, 118 Va. 301, 87 S. E. 598. See this case for what constitutes doing business in this State.

See notes to sections 37, 38 of tax bill.

Sec. 39. Certain charter amendments prohibited; fees for amendments, mergers, etc.—A charter heretofore granted or issued under the law of this State, whereby none of the powers of a transportation or transmission company or other public service corporation were conferred upon the corporation so chartered, shall not be amended so as to add to the powers and privileges originally acquired by the corporation, any of the powers, rights and privileges of a transportation or transmission or of any other public service company.

Upon the amendment of any charter, domestic or foreign, the fee to be charged on the amended charter shall be an amount equal to the difference between the amount already paid on the original charter and the amount required by this act to be paid on the maximum amount provided for in such amendment and upon the amendment or extension of any charter, domestic or foreign, if no fee was paid to this State on the original charter, the amount to be paid shall be the same as would have to be paid on original charter.

Upon the amendment or extension of a charter of a transportation or transmission company, or any other public service company, in the event that the charter fee paid on the original charter and any prior amendments, shall be less than the amount of charter fee required to be paid on an original charter of that character by the terms of this act then a charter fee shall be paid on the amended charter equal in amount to the difference between the charter fee already paid on the original charter and any prior amendments thereof and the amount required by this act to be paid on the maximum amount of authorized capital stock provided for in the charter of said corporation at the time of such amendment.

Upon the merger or consolidation of two or more corporations in the manner provided for by the laws of this State, whenever one of the corporations so merging or consolidating is a foreign corporation, then a charter fee shall be paid, as provided for in this act, upon the amount of capital stock proposed to be issued by the new or consolidated corporation taken as the maximum capital stock for the purpose of estimating said charter fee. (1906, p. 573; 1910, p. 77.)

Sec. 40. How fees paid by foreign corporations; how preceding sections construed.—The fees hereinbefore required to be paid by corporations organized under the laws of a jurisdiction beyond this State, and proposing to transact business in this State, shall be paid direct into the treasury of the State, whereupon the State Corporation Commission may issue a certificate authorizing the said corporation to transact such business and conduct operations of a character to be described in said certificate within this State, but the said corporation shall not have the right to transact business or conduct operations of any character in this State until said fees have been paid, and said certificate been duly issued. Nothing contained in this section or the three preceding sections shall be construed to impose a fee for a charter, or for authority to transact business in this State, upon any company which has already paid the fee or tax heretofore imposed by law upon its charter, or for authority to transact its business in this State; but this provision shall not be construed to exempt any amendment or extension of any such charter or of such authority to transact business in this State from the fees imposed by the sections hereinabove mentioned, or either of them. And the clerk of the State Corporation Commission shall, along with the order of the commission in the premises, record said certificate and the certificate of the Auditor of Public Accounts as to the payment of such fees in a proper book to be kept by said clerk for the purpose.

Sec. 41. Fees for registration.—Every domestic corporation, other than a purely charitable institution, and every foreign corporation doing business in this State, whose maximum capital stock is fifteen thousand dollars, or under, and every such corporation organized on a mutual basis or without capital stock, shall pay into the treasury of the State, on or before the first day of March in each and every year, an annual registration fee of five dollars; a corporation whose maximum capital stock is over fifteen thousand dollars, and does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, shall pay an annual registration fee of ten dollars; a corporation whose maximum capital stock is over fifty thousand dollars, and does not exceed one hundred thousand dollars, shall pay an annual registration fee of fifteen dollars; a corporation whose maximum capital stock is over one hundred thousand dollars and does not exceed three hundred thousand dollars, shall pay an annual registration fee of twenty dollars; and a corporation whose maximum capital stock exceeds three hundred thousand dollars, shall pay an annual registration fee of twenty-five dollars; said annual registration fee shall be irrespective of any specific license tax or other tax or fee imposed by law upon said corporation for the privilege of carrying on its business in this State or upon its franchise, property or receipts.

The State Corporation Commission shall ascertain from its records the amount of the authorized maximum capital stock of each of said corporations, as of the first day in January of each year, and shall assess against each such corporation the registration fee herein imposed, and a certified copy of the assessment, when made, shall be forwarded by the clerk of the State Corporation Commission, before the fifteenth day of February, to the Auditor of Public Accounts, and to each such corporation.

The State Corporation Commission may require every domestic and foreign corporation, in the month of January, in each year, and within such time as it may prescribe, to make to the commission, on forms prescribed by it, such report of the status, business, and condition of each such corporation as the commission may call for.

The failure of any corporation for two successive years to pay its annual registration fee, or to make such report, shall, when such failure shall have continued for ninety days after the expiration of such two years, operate, without further proceedings, as a revocation and annulment of the charter of such corporation, if it be a domestic corporation, or if its certificate of authority to do business in this State, if it be a foreign corporation, and the State Corporation Commission shall publish the fact of such revocation or annulment once a week for four consecutive weeks in a daily newspaper published in the city of Richmond, Virginia.

The failure of any corporation to pay its annual registration fee for any single year shall, when such failure shall have continued for ninety days after the same has been assessed, subject such corporation to a fine of not less than double the amount of such assessment, to be imposed and judgment entered therefor by the State Corporation Commission. (1906, p. 516; 1908, p. 338.)

Sec. 42. Failure to make report hereinbefore required.—Any such corporation which shall fail to make the report hereinbefore required within the prescribed time, shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense, and each period of thirty days wherein such company may be in such default in making such report shall constitute a distinct and separate offense. The said fine to be imposed and judgment entered therefor by the State Corporation Commission, after thirty days' notice to any such defaulting corporation to appear before the said commission, and to show cause, if any, against the imposition of such fine, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia.

Sec. 43. Annual State franchise tax.—Every corporation, joint stock company, or association, organized or formed under, by or pursuant to law in this State, except railway, canal, light, heat, and power companies, gas and water companies, insurance, banking and security companies, telephone companies, having an authorized maximum capital stock of five thousand dollars or less, cemetery, religious and charitable associations, shall, in addition to the charter fee, tax on property, and income or receipts, and license tax, and the registration fee prescribed by law, pay into the treasury of the State on or before the first day of March, of each and every year, an annual State franchise tax to be assessed by the State Corporation Commission.

The amount of such franchise tax shall be as follows: Where the maximum capital stock is twenty-five thousand dollars, and under, ten dollars; over twenty-five thousand dollars, and not in excess of fifty thousand dollars, twenty dollars; over fifty thousand dollars, and not in excess of one hundred thousand dollars, forty dollars; over one hundred thousand dollars, and not in excess of three hundred thousand dollars, sixty dollars; over three hundred thousand dollars, and not in excess of five hundred thousand dollars, one hundred dollars; over five hundred thousand dollars, and not in excess of one million dollars, two hundred dollars; and for all in excess of one million dollars, an additional sum of ten dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction thereof in excess of one million dollars.

The State Corporation Commission shall ascertain the amount of the authorized maximum capital stock of each such corporation, company or association as of the first day of January in each year, and shall assess against each such corporation, company, or association the State franchise tax herein imposed, and a certified copy of such assessment, when made, shall be forwarded by the clerk of the State Corporation Commission before the fifteenth day of February to the Auditor of Public Accounts and to the president or other proper officer of every such corporation, company or association.

Any such corporation, company or association failing to pay said tax into the State treasury within the time prescribed shall incur a penalty thereon of five per centum and interest at the rate of six per centum per annum on the total amount of tax and penalty from the date when the same was due until paid, which shall be added to the amount of said tax. (1908, p. 590; 1910, p. 87.)

Sec. 44. Tax on inheritances.—(1) All property within the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth, real, personal and mixed, and any interest therein, whether belonging to inhabitants of the Commonwealth or not, which shall pass by will, or grant or gift (except in case of a bona fide purchase for full consideration in money or money's worth) made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the death of the grantor, whether absolutely or in trust, except to or for the use of (Class A) the husband, wife, lineal ancestor, or lineal descendant of a decedent, or to or for the use of (Class B) the brother, sister, nephew, or niece of a decedent, shall be subject to a tax of five per centum of the fair market value or so much thereof as is in excess of one thousand dollars and not in excess of fifty thousand dollars, to a tax of seven per centum upon all in excess of fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, to a tax of nine per centum upon all in excess of one hundred thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars, to a tax of twelve per centum on all in excess of five hundred thousand dollars and up to one million dollars, and to a tax of fifteen per centum upon all in excess of one million dollars; and such property which shall so pass to or for the use of a member of Class A shall be subject to a tax of one per centum of the fair market value of so much thereof as is in excess of ten thousand dollars and not in excess of fifty thousand dollars, to a tax of two per centum upon all in excess of fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars, to a tax of three per centum upon all in excess of one hundred thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars; to a tax of four per centum upon all in excess of five hundred thousand dollars and up to one million dollars, and to a tax of five per centum upon all in excess of one million dollars; and such property which shall so pass to or for the use of a member of Class B shall be subject to a tax of two per centum of the fair market value of so much thereof as is in excess of four thousand dollars and not in excess of fifty thousand dollars; to a tax of four per centum upon all in excess of fifty thousand dollars and up to one hundred thousand dollars; to a tax of six per centum upon all in excess of one hundred thousand dollars and up to five hundred thousand dollars; to a tax of eight per centum upon all in excess of five hundred thousand dollars and up to one million dollars; to a tax of ten per centum upon all in excess of one million dollars; but no such gift, bequest, device or distributive share of an estate which shall so pass to or for the use of the husband, wife, lineal ancestor or lineal descendant of a decedent, unless its fair market value exceed the sum of ten thousand dollars, and no such gift, bequest, devise or distributive share of an estate which shall so pass to or for the use of the brother, sister, nephew or niece of a decedent, unless its fair market value exceed the sum of four thousand dollars, and no other such gift, bequest, devise or distributive share of an estate unless its fair market value exceed the sum of one thousand dollars, nor any such gift, devise or bequest made exclusively for State, county, municipal, charitable, educational or religious purposes in this State, nor any such gift, devise or bequest made for the exclusive benefit of any institution, association or corporation in this State whose property is exempt from taxation by the laws of this State, shall be subject to the provisions of this act.

2. The personal representative of such decedent shall withhold and pay the whole of said tax, except the tax on the transfer of such real estate belonging to the estate of the decedent as he is not authorized to sell or receive the rents and profits from, and the sureties on his official bond shall be bound for the payment thereof.

3. Where the personal representative is not authorized to sell or receive the rents and profits from any real estate belonging to the estate of his decedent and passing at his death, the taxes upon the transfer of such real estate shall be paid by the devisee, devisees, or heirs at law of such decedent, or other person or persons to whom such real estate shall pass, whether by the terms of the decedent's will or of any deed or grant made by him in his lifetime and taking effect at his death, or by operation of the statutes regulating descents and distributions.

4. The tax on the transfer of any property, of whatever nature, as to which the decedent shall die intestate, or which is not under the control of a personal representative, shall be paid by the distributee, distributees, heir or heirs at law of such decedent, or by the other person or persons to whom such property shall pass under the laws regulating descents and distributions, or by operation of any deed or gift made by the decedent in his lifetime and taking effect upon his death.

5. The corporation or hustings court of a city, or the circuit court of a county or city, the chancery court of the city of Richmond, the law and chancery court of the city of Norfolk, or the clerk of the circuit court of a county or city, or the clerk of the corporation or hustings court of the city, before whom the will is probated or administration is granted, shall determine the amount of the tax provided for by this act to be imposed upon the transfer of such property as passes by such will, or as comes into the hands of such administrator. For the purpose of ascertaining the taxes due under this act, the court of every city and county having jurisdiction to admit wills to probate and to grant letters of administration shall designate one of its commissioners whose duty it shall be, except where the estate is administered in a suit, to investigate and report to the court or clerk, as the case may be, the value of the estate of every decedent chargeable with a tax under this act, and the probate of whose will or letters of administration on whose estate is had in said court or clerk's office, and report the amount and kinds thereof and the persons who are entitled to the same; and the said commissioner shall be allowed for his services for making said appraisement and report, one-half of one per cent. of said estate so taxable, payable out of said estate as part of the costs of administration; provided, however, that said compensation shall in no case be less than five nor more than fifty dollars, except that for special services rendered the court may allow greater compensation. Upon the report of said commissioner the said court, or the clerk of any court clothed with probate powers and in the exercise thereof, shall determine the inheritance taxes, if any, to be paid on the estate passing by will or administration, and shall enter of record in the order book of the court or clerk, as the case may be, the amount of the taxes to be paid and by whom. And no estate of any decedent, subject to tax under this act, shall be distributed unless and until the tax has been assessed thereon as provided by this act. The clerk of the court shall certify a copy of said order to the treasurer of his county or city and a copy to the Auditor of Public Accounts, for which service such clerk shall be paid a fee of two dollars and fifty cents by the personal representative of such decedent. The Auditor of Public Accounts shall charge the treasurer with the tax and the treasurer shall pay the same into the treasury as collected, less a commission of five per centum.

6. The amount of the tax on a transfer of any property, of whatever nature as to which the decedent shall die intestate, or which is not under the control of a personal representative, shall be determined in the same manner provided in paragraph five of this act by the corporation or hustings court of a city, or the circuit court of a county or city, the chancery court of the city of Richmond, the law and chancery court of the city of Norfolk, or the clerk of the circuit court of the county or city, or other court in which certificate was granted the personal representative for obtaining probate of the will or letters of administration; and if there has been no qualification on the estate of the decedent, the amount of said tax shall be determined in the same manner provided in paragraph five of this act by the corporation or hustings court of a city, or the circuit court of a county or city, the chancery court of the city of Richmond, the law and chancery court of the city of Norfolk, or the clerk of the circuit court of the county or city, or other court, in which qualification might have been had. Entry shall be made in the order book of the court or clerk, as the case may be, showing the nature and value of the property so passing, the amount of the tax determined and by whom the same shall be paid. The clerk of the court shall certify a copy of such order to the treasurer of his county or city and a copy to the Auditor of Public Accounts, for which service the clerk shall be paid a fee of two dollars and fifty cents by the person or persons to whom such property passes. The Auditor of Public Accounts shall charge the treasurer with the tax and the treasurer shall pay the same into the treasury as collected, less a commission of five per centum.

7. Said taxes shall be assessed upon the actual value of the property at the time of the death of the decedent. In every case where there shall be a devise, descent, bequest or grant to take effect in possession or enjoyment after the expiration of one or more life estates, the tax shall be assessed on the actual value of the property or the interest of the beneficiary therein at the time when he becomes entitled to the same in possession or enjoyment. The value of an annuity or a life interest in such property, or any interest therein less than an absolute interest, shall be determined by the annuity tables provided for by section twenty-two hundred and eighty-one of the Code of Virginia. In every case in which it is impossible to compute the present value of any interest in property so passing the court or clerk then engaged in determining the amount of the said tax shall, subject to approval of the Auditor of Public Accounts, affect such settlement of the tax as such court or clerk shall deem to be for the best interest of the Commonwealth, and payment of the same so agreed upon shall be a full satisfaction of such taxes.

8. The clerk by whom the tax is to be determined, or the clerk of the court by which the tax is to be determined, shall serve a written notice on the attorney for the Commonwealth of the city or county in which such determination shall be had, and on each personal representative, devisee, heir at law, or other person to be charged with taxes by the said clerk or court, at least ten days before the entry of the order charging the taxes, and said notice shall set forth the time and place at which such determination shall be had; but the mailing of said notice to the last known address of the party to be notified, or to the attorney at law representing such party, shall be sufficient service under this section.

9. Taxes imposed by the provisions of this act shall be payable to the treasurer of the county or city in which the amount of such tax was determined and at the expiration of one year after the death of the decedent. In all cases in which there shall be a grant, devise, descent or bequest to take effect in possession or come into actual enjoyment after the expiration of one or more life estates or a term of years, the taxes thereon shall be payable by the executors, administrators or trustees in office when such right of possession occurs, or, if there is no such executor, administrator or trustee, by the person or persons so entitled thereto, and at the expiration of one year after the date when the right of possession accrues to the person or persons so entitled. If the taxes are not paid when due a penalty thereon of twenty per centum and interest at the rate of six per centum per annum on the total amount of taxes and penalty from the date when the same was due until paid, shall be added to the amount of said taxes and collected as a part of same.

10. Property of which a decedent dies seized or possessed subject to taxes as aforesaid, in whatever form of investment it may happen to be, and all property acquired in substitution therefor, shall be charged with a lien for all taxes and interest thereon which are or may become due on such property; but said lien shall not affect any personal property after the same has been sold or disposed of to a bona fide purchaser for value by the executors, administrators or trustees. The lien charged by this act upon any real estate or separate parcel thereof may be discharged by the payment of the taxes due and to become due upon said real estate or separate parcel, or by an order or decree of the court discharging said lien and securing the payment to the Commonwealth of the taxes due or to become due by bond or deposit. The treasurer may levy upon and sell so much of said property, both real and personal, as shall be sufficient to pay the taxes and expenses of sale, or he may rent or lease any portion of the real estate charged with the taxes for cash sufficient to pay the amount of taxes due

11. If the amount of the taxes charged is determined by a court, the person or persons so charged with the taxes shall have the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeals as in other cases.

12. Any person charged with taxes under this section, aggrieved by an order of any clerk of a court determining the amount of said taxes, may, within one year after the date on which such order was entered, apply for relief to the court of which such clerk is an officer. An application in writing, setting forth the manner in which the applicant considers himself aggrieved, shall be filed with the clerk by whom such order was made, at least ten days before the hearing of the cause, and notice of the time at which such application will be presented to the court shall be served upon the clerk of the court and the attorney for the Commonwealth, and a copy of both the application and the notice mailed to the Auditor of Public Accounts. Said notice shall be served on the clerk and the attorney for the Commonwealth, and a copy thereof mailed to the Auditor of Public Accounts at least fifteen days prior to the date on which the application is presented to the court. The attorney for the Commonwealth shall defend the application, and no order made in favor of the applicant shall have any validity unless it is stated therein that such attorney did so defend; that the clerk charging the taxes, or his successor, was examined as a witness touching the application; and the facts proved upon such hearing be certified.

13. If the court be satisfied that the applicant is erroneously charged in the clerk's order and that the erroneous charge was not caused by the failure or refusal of the applicant to furnish an inventory of the property subject to the tax to the clerk of the court, the court may order that the order of the clerk be corrected. If the order of the clerk charges more than the proper amount, the court may order that the applicant be exonerated from the payment of so much as is erroneously charged, if not already paid, and if paid, that it be refunded to him. If the order of the clerk charges less than the proper amount, the clerk shall order that the applicant pay the proper taxes. A copy of any order made under this section correcting an erroneous order of a clerk shall be certified by the court to the Auditor of Public Accounts and the Treasurer of the State.

14. If, from the statement of the facts or other evidence, the Auditor of Public Accounts shall be of the opinion that the order of the court, or the orders of the clerk, determining the taxes is erroneous, he may, within one year from the time such order is made, file a petition for a rehearing or review of such order; said petition may be filed in the court by which the order was made or of which the clerk is an officer, or with the judge thereof in vacation, and shall be in the name of the Commonwealth, and on the filing of the same shall operate as a supersedeas and the matter shall thereupon be reheard or the order reviewed in said court, and witnesses examined in the same manner as if no previous determination had been had. The petition shall be presented and the hearing conducted by the attorney for the Commonwealth of the county or corporation.

At the rehearing the court shall make such order therein as may be proper, and should the order of the court be against the Commonwealth, the Auditor of Public Accounts may take an appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeals, and a supersedeas may be granted in such case in the same manner as now provided by law in cases other than cases of appeal of right. No costs shall be adjudged against the Commonwealth on the appeal, but costs may, in the discretion of the court, be awarded against the clerk of the court who charged the tax, if the same be erroneous.

15. Of all taxes upon said inheritances paid into the State treasury one-half shall be placed to the credit of the public school fund of the Commonwealth and shall be apportioned according to school population, and the other half shall be remitted to the counties and cities in which such taxes are respectively collected, and all of such taxes shall be used for the primary and grammar grades of the public free schools of the State and in such counties and cities. (1910, pp. 229. 270; 1916, p. 134; 1918, p. 416.)

In Eyre v. Jacobs, Sheriff, 14 Grat. (55 Va.) 422, the court held that a collateral inheritance tax upon the succession or transmission of property is a tax upon a civil right or privilege, and not a tax on property. Pocahontas Collieries Co. v. Com., 113 Va. 108, 73 S. E. 446.

The act imposing a collateral inheritance tax (Acts 1895-6, pp. 367-8), is not retrospective in its operation, and does not warrant the imposition of such tax on a remainder which vested in interest in 1861, although the life tenant did not die until 1907. Com. v. Wellford, 114 Va. 372, 76 S. E. 917.

LICENSES.

Sec. 45. Merchants.—Every person, firm, company or corporation engaged in the business of a merchant shall pay a license tax for the privilege of doing business in this State to be graduated by the amount of purchases made by him during the period for which the license is granted, and all goods, wares and merchandise manufactured by such merchant and sold or offered for sale, in this State, as merchandise, shall be considered as purchases within the meaning of this section; provided, that this section shall not be construed as applying to manufacturers taxed on capital by this State, who offer for sale at the place of manufacture, goods, wares and merchandise manufactured by them. To ascertain the amount of purchases it shall be the duty of such merchant, on the first day of April of each year, or within ten days thereafter, to make report in writing, under oath, to the commissioner of the revenue, for the district for which he was licensed, showing purchases as above defined, and also all goods, wares and merchandise manufactured and sold or offered for sale in this State during the next preceding twelve months; except such goods, wares and merchandise as is manufactured by persons, firms and corporations taxed on their capital by this State. The form of the report required by this section shall be prepared by the Auditor of Public Accounts and furnished to each commissioner of the revenue, and by him distributed to each licensed merchant; and each commissioner shall, in the mode prescribed for making such report by him of the violations of the revenue law, report every merchant who shall fail to comply with the requirements of this section. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of not less than thirty dollars, or more than one thousand dollars for each offense. (1914, p. 487; 1915, p. 232.)

A merchant is one whose business is to buy and sell merchandise, and the term embraces all persons who habitually trade in merchandise. Morris & Co. v. Com., 116 Va. 912, 83 S. E. 408.

Sausage, head cheese, mincemeats and like products manufactured by a non-resident pork packer and sent to its branch in this State and there sold by it are not "purchases" within the meaning of this section. Morris & Co. v. Com., 116 Va. 912, 83 S. E. 408. Quaere as to fresh meat so sent.

See Commonwealth v Armour & Co., 118 Va. 242, 246, 87 S. E. 610, from which it appears that the amendment of March 19, 1915, was passed to overrule Morris v. Com., 116 Va. 912, 83 S. E. 408.

This section does not unjustly discriminate against the foreign manufacturer, nor deny to him the equal protection of the law, nor attempt to regulate commerce between the States, but is a valid enactment. Com. v. Armour & Co., 118 Va. 242, 87 S. E. 610.

When this section is read as a whole, as it should be, and the object of the statute is considered, the first and second sentences of the statute do not conflict with each other. Com. v. Armour & Co., 118 Va. 242, 87 S. E. 610.

See notes to section 47 of the tax bill.

Sec. 46. Merchants' licenses.—For every license to a merchant, firm, company or corporation as defined in section forty-five engaged in the business of a merchant, the amount to be paid shall be graduated as follows: If the amount of purchases shall not exceed one thousand dollars the amount shall be five dollars. When purchases exceed one thousand dollars, but do not exceed two thousand dollars, the amount shall be ten dollars, and for all purchases over two thousand dollars and less than one hundred thousand dollars, there shall be paid twenty cents on the one hundred dollars; and upon all the purchases over one hundred thousand dollars, there shall be paid ten cents on every hundred dollars in excess of one hundred thousand dollars.

Each merchant shall keep his invoices and a record with ink of all purchases, and from whom made, which record shall be open to inspection and examination by the taxing officers of the State, and the report of purchase made by the merchant shall be taken from that record; and he or his agents shall make oath to the correctness of the report and that the same is in accordance with said record, and that the record has been accurately kept.

It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the revenue to examine the record of purchases required to be kept by the merchant and to verify the merchant's report of purchases by that record; and he shall state upon the report of purchases made to him by the merchant that he did examine the record of purchases kept by the merchant. Every merchant who does not keep the record herein provided for shall be assessed with and pay a minimum State license tax of twenty-five dollars, in addition to such tax as may be ascertained by the local board of review as hereinafter provided for. Every merchant who does not keep the record herein provided for shall be reported by the commissioner of the revenue to the local board of review, whose duty it shall be to ascertain the correct purchases of such merchant by summoning the merchant before it by such investigation and examination as it deems proper to make or to have made, to correctly determine the true and correct purchases of such merchant, and when this fact has been ascertained the local board of review shall direct the commissioner of revenue to assess such merchant with the State license tax provided by law upon the purchases so ascertained, in addition to the minimum State license tax of twenty-five dollars hereinbefore provided for, but the minimum State license tax of twenty-five dollars hereinbefore provided for shall not apply to license granted merchants in the license year beginning May first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, and ending April thirtieth, nineteen hundred and seventeen. Should the commissioner of the revenue fail to perform the duty herein imposed upon him he shall not be paid by the State any commission upon the tax so assessed, and he shall be subject in each case of failure to a fine of twenty-five dollars to be recovered as other fines are recovered, and it shall be the duty of the local board of review to bring to the attention of the attorney for the Commonwealth each failure of the commissioner of the revenue to perform the duty herein required of him.

Provided, further, that goods, wares and merchandise not belonging to a merchant which are offered for sale by the merchant or by another person at the merchant's duly licensed place of business shall require such merchant to take out the license of a commission merchant. The sums imposed under and by virtue of this section shall be in lieu of all taxes for State purposes on the capital actually employed by said merchant or mercantile firm or corporation in said business, except the registration fee and franchise tax, and except that such merchant shall not be exempt from the payment of county, district, and road or other levies on the net amount of capital, as defined by law, on hand on the first day of February of each year and may be required to pay the usual city, county, district, and road or other levies thereon, notwithstanding this act. The word "capital" shall include moneys and credits actively used in carrying on the business, including goods, wares and merchandise on hand, and all solvent bonds, demands and claims made and contracted in the business during the preceding year; but real estate shall not be held to be capital, but shall be assessed and taxed as other specific property; but any merchant may file with the commissioner of the revenue a statement verified by affidavit showing the amounts owing upon the purchase price of such goods, wares and merchandise, if any, and further showing the persons, firms, or corporations to whom the same is due, and the address of each, and thereupon it shall become the duty of the commissioner of the revenue to deduct the aggregate of such amounts from the capital of such merchants in making the assessment on such capital.

For the purposes of ascertaining the tax to be paid by a merchant beginning business, his purchases shall be considered to be the amount of goods, wares and merchandise bought to commence business with, including goods, wares and merchandise manufactured by him to be offered for sale at the place at which he conducts his business as a merchant, provided such place is not the place of manufacture, also including an estimate of purchases which the merchant will make between the date of the issuance of his license and the thirty-first of March following, and including an estimate of the amount of goods, wares and merchandise manufactured by him to be offered for sale at the place at which he conducts his business as a merchant, provided such place is not the place of manufacture.

If, after the close of the year for which the license is issued, the merchant should elect not to renew it, but desires the privilege to sell whatever remnant or purchase he may have on hand at the time, it may be lawful for him to do so upon the payment of a license upon said remnant of merchandise to be regarded for purposes of revenue as purchases.

All other property held by such merchant or firm or corporation engaged in mercantile business, not offered for sale as merchandise, shall be separately listed and taxed as other property. The sums required by this section to be paid when the license is taken out shall be collected in the same manner that the amounts required to be paid for other licenses are collected. Dealers in coal, wood or ice paying license tax under this section may peddle the same from vehicles without paying additional tax. But nothing in this section shall be construed as to require a license of any person who may canvass any county or corporation to buy lambs, pigs, calves, fowls, eggs, butter and such like small matters of subsistence designed as food for man, but any person who shall keep a place of business for the purpose of selling such articles in, or within a half mile of any city or town in the State shall take out license therefor, as hereinbefore prescribed; provided that dealers in coal and wood in cities of forty thousand inhabitants or more, who peddle the same from vehicles shall pay an additional tax of fifty dollars for each wagon thus used. (1914, p. 487; 1916, p. 793.)

A non-resident pork packing company which purchases and slaughters live stock and from the carcasses manufactures and prepares for sale various food products, as well as the fresh meat, but which does not sell in this State fresh meat, is not a butcher within the meaning of this section. Morris & Co. v. Com., 116 Va. 912, 83 S. E. 408. See notes to section 45.

Sec. 46½. Merchant on train.—That every person, firm, company or corporation engaged in the business of selling on railroad trains in this State, newspapers, periodicals, magazines, candies, fruits, et cetera, shall pay a license tax at the rate of twenty cents for each and every mile of track for which the person, firm, company or corporation operates in this State.

The person, firm, company or corporation desiring to take out the license required by this act shall make a sworn statement of the trackage over which it is proposed to operate in Virginia, and file the same with the commissioner of the revenue, to whom he applies for the license. Any person, firm, company or corporation making a false statement under oath as to trackage shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense.

The license required by this act shall be issued by the commissioner of the revenue, and the tax thereon shall be paid to the county or city treasurer where the license is issued, in the same manner other licenses are applied for and tax thereon paid is now provided by law. The license issued under this section shall be good on railroad trains throughout the State. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 46½(a). Oyster packers.—Every person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of shucking or packing oysters in this State shall pay a license tax for the privilege of transacting such business, to be graduated by the amount of oysters shucked or packed by him during the period for which his license is granted. To ascertain the amount of oysters shucked or packed, it shall be the duty of such person, firm or corporation, on the first day of April of each year, or within ten days thereafter, to make report in writing, under oath, to the oyster inspector for the district for which he was licensed, showing the amount of oysters actually shucked or packed by him during the next preceding twelve months. The form of report required by this section shall be prepared by the Auditor of Public Accounts and furnished to each oyster inspector and by him distributed to each licensed oyster packer, and each inspector shall, in the mode prescribed for making such report by him of the violations of the oyster laws, report every oyster packer who shall fail to comply with the requirements of this section. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of not less than thirty dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 46½(b). Oyster packers' licenses.—For every license to a person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of shucking or packing oysters, the amount to be paid shall be graduated as follows: If the amount of oysters shucked or packed by such person, firm or corporation shall not exceed twenty-five thousand gallons, the amount shall be five dollars. When the amount of such oysters exceeds twenty-five thousand gallons, but does not exceed fifty thousand gallons, the amount shall be ten dollars. When the amount of such oysters exceeds fifty thousand gallons, and does not exceed one hundred thousand gallons, the amount shall be twenty-five dollars. When the amount of such oysters exceeds one hundred thousand gallons, and does not exceed two hundred thousand gallons, the amount shall be fifty dollars. When the amount of such oysters exceeds two hundred thousand gallons, the amount shall be one hundred dollars. The sums imposed under and by virtue of this section shall be in lieu of all taxes for State purposes on the capital actually employed by said person, firm, or corporation in said business. The word "capital" shall include moneys and credits actively used in carrying on the business, including goods, wares and merchandise on hand, and all solvent bonds, demands, and claims made and contracted in the business during the preceding year; but real estate shall not be held to be capital, but shall be assessed and taxed as other specific property. All other property held by such person, firm, or corporation shall to be paid when the license is taken out shall be collected in the same manner that the amounts required to be paid for other licenses under the oyster laws of the State are collected, and shall be accounted for as part of the oyster fund. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 47. Railroad and other incorporated companies which sell mineral or forest products or other articles.—Every railroad company or other granted in its charter or not, which shall sell any mineral or forest product, or any other article, shall be taxed as other merchants dealing in like commodities. This act shall apply to companies keeping commissaries, or having agents for the sale of any other article than their own product; provided, that nothing herein contained shall prevent a railroad company from buying and distributing to its employees, as a part of their compensation, meat, meal and flour, at the cost price thereof, but nothing in the foregoing shall be construed as requiring a company selling the products of their own mines, or lands, or manufactories, to pay a merchant's license for so doing, but any such company selling its product at a definite place of business apart from its mine, land or place of manufacture, shall pay the merchant's license tax as provided by law. Any railroad company or other incorporated company selling any article or product on account of the owner, and receiving a compensation therefor other than for transportation, storage or handling as provided for in its charter, shall pay a license the same as commission merchants. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the revenue to ascertain the liability of such individuals or companies in this State to the payment of such license taxes, and shall assess the same in the same manner as other merchants. (1915, pp. 139, 232; 1916, p. 793.)

This section imposes no tax upon a manufacturer, certainly not upon a resident manufacturer, for the sale of its products, and excludes the idea that it is liable to pay a merchant's license for so doing. Morris & Co. v. Com., 116 Va. 912, 83 S. E. 408. (Decided before the amendments of 1915 and 1916.)

The proviso in this section does not apply to or affect section 45 of the tax bill. Com. v. Armour & Co., 118 Va. 242, 87 S. E. 610. (Decided under the amendment approved March 19, 1915.)

Sec. 48. Commission merchants and brokers.—Every person, firm or corporation doing business in this State who receives or distributes provisions and merchandise, including flour, hay or grain, shipped to such person, firm or corporation for distribution on account of the shipper, or who participates in the profits ensuing from or accruing out of the sales of such provisions or merchandise, including flour, hay or grain, or who invoices such sales or collects the money therefor, shall be deemed to be a broker who receives or distributes provisions and merchandise, including flour, hay or grain.

Every person, firm, or corporation, buying or selling for another any kind of merchandise on commission shall be a commission merchant. Any person, firm or corporation licensed as a commission merchant may sell any personal property which may be left with or consigned to him for sale, except wine, ardent spirits and malt liquors, gold or silver coin, bonds, certificates of public or private debts or other securities; provided, however, that any such merchant may sell wine, ardent spirits and malt liquors, gold or silver coin, bonds, certificates of public or private debts or other securities by taking out the license therefor prescribed in the case of liquor merchants or stock brokers. Any person, firm or corporation buying or selling contrary to the provisions of this section, or who shall in any manner violate the same, shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 49. Commission merchants and brokers' license.—Every person, firm or corporation shall pay for the privilege of transacting the business of a commission merchant or broker the sum of fifty dollars, provided, the commissions do not exceed one thousand dollars, but when the commissions exceed one thousand dollars, the tax shall be fifty dollars, and an additional tax at the rate of one dollar on each one hundred dollars, or fraction thereof, or commissions in excess of one thousand dollars, and if the license is to include the privilege of selling wine, ardent spirits, and malt liquors, gold or silver coins, bonds, certificates of public or private debts, or other securities, there shall be paid, in addition, the amounts required in each case to be paid by liquor merchants and stock brokers and in like manner. (1914, p. 487; 1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 50. Sale by peddlers.—Any person who shall carry from place to place, any goods, wares, or merchandise, and offer to sell or barter the same, or actually sell or barter the same, shall be deemed to be a peddler, and any person licensed as a peddler may sell any personal property a merchant may sell, or he may exchange the same for other articles: and whenever a license is granted to a peddler to sell such goods, wares, or merchandise, his license shall be valid for one year from the date of its issue. Said license shall not be transferable, and any person so licensed shall endorse his name on said license, and such license shall confer authority to sell at any house or place within the county or city in which the license was granted. Any peddler who shall peddle for sale or sell or barter without a license shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense, one-half of which shall go to the informer; any person selling or offering to sell as a peddler shall exhibit his license on demand of any citizen of the county, city or town in which he sells or offers to sell or barter; and upon his failure or refusal to do so he shall be subject to the penalties of peddling without a license. This section shall be construed to include persons engaged in peddling lightning rods. All persons who do not keep a regular place of business (whether it be a house or a vacant lot, or elsewhere), open at all times in regular business hours, and at the same place, who shall offer for sale goods, wares and merchandise, shall be deemed peddlers under this act. All persons who keep a regular place of business, open at all times in regular business hours and at the same place, and who shall elsewhere than at such regular place of business, personally, or through their agents, offer for sale or sell, and at the time of such offering for sale, deliver goods, wares and merchandise, shall also be deemed peddlers as above, but this section shall not apply to those who sell or offer for sale in person or by their employees, ice, wood, meats, milk, butter, eggs, poultry, fish, oysters, game, vegetables, fruits, or other family supplies of a perishable nature grown or produced by them and not purchased by them for sale. But a dairyman who uses upon the streets of any city one or more wagons may sell and deliver from his wagons milk, butter, cream and eggs in said city without procuring a peddler's license. (1914, p. 487; 1915, p. 232; 1916, p. 772.

A traveling salesman for a broom manufacturer went from place to place, and his employer shipped him from the factory to stations along his route in such quantities as was thought sufficient to supply the trade. From shipments so made the salesman would select samples, and take orders from merchants only, and never for less than dozen lots, after which the salesman would get the brooms from the depot and fill the orders taken. This method of selling brooms was an established feature of the business. The salesman had no license to peddle. Held, that he was not within the spirit of this section, defining a peddler, and fixing a penalty upon him for doing business without a license. In so far as a revenue law imposes penalties for its violation, it is a penal statute and is to be strictly construed, and no man is to be subjected to its penalties unless he comes clearly within the spirit and letter of the statute. Kloss' Case, 103 Va. 864, 49 S. E. 655. (Decided before the amendment of 1914 and subsequent amendments.)

An agent sold certain pictures with the agreement that when the pictures were delivered the purchaser would also buy a frame. It is held that the negotiations for the picture frame were wholly within this State and the agent should have gotten a licenes. This section does not violate the United States Constitution. Roselle's Case, 110 Va. 235, 65 S. E. 526. This case was affirmed by the United States Supreme Court on March 18, 1912. But see Davis v. Com., 113 Va. 562, 75 S. E. 1135, reversed 35 Supreme Court Reporter 479.

This section as it then stood construed in Crall & Ostrander's Case, 103 Va. 857, 49 S. E. 638.

In Com. v. Myer, 92 Va. 809, 23 S. E. 915, it was decided this section as it previously existed discriminated against non-resident manufacturers and was therefore void.

As to lightning rod merchants, see section 51(a) of tax bill.

Sec. 51. Peddler's license.—For the privilege of peddling or bartering in any county, city or town, there shall be paid two hundred and fifty dollars for each person so engaged or employed, when he travels on foot, and when he peddles otherwise than on foot, the tax paid shall be five hundred dollars, except that the tax on peddlers of ice, wood, meat, milk, butter, eggs, poultry, fish, oysters, game, vegetables, fruits or other family supplies of a perishable nature not grown or produced by them, shall be twenty-five dollars for each vehicle used in such peddling, except that no State license shall be charged for peddling fish and oysters in the country or in incorporated towns, nor shall this section apply to persons who are engaged in selling melons from a car or cars in the country and in towns where the same does not remain for more than twenty-four hours at any one place, and except that the tax on peddlers of pianos and organs shall be ten dollars for each person engaged in selling pianos or organs from a peddler's wagon, said tax to be paid to the proper officer of each county, city, and town wherein such wagon is so used; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent any city or town from requiring an additional license tax on such peddlers of pianos and organs, where the charter of such city or town authorizes it to impose license taxes, and except that the tax on the peddlers of lightning rods shall be two hundred dollars, and that peddlers in coal and wood in cities of over forty thousand inhabitants who peddle the same from vehicles, shall pay a tax of fifty dollars for each vehicle used; provided, that no State license tax shall be imposed on peddlers of meats sold in the country. Every vehicle used in peddling as aforesaid shall have conspicuously displayed thereon the name of the peddler using the same, together with the street and number of his residence, if he resides in any city or town. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of revenue to issue a peddler's license to a person desiring to obtain the same, upon the presentation to him of the certificate of the county or city treasurer that the license tax has been paid to him. Nothing under this or the preceding section shall be construed to require of any farmer a peddler's license for the privilege of selling or peddling farm products, wood or charcoal grown or produced by him. (1908, p. 124; 1914, p. 487; 1915, p. 232.)

See State v. Wright, and note 21 L. R. A. (N. S.), 349 for a discussion of the constitutionality of discrimination in tax as between peddlers handling equally harmless articles.

Sec. 51(a). 1. Lightning rod merchant.—That any person, firm, or corporation who sells by sample in person or through agents taking orders and thereafter delivering the lightning rods and all material necessary to the erection of the same to the person or persons from whom said orders have been secured and erecting the same as directed, the same shall be known as a lightning rod merchant.

2. Every such lightning rod merchant shall pay a specific State license tax of twenty-five dollars for each license year, which shall not be subject to any abatement, and shall, in addition to said State license, secure from the commissioner of every county or city, in which such business is done an additional license for each license year of ten dollars.

3. Nothing in this act shall apply to peddlers of lightning rods selling and delivering same at the time of the sale. Any person, firm, or corporation, selling contrary to the provisions of this act shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 52. Sale or barter of patent rights.—No person, except the patentee, shall sell or barter the right to manufacture or use any machinery or other thing patented under the laws of the United States, without first having obtained a license therefor from some commissioner of the revenue of a county or city, which license shall grant the privilege of selling anywhere in the State, but if used out of the county or city where granted shall be authenticated by the certificate of the clerk of the circuit court of the county, or the clerk of the corporation court of the city where granted, that the person signing the same is really the commissioner of the revenue, and that his signature is believed to be genuine. A separate license shall be required on each patented thing of which the right to make or use is sold, but any person owning the State right for any patented thing may sell anywhere in the State through agents provided with a copy of his license thus obtained certified as hereinbefore provided. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 53. License for sale or barter of patent rights.—Every person who shall sell or barter the right to manufacture or use machinery or other thing patented under the laws of the United States, except the patentee, if he be a citizen of the United States, shall pay for the privilege the sum of twenty-five dollars. Nothing in this or the preceding section shall be construed to authorize the sale of the article or thing patented. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 54. Land agents.—No person, firm, or corporation shall without a license, act as agent for the sale of lands. Any person licensed as a land agent may sell land in this Commonwealth entrusted to him for sale. Any person selling land or offering to sell the same, who is not an auctioneer, or who has not the fee simple title, or any other less estate therein, shall be held to be a land agent; but this section shall not be construed to prevent any person not engaged in the business of selling land for compensation from selling, without license, any lands for the sale of which he has a duly authenticated power of attorney, nor commissioners and receivers appointed by the courts, nor executors of wills, nor trustees in deeds of trust. For any violation of this section the person offending shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

This section makes it an indictable offense for any firm or corporation to do business as a land agent, as herein defined, without the payment of a license tax. A society organized under section 1783l of Pollard's Code (omitted from present Code and thereby repealed) is indictable where it offered for sale, as land agent, without a license, for compensation, lands not owned by members of the society. Immigration Soc. v. Com., 103 Va. 46, 48 S. E. 532, 10 Va. Law Reg. 532.

Sec. 55. License on a land agent.—A land agent shall pay for the privilege of selling land entrusted to him for sale, the sum of ten dollars and one-eighth of one per centum on amount of sales; provided, however, that if his place of business is in a town or city of more than two thousand and not exceeding three thousand inhabitants, he shall pay the additional sum of ten dollars; if in a town or city of more than three thousand and not exceeding four thousand inhabitants, he shall pay the additional sum of twenty dollars; if in a town or city of more than four thousand and not exceeding five thousand inhabitants, he shall pay the additional sum of thirty dollars; if in a town or city of five thousand inhabitants or more, he shall pay the additional sum of forty dollars; and provided, further, that where there is a firm of land agents doing business at one locality, said tax shall be on the firm and not on each member thereof. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 56. Book agents.—No person, firm, or corporation shall, without a license, act as a book agent.

Any person, firm or corporation other than a licensed merchant, who shall receive subscriptions for, or shall in any manner furnish books, maps, prints, pamphlets or periodicals, shall be deemed to be a book agent. Any person desiring to distribute any religious books, pamphlets, or periodicals, may apply to the judge of the county, circuit or corporation court of any county or city in which he may desire to distribute the same, and said judge, upon being satisfied that the person applying is of good character, and a proper person in whom to confide the trust of distributing such books, may direct the commissioner of the revenue to grant him a license without the payment of a license tax therefor. Any person, firm, or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 57. License on book agents.—A book agent shall pay for the privilege of acting as such the sum of ten dollars. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 58. Auction sales; who may sell without a license.—No person shall sell at auction or public outcry, for compensation, without a license, except in the following cases—to-wit:

First. The estate of a decedent may be sold by his personal representative or his agent, according to law or the provisions of the will.

Second. Property conveyed by deed of trust, or decree or ordered to be sold by a court may be sold according to the deed, decree or order.

Third. Any person may sell the agricultural products of this State arising from his own or other labor under his control, or his real or personal estate not sold or purchased on speculation.

Fourth. Any officer may sell property distrained by him under execution or other legal process.

Fifth. Licensed commission merchants may sell live or dressed fowls, fresh vegetables, and fresh fish, upon taking out license of a common crier. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 59. Auctioneer's account of sales.—Every auctioneer other than a tobacco auctioneer shall keep an account of sales made by him, showing the aggregate amount thereof; and whenever required by a commissioner of the revenue, shall render an account for assessment of all his sales during the period for which his license was granted, and shall sign and answer all interrogatories respecting such sales as may be propounded to him in pursuance of law. Such accounts, statements and answers shall always be on oath. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 60. What an auctioneer may do.—An auctioneer may conclude the sales of anything he is authorized to sell, grant a certificate or other evidence of the sale, and receive the money; but no auctioneer shall authorize or permit any person to sell any property under and by virtue of his license, except the person so authorized or permitted is actually and bona fide in the employment of such auctioneer, and is actually and bona fide a resident of the county or city where such auctioneer is licensed to do business, and the commissions on such sale are actually and bona fide for the benefit of such auctioneer; and no license shall be construed to authorize the person to whom it is issued to sell at more than one regular establishment: but an auctioneer may sell anywhere in the county or city wherein he is licensed, public stocks, houses, lots, and furniture on ships or vessels, on the premises where the same may be or at the exchange or the store of a regular licensed merchant declining business, or goods in the original form and packages as imported and bulky articles such as have been usually sold in warehouses, or in the public streets, or on the wharves, or at such other places in the county or city wherein such auctioneer is licensed, as shall be desired by the owner or importer of such bulky articles or imported goods. If any auctioneer shall violate any of the provisions of this section, he shall forfeit and pay for every offense twenty dollars, to be recovered for the use of the party prosecuting the same before a justice of the peace, in like manner as other fines and penalties are imposed and collected. The offer to sell each article shall be deemed a separate offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 61. Classification of auctioneers.—Auctioneers shall consist of general auctioneers, real estate auctioneers, tobacco auctioneers and livestock auctioneers, and shall be so classified that their powers and duties and the restrictions and penalties thereon shall be separate and distinct—that is to say: (1915, p. 232; 1916, p. 460.)

Sec. 62. General auctioneers; what they may sell.—Any person, licensed as a general auctioneer, may sell any goods, wares, merchandise and other articles not prohibited by law; but he shall not sell wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors or any mixture thereof, unless and until he shall have obtained a license therefor in the mode prescribed by law. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 63. License for general auctioneers.—A general auctioneer shall pay the sum of fifty dollars, and if the place of business is in a city or town having a population of more than five thousand inhabitants, (3128)

two dollars for every thousand above that number; but said sum shall in no case exceed one hundred and thirty dollars. And he shall pay an additional sum of one-fourth of one per centum on the amount of sales for the year. Provided, however, a general auctioneer is not required to pay the percentage tax on sales made by him under order of court, or for persons acting in a fiduciary capacity where the general auctioneer only cries the sale and grants the certificate thereof. If he sells wine, ardent spirits, malt liquors, or any mixture thereof, he shall pay one-half of one per centum on the amount of such sales. (1915, p. 149.)

Sec. 64. Real estate auctioneers.—Any person licensed as a real estate auctioneer, may sell, in the county or city wherein he is licensed, at auction or privately, any real estate in this Commonwealth entrusted to him for sale; provided, that no such auctioneer shall be allowed to negotiate loans upon a mortgage of real estate or otherwise, without taking an additional license as a private banker. For any violation of this section the person so offending shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 65. Real estate auctioneer's license.—A real estate auctioneer shall pay the sum of fifty dollars; if the place of business is in a city or town containing a population of five thousand inhabitants or under, he shall pay seventy-five dollars; if in a city of more than five thousand, but not exceeding twenty thousand inhabitants, he shall pay one hundred dollars; and in a city of more than twenty thousand inhabitants, he shall pay one hundred and twenty-five dollars. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 66. Tobacco auctioneers.—Any person or firm licensed as a tobacco auctioneer may sell at auction any tobacco, not prohibited by law to be sold. For any violation of this section the person or firm offending shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 67. Tobacco auctioneer's license.—Tobacco auctioneers shall pay for the privilege of transacting business twenty-five dollars, except in cities they shall pay fifty dollars; and, provided, further, that in incorporated towns the auctioneer for any warehouse or warehouses in which were sold during the previous year, ending April thirtieth, five million pounds or more of tobacco, shall pay fifty dollars; but in any case where such sales amount to less than one million pounds, the tax shall be only ten dollars. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 67-a. Live-stock auctioneers.—Any person, firm or corporation licensed as an auctioneer to sell horses, mules and other live-stock, may sell in the county or city wherein licensed, at auction or privately for their own account or for the account of others, horses, mules and other live-stock. (1916, p. 460.)

Sec. 67-b. Live-stock auctioneers' license.—Live-stock auctioneers shall pay for the privilege of transacting business the sum of fifty dollars, provided the commissions and profits from sales do not exceed one thousand dollars, but when the commissions and profits from sales exceed one thousand dollars the tax shall be fifty dollars and an additional tax at the rate of one dollar on each one hundred dollars, or fraction thereof, of commissions and profits from sales in excess of one thousand dollars. Any licensed live-stock auctioneer who buys and sells on his own account shall for the conduct of that business be deemed to be a merchant and shall take out a merchant's license. Said license tax upon a live-stock auctioneer who sells for the account of others the license tax provided in this section shall be in lieu of any tax, State or local, on capital, except that the cities and towns may prescribe a license tax in addition to the one hereby imposed. (1916, p. 460.)

Sec. 68. Licenses to retailers of tobacco.—No person, not a producer, shall be allowed to sell by retail, tobacco, snuff and cigars without having obtained a specific license to do so. The sums to be paid by retailers of tobacco, snuff and cigars shall be for such privilege, a specific tax of five dollars, which shall be assessed and collected as other license taxes; but shall not be in lieu of merchants' license on purchases.

Provided, however, that a licensed hotel keeper or a keeper of a house of private entertainment or eating house whose purchases of tobacco, snuff and cigars are in any year less than five hundred dollars, may under the license to retail tobacco sell such tobacco, snuff and cigars in a duly licensed hotel or house of private entertainment or eating house without taking out a merchants' license, provided he does not conduct a mercantile business in connection with the business of hotel keeper or keeper of a house of private entertainment or eating house, in which case he shall for such business be licensed as a merchant and required to return with his other purchases, his purchases of tobacco, snuff and cigars. (1914, p. 487; 1916, p. 793.)

Sec. 69. Junk dealers, canvassers, etc.—No keeper of a shop, for the purpose herein mentioned, or master of a vessel, or other person shall, without a license authorized by law, purchase, sell, barter, or exchange any kind of second-hand articles, junk, rags, rag cullings, bones, bottles, puer, scrap, metals, metal drosses, steel, iron, paper, old lead pipe, old bathroom fixtures, old rubber, old rubber articles, or other like commodities, except furniture, clothes, shoes and stoves intended to be re-sold for use as such. The hustings or corporation court of any city, and the circuit court of any county, may grant a license to any citizen of the United States who shall produce to it satisfactory evidence of his good character to carry on the business of a junk dealer, which license shall designate the premises on which said person shall exercise or carry on said business; and no person shall exercise or carry on the business of a junk dealer without being duly licensed, nor in any other premises than the one designated in said license, except by the consent of the court which granted the license, under the penalty of fifty dollars for each day he shall exercise or carry on said business without such license, or in any other premises than the one so designated, except by the consent of the court aforesaid. The place at which such business may be conducted shall be kept open for the purchase or sale of any of the articles mentioned aforesaid. Nor shall any purchase be made by such person, or by any other person or persons for him, except between the hours of sunrise and sunset; and such place of business shall be open at all times to the inspection of any revenue or police officer of the county or corporation wherein the license issued. Every person receiving such license shall place over the principal entrance of his place of business a sign designating that he is a licensed junk dealer. No person shall canvass for the purpose of buying any junk or other like commodity enumerated above in this section, for any such junk dealer, or for sale to such junk dealer, or to any other person unless such person be authorized so to do, in writing, by some junk dealer licensed and appointing him under this section. Every such junk dealer, desiring to appoint such canvassers, shall take out a license for each canvasser he shall wish to appoint. Such canvasser's license shall be issued in the name of the dealer applying therefor, and the commissioner of revenue shall furnish with each canvasser's license two tin signs, numbered in duplicate, with the following words thereon, viz.: "Licensed Junk Canvasser No. ——," and said signs are to be firmly and conspicuously fixed by such canvasser to each side of his vehicle, when using the same in canvassing.

Canvassers so appointed shall be permitted to canvass anywhere in this State. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed or operate to prevent any person, firm, or corporation keeping or operating a foundry or machine shop from exchanging his new castings for old ones, or from buying any old metals or old machines for use in his business, or to be renovated and sold; but nothing herein contained shall authorize any such person, firm or corporation operating a foundry or machine shop to buy any old metals or old machines, and sell them again in the same condition as they were when purchased. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent any regular licensed merchant in the country, or in towns having a population of two thousand or less from buying or trading for rags, old iron, or other articles or junk, unless there be a regular licensed junk dealer within three miles of his place of business, such merchant to be subject at all times to the same conditions of inspection as a regular junk dealer. Every junk dealer and every merchant and foundryman who deals in junk, old metals, et cetera, shall keep at his place of business a book, in which shall be fairly written in English, at the time of each transaction in the course of his business, an accurate account of such transaction except as to the purchase of rags, bones, old iron, and paper, setting forth a description of the goods, articles, or anything purchased, the time of receiving the same, the name and residence of the person selling or delivering the same, the terms and conditions of purchase or receipt thereof, and all other facts and circumstances respecting such purchase or receipt. Which said book or books shall, at all times, be subject to the inspection of the judges of the criminal courts, the chief of police, the captains and sergeants of the police of the city, town or county wherein such business is being conducted, or any or either of them, sergeant and sheriff of such city, town or county, or other officer with police jurisdiction, provided, however, that this section shall not apply to articles bought without the State of Virginia. It shall be the duty of every junk dealer, every such merchant and foundryman, to admit to his premises at any time any officer mentioned above, to examine any books or other record on the premises, as well as the articles purchased or received; and to search for and take into possession any article known by him to be missing, or known or believed by him to be stolen, without the formality of search warrant or any other process, which search or seizure is hereby authorized. Every junk dealer shall be liable to all the penalties herein provided for violation of any of the provisions of this section, whether such violation be committed by himself or by his agent, clerk or employee. (1906, p. 537; 1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 70. Junk dealers' license.—Every junk dealer shall pay for the privileges of transacting business the sum of fifty dollars, and for the privilege of doing business at other premises than that designated in the license the sum of twenty-five dollars, and for the privilege of appointing canvassers, for the purpose of buying any junk or other matter or things for any such junk dealer, or for sale to a junk dealer, the sum of thirty dollars for each canvasser appointed and licensed, as well as the cost of the tin signs furnished such canvasser. (1906, p. 537; 1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 71. Common criers.—No person shall act as a common crier without a license. A person licensed as a common crier may, except in cities of over fifteen thousand inhabitants, cry for sale at any place in the county or city in which his license issued, any property, real or personal, for an auctioneer, fiduciary, or the owner of the property, when such owner is authorized to sell the same by auction, but he shall not conduct a sale otherwise than under the present and immediate direction of the property owner or other person authorized to sell the same, nor shall he cry such property or conduct such sale by an agent. He shall not, as such crier, receive money on account of the sale or grant acquittances. He may receive for his services a stated compensation, but he shall not receive any commission or percentage on the amount of the sale, nor any specific or contingent interest in the sale as a compensation for his services, directly or indirectly. Any person licensed as a common crier in a city of over fifteen thousand inhabitants may sell fowl, butter, fresh fish, fresh vegetables, fruit, or articles of like perish-

No manufacturer or other person, whether he be licensed as a peddler, merchant or sample merchant, or not, shall canvass any county, town or city, for the purpose of selling or offering to sell, or shall actually sell or deliver, sewing machines and accessories, unless he be licensed as provided in this section.

Second. Any manufacturer desiring the privilege of selling, or offering to sell, or of selling and delivering sewing machines manufactured by him and accessories to sewing machines, throughout the Commonwealth shall apply to the Auditor of Public Accounts for a license, and it shall be the duty of the Auditor of Public Accounts, upon the payment into the State treasury of the sum of two hundred dollars for the privilege of transacting such business, to grant such license, and such payment shall be in lieu of any additional State, county, city or town license tax or levy.

The name of the manufacturer shall be stated in the license and such license shall be a personal privilege to the manufacturer to whom it is granted, and shall not be transferable, but any one representative of such manufacturer can sell thereunder for the said manufacturer; should such manufacturer desire to employ more than one representative, such manufacturer so licensed may obtain from the Auditor of Public Accounts separate certificates for as many agents as he may desire to employ in selling and offering to sell, or selling and delivering sewing machines manufactured by him, and accessories to sewing machines, upon the payment of five dollars into the State treasury for each certificate, and such certificate shall state the name of the manufacturer, and shall entitle such agent to sell, or offer to sell, or to sell and deliver, sewing machines manufactured by such manufacturer and accessories to sewing machines throughout the Commonwealth, without the payment of any additional State, county, city or town tax or levy

Any licensed merchant may sell, or offer to sell, or to sell and deliver, at his regular place of business under his merchant's license, without the payment of any additional State, county, city or town license tax or levy, sewing machines purchased by him from any manufacturer of such sewing machines who has taken out a license to sell sewing machines of his manufacture, and accessories to sewing machines throughout the Commonwealth; but such merchant, if he desire to sell, or offer to sell, or to sell and deliver, at any place other than at his regular place of business, the sewing machines purchased by him from a manufacturer who has been licensed as hereinbefore provided, shall obtain a certificate from the Auditor of Public Accounts, and shall pay into the State treasury therefor the sum of five dollars and he shall also in like manner pay five dollars for a certificate for each person in his employment engaged in selling or offering to sell, or in selling and delivering, elsewhere than at his regular place of business, the said sewing machines, and accessories to sewing machines, and such payment shall be in lieu of any additional State, county, city or town license tax or levy.

Any person other than a licensed merchant or manufacturer, may sell, or offer to sell, or sell and deliver, throughout the Commonwealth sewing machines purchased by him from any manufacturer of such sewing machines, who has taken out a license to sell sewing machines of his manufacture, and accessories to sewing machines, throughout the Commonwealth; provided, he obtain a certificate from the Auditor of Public Accounts and pay into the treasury of the State the sum of five dollars, and such payment shall be in lieu of any additional State, county, city, or town license tax or levy.

Third. Any person other than those licensed under the foregoing section desiring the privilege of canvassing any county or city, for the purpose of selling or offering to sell sewing machines and accessories, shall apply to one of the commissioners of the revenue for such county or city for such license; and upon the granting of such license, and the payment of twenty dollars to the treasurer of each county or city, he shall have the privilege of selling, offering to sell, and of selling and delivering sewing machines and accessories of any manufacturer in such county or city. Any such person so licensed may obtain the like privilege in any other county or city upon the production to one of the commissioners of the revenue of such other county or city of his license to sell as aforesaid, and upon the payment of the sum of ten dollars to the treasurer of such other county or city. Such license shall be a personal privilege, and shall not be transferable; but no separate license shall be required to be obtained by any person licensed under this section in order to authorize such person to sell the said accessories of any manufacturer.

Fourth. There shall be no abatement from the said sum to be paid for the license to sell sewing machines or accessories, if the same be exercised for less than one year. All licenses issued under this section shall expire on the thirtieth day of April next after the date of their issue.

Fifth. Any manufacturer, person, or agent selling, or offering to sell, or taking orders for the sale of sewing machines or accessories, without having obtained the license or certificate hereinbefore required, shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, one-half of every such fine to go to the informer.

Sixth. Nothing in this section shall prevent licensed auctioneers or officers of the law, under legal process, from selling second-hand sewing machines, nor prevent any person licensed under this section from dealing in second-hand sewing machines of any manufacture which have become second-hand by having been sold and used in this State previous to the passage of this act, or those which may become second-hand machines after having been sold under the provisions of this section. (1915, p. 232.)

Except as required by this section no merchant's license is required of a manufacturer, whether resident or non-resident, upon articles manufactured by him. Morris & Co. v. Com., 116 Va. 912, 83 S. E. 408. See present section 45 of tax bill and notes.

Sec. 136. Agents for the sale of manufactured implements or machines by retail other than sewing machines.—Any person who shall sell, (3150)

or offer for sale, manufactured implements or machines by retail, or take orders therefor on commission or otherwise, other than sewing machines, unless he be the owner thereof, or a duly licensed merchant, at his regular place of business, who shall have paid a license tax amounting to as much as fifteen dollars shall be deemed to be an agent for the sale of manufactured articles, and shall not act as such without taking out a license therefor. No such person shall, under his license as such, sell, or offer to sell, such articles through the agency of another; but a separate license shall be required for any agent or employee who may sell, or offer to sell, such articles for another. For any violation of this section the person offending shall pay a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 137. License to agents for the sale of manufactured implements or machines by retail other than sewing machines.—Every agent for the sale of manufactured implements or machines, other than sewing machines, shall pay for the privilege of transacting such business the sum of fifteen dollars, and this shall give the party licensed under this section the right to sell the same within the county or city in which he shall take out his license; and if he shall sell, or offer to sell, the same in any other county or city of the State, he shall pay an additional sum of ten dollars in each county or city where he may sell, or offer to sell, the same; provided, that any person who shall pay an annual tax to the Commonwealth upon capital actually employed by him in the manufacture of the articles or machines mentioned in this section of not less than thirty dollars per annum, may without any further sum being paid for the privilege by himself or his agent, employ agents to sell said articles or machines manufactured by him in any of the counties or cities of the State; and the certificate of the treasurer of the county or city in which said tax shall be paid by such person on the capital so employed by him in the manufacture of such articles or machines shall be evidence of the fact of such payment. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 138. License tax on peddlers of manufactured implements and machines other than sewing machines, and on peddlers of cooking stoves and ranges and clocks.—Every person engaged in peddling manufactured implements or machines, other than sewing machines, shall pay for the privilege of transacting such business the sum of two hundred dollars; and this shall give to such peddlers the right to sell the same within the county or city in which he shall take out his license, and if he shall sell, or offer to sell, the same in any other county or city in this State, he shall pay an additional sum of one hundred dollars in each county or city where he may sell or offer to sell the same.

Every peddler of cooking stoves or ranges, and every peddler of clocks, shall pay for the privilege of engaging in such business the sum of five hundred dollars, and this shall give to such peddler the right to sell the same within the county or city in which he shall take out his license; and if he shall sell, or offer to sell, in any other county or city of the State, he shall pay an additional sum of three hundred dollars in each county or city where he may sell or offer to sell the same; provided, that any person selling clocks, stoves and ranges under a merchant's license and delivering the same shall be deemed a peddler under the provisions of this act and subject to the requirements and penalties hereinbefore imposed. (1915, p. 232.)

Sec. 139. License on slot machines.—Any person, firm or corporation, having on a street, alley or other place in any city or town, or on any public road in any county, or in shops, stores, hotels, boarding houses, depots, public or private rooms or any other place anywhere in the State of Virginia, a slot machine of any description, into which are dropped pennies or nickels or coins of other denominations to dispose of chewing gum or other articles of merchandise or for the purpose of operating musical or other devices that operate on the nickel-in-the-slot principle, used for gain, except as a pay telephone, shall pay for every such slot machine or musical or other device, as the case may be, a State license tax of ten dollars per year for the use and benefit of the State; except such vending machines as are used solely for the sale of agricultural products or cigars, on which shall be levied a State license tax of three dollars per year for each machine; except also weighing machines and machines used solely for the purpose of selling shoe-strings, on which shall be levied a State license tax of two dollars per year for each machine; and except also automatic baggage or parcel checking machines or receptacles, which are used for the storage of baggage or parcels of any character, on which there shall be levied a State license tax of twenty-five cents per year for each receptacle that is operated on the coin-in-the-slot principle; provided, however, that nothing contained in this section shall be construed as permitting any such person, firm or corporation to keep, maintain, exhibit or operate any slot machine or other device, in the operation of which cigarettes or intoxicating liquors are disposed of or in which the element of chance enters, and it shall not be lawful for any commissioner of the revenue or other officer to issue a State license under this section to any such person, firm or corporation for the keeping, maintaining, exhibiting or operating of any slot machine or other device, in the operation of which cigarettes of intoxicating liquors are disposed of or in which the element of chance enters, the intent of this section being to license only those machines or devices, in the operation of which the element of chance does not enter, and which are not used to dispose of cigarettes or intoxicating liquors; and provided, further, that this section shall not apply to any merchant, who has paid a merchant's license tax and who uses such slot machine simply for the purpose of making sales of his goods and merchandise and to be used inside of his place of business; nor shall this section apply to slot machines that are used for the purpose of selling individual sanitary drinking cups or sanitary drinking cups and natural water at one cent.

Any person, firm or corporation having any such machine or other device and failing to procure a State license therefor, shall be subject to a fine of not less than twenty dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense and such machine or other device shall become forfeited to the Commonwealth. (1906, p. 512; 1912, p. 462; 1914, p. 411; 1915, p. 118.)

Sec. 140. License on dealers in pistols, dirks or bowie knives.—No person, firm, or corporation, shall sell pistols, dirks or bowie knives without having first procured a license therefor.

Every person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of selling pistols, dirks, or bowie knives, or who may hereafter engage in said business, shall pay for the privilege of transacting said business a special license tax in the sum of twenty dollars per annum, and no such license shall be issued for any period less than one year, nor shall there be any abatement in any instance of the tax upon such license by reason of the fact that the person or persons so licensed shall have exercised such license calling for a period of less than one year. Any person selling pistols, dirks, or bowie knives contrary to the provisions hereof, or who shall in any manner violate the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense. (1915, p. 232.)

It was not the purpose or effect of this section to give to every person who paid the tax and obtained a license the right to carry on such business, notwithstanding any police regulations which might otherwise lawfully be made for the good government of a city or town; and an ordinance of the city of Richmond, making it unlawful for any licensed pawnbroker to deal in pistols, etc., is not in conflict herewith. Elsner Bros. v. Hawkins, 113 Va. 47, 73 S. E. 479.

Sec. 141. License tax upon gypsies, etc. (1915, p. 232.)

(Repealed, 1918, page 264, which act also prohibits "any company of gypsies, or other strolling companies or persons, to receive compensation or reward for pretending to tell fortunes or to practice any so-called magic art." A violation of the act is made a misdemeanor.)

Sec. 142. Social club license.

(Repealed, 1908, page 275.)

As this act stood before it was repealed it was declared not to be special legislation within the meaning of the Constitution, and in so far as it conflicted with section 1042 of the Code of 1887, it prevailed, as it was enacted subsequently to that section. Norfolk v. Board of Trade, 109 Va. 353, 63 S. E. 987.

General Provisions.

Sec. 143. Tax on each business engaged in.—When any incorporated company, firm or person is engaged in more than one business, which is made by the provisions of this act subject to taxation, such incorporated company, firm or person shall pay the tax provided by law on each branch of its or her business.

Partnership property not otherwise taxed is to be taxed in the county or city where the partnership business is or was conducted; and where the partnership carries on separate and distinct businesses, both as to the capital and conduct, in different counties or cities, then the partnership property in each of said businesses is to be taxed in the county or city in which it is or was. Com. v. Schmelz, 114 Va. 364, 76 S. E. 905.

Under the provisions of the Code and tax bill, a partnership is, for the purposes of taxation, treated as an entity. The firm and not the individual members are considered as the owners of the partnership property. Com. v. Schmelz, 114 Va. 364, 76 S. E. 905.

Sec. 144. Aggrieved corporation may appeal; penalty for failure to make report; duty of the Corporation Commission; penalty for failure to pay taxes.—Any corporation, except as otherwise expressly provided in this act, feeling aggrieved by the assessment made by the State Corporation Commission of its property, registration fee, or franchise tax under the provisions of this act may have such right of appeal as may be provided by law.

Every such company, corporation, firm, or person which shall fail to make the reports required in the preceding sections within the time prescribed, shall, unless a different penalty is hereinbefore prescribed for such failure, be liable to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars, nor more than two thousand five hundred dollars. The said fine to be imposed and judgment entered therefor by the State Corporation Commission, after thirty days' notice to any such defaulting corporation to appear before said commission and show cause, if any, against the imposition of such fine, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia.

It shall be the duty of the State Corporation Commission to prepare and furnish to the several corporations required to make reports under this act forms for such reports, which said corporation shall use in making the reports required of them.

Any such company, corporation, firm or person required by this act to pay its registration fee or its or his taxes, or both directly into the State treasury, failing to pay said taxes or registration fee, or both, into the treasury within the time prescribed shall incur a penalty thereon of five per centum, which shall be added to the amount of said taxes or registration fee, or both. The Auditor of Public Accounts shall deliver a bill for said taxes or registration fee, or both, and penalty, to the treasurer of any county or city in which the company, corporation, firm or person may have any property belonging to it or him, and said bill shall have the force and effect of an execution in favor of the Commonwealth.

The Treasurer may distrain or levy upon, and sell, any real or personal property of such company, corporation, firm or person, and shall pay the amount of the bill into the treasury within ten days after he has collected the same.

The treasurer shall be responsible on his official bond for the amount of such bill; provided, however, if the amount of the bill exceed one-half of the penal sum of the official bond of such treasurer, the Auditor of Public Accounts shall require the treasurer to whom such bill is delivered to execute a bond in the penalty of double the amount of the bill placed in his hands for collection, with security, to be approved by him, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duty in collecting and paying into the treasury the amount of such bill. The compensation of such treasurer for collecting and paying into the treasury said bill shall be five per centum of the aggregate of said bill, and shall be paid by such corporation, company, firm or person. (1910, p. 230.)

Sec. 145. School taxes to be separately assessed and paid in money.—All taxes assessed on property, real or personal, by this act, and by it dedicated to the maintenance of the public free schools of this State, shall be paid and collected only in lawful money of the United States, and shall be paid into the treasury to the credit of the free school fund, and shall be used for no other purposes whatsoever. And to this end the Auditor of Public Accounts shall have the books of the commissioner of the revenue prepared with reference to the separate assessments and collection of said school tax, and the treasurers of the several counties and cities of the Commonwealth shall have the tax bills in their respective counties and cities so made out as to specify the amount of tax due from each taxpayer to the said public free school fund, including the capitation tax and school taxes of whatever kind or nature, and to keep said capitation tax and school taxes separate and distinct from all other taxes or revenue so collected by him and forward the same thus separate and distinct to the Auditor of Public Accounts, which shall be kept separate and distinct by him from all other taxes or revenues until paid the public free schools.

Sec. 146. Inconsistent acts repealed.—All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

References are given to the following acts relating to taxation passed at the session of 1918, which acts are not amendatory of the tax bill:
